Freeholder Robinson moved to adjourn, which was carried.

The director declared the board adjourned until Thursday, Feb. 2d, 1899, at 2:30 p. m.

S. Rusling Ryno, Clerk.

SIR WALTER SCOTT'S FIRST BRIEF.

One of His Best Fee's was the Sound Advice of a Burglar.

Sir Walter Scott had his share of curious experiences in the same connection shortly after being called to the bar. His first appearance as counsel in a criminal court was at Jedburgh Assizes in 1793, when he successfully defended a veteran poacher. "You're a lucky scoundrel!" Scott whispered to his client when the verdict was given. "I'm just o' your mind," returned the latter, "and I'll send you a maukin (namely, a hare) the morn, man." Lockhart, who narrates the incident, omits to add whether the "maukin" duly reached Scott, but no doubt it did.

On another occasion Scott was less successful in his defense of a housebreaker, but the culprit, grateful for his counsel's exertions, gave him, in lieu of the orthodox fee, which he was unable to pay, this piece of advice, to the value of which he, the housebreaker, could professionally attest: First, never to have a large watchdog out of doors, but to keep a little yelping terrier within; and secondly, to put no trust in nice, clever, gimcrack locks, but to pin his faith to a huge old heavy one with a rusty key. Scott long remembered this incident and thirty years later, at a judges' dinner at Jedburg, he recalled it in this impromptu rhyme:

Yelping terrier, rusty key,
Was Walter Scott's best Jeddart fee.

Cream Candies.

The Canadians make the most delightful cream candies of maple sugar, cream and butternuts.

Melt a pound of new maple sugar with a cup of thin cream and boil the syrup to a creamy ball, but not until it "cracks." When the syrup has reached the proper state, scatter butternut kernels evenly over sheets of buttered tin and pour on just enough of the syrup to cover them. Crease the sheets of candy into small squares and break them apart when the candy has become cold.

How to Serve Macaroni.

Macaroni served in the Italian style means simply boiled macaroni over which a highly-seasoned brown gravy is poured, grated cheese being sent round with the dish. The gravy is nicest made by cutting up in two-inch pieces some lean, juicy beef from the round and simmering in a little water into which a fried onion is put. Strain and thicken, adding half a dozen chopped mushrooms.

A New English Tire.

A new tire which attracted great attention at the recent bicycle shows in England is likely to be on the market here before long. This tire has no inner air tube, but is a single tube, which opens so that it may be repaired from the inside. It is almost identical with the outer cover of an ordinary clincher tire, except that one of the edges laps inside the other one, the air pressing them together and keeping it prisoner.

Dog Remembered It Well.

George F. Barton, who died at Green's Hotel on November 1, leaves a $30,000 estate and provides in his will that his executors shall "find a good home for my dog 'Cay,' pay his board and at his death place his body in a box and have him properly buried." The residue of his property is left to relatives.—Philadelphia Ledger.

All Kinds of Dogs.

A New Breed—Dog Fancier—Yes, madam, I have all kinds of dogs here. Is there any particular breed you wish?

Old Lady (who reads the papers)—Oh, anything that's fashionable. Lemme see an ocean greyhound.—New York Weekly.

Knew Where He Was.

A little four-year-old occupying an upper berth in the steamship cabin awakened in the middle of the night. His mother asked him if he knew where he was. "Course I do," he replied. "I'm in the top drawer."
—New York Sun.

How It Happened

"Gripsack has got his appetite back again."

"How did he do it?"

A Cigarette Holder.

"Hear about that American young woman paying a million dollars for a cigarette holder?"

"Get out!"

"Fact. I belive it also had a title or something.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

A RUN TO FREETOWN.

By GEORGE GRIFFITH.

[Copyright, 1898, by the Author.]

In the nature of the case it was quite out of the question that the story of the diamond dog, under the skin of which gems were smuggled from the mine, should remain a secret for very long. To the illicit diamond buyers every detail of it as it gradually leaked out was as a sweet morsel under the tongue, and to many more honest enemies of the new compound system, mostly tradesmen and canteen keepers, it was far too acceptable a story either to be kept dark or to be allowed to lose anything in the retelling.

Added to this, the tragedy in which it had culminated had lent a piquancy to its flavor which sufficiently stimulated the palate of Kimberley society to set it longing for more, and so, little by little, it filtered through the barriers of official reticence until at last a fitting finish was given to the story by the confession of Chief Detective Inspector Lipinski one night in the smoking room of the club that that day's mail had brought him a brief note, written by one Loo Chai, presumably a former resident of that name in Delagoa Bay, requesting that an inclosed acceptance for £250, drawn in his favor by the late Mr. Augustus Lowenfeldt, might be cashed by that gentleman's executors, and the amount, less 10 per cent commission for his (the inspector's) trouble, forwarded at his convenience to 9 Malay street, Singapore. The note concluded by stating that the £250 was a balance due from Mr. Lowenfeldt on the purchase of a certain dog of the estimated value of £11,000.

Despite the fact that not a few of those who heard the note read out and looked at the acceptance as it was handed round had lost some proportion of that £11,000, the irony of the note and the delicate humor of the address given—Malay street, Singapore, having a reputation that is redolent throughout the whole east—provoked a laugh as general as it was hearty, and the next morning all Kimberley was enjoying the heathen's parting joke.

That night a lady variety vocalist at the Theater Royal sent her audience into prolonged and vociferous raptures by singing the then famous patter song, "Keyser, Don't You Vant to Puy a Tog?" with appropriate local allusions, and then Kimberley proceeded to improve the occasion in its own way.

"No Dogs Admitted" was found painted in large black letters across the principal entrance to the De Beers compound. The corpse of a large Newfoundland dog sewed up in the skin of a small donkey and carefully packed in a neat case was sent by coach from Vryburg to the chief inspector "to be paid for on delivery." Printed notices were stuck up in conspicuous parts of the town to the effect that in future all dogs entering or leaving Kimberley would have to be skinned alive "by authority," and so on until the very sight of a dog in the street afflicted the worthy inspector and his subordinates with something like a new sort of rabies.

All this was humorous enough in its way as humor went then in camp, but for all that it was destined to lead up indirectly to a much darker tragedy than that which had closed the hitherto prosperous career of Mr. Augustus Lowenfeldt.

There was at that time in Kimberley a Yankee adventurer named Seth Salter, who was known to the detective department as an even more skillful I. D. B. than the late lamented Lowenfeldt. His ostensible means of livelihood were stock and share speculation, billiards and three card monte, varied by the occasional keeping of a faro bank, but though he did well at all these comparatively honest vocations he did not do well enough to satisfactorily account for a style of living and luxuriance of dissipation which could not be adequately supported on less than £5,000 a year at the most modest computation. There were only possible alternative hypotheses, debt or I. D. B., and he had no debts.

Now, Seth Salter was one of the most conspicuous of the humorists who, as he put it, made the department see dogs instead of snakes when the officials thereof had "got a bit too full," and before very long Inspector Lipinski publicly stated in the bar of the Queen's hotel that the next time Mr. Salter tried, either in person or by proxy, to run a parcel of illicit stones over the border to Freetown he would so arrange matters that by the time the circus was over the said Mr. Salter would have good reason to wish that he had been born a dog instead of a dirty, stock rigging, card swindling diamond thief.

As it chanced, just as the inspector was emphasizing the above statement, garnished with certain verbal frillings which need not be produced here, by slapping his four fingers on the bar counter Mr. Seth himself lounged into the room. The instant turning of the eyes of the company on to him told him as plainly as any words could have done that he was the subject of the inspector's eloquence. The crowd saw at a glance that he had taken in the situation, and every one expected a royal row, for Salter was known to have a temper as quick as his eye and his hand, and Lipinski, though only about half the Yankee's size, was grit all through.

Nothing less than immediate manslaughter was looked for, and the crowd began to scatter instinctively. But, somewhat to the disappointment of the more festive spirits, Salter strolled quietly up to the bar, took his place about three feet from the inspector and said with the most perfect good humor:

"Evenin, boss! Don't seem to be feelin quite good tonight. Hope no one's been tryin to sell the department another pup. Take a drink?"

Of course the crowd laughed. The double pointed gibe was irresistible, and the laugh did not improve the inspector's inward feelings. But he was far too well skilled in his business to show the slightest trace of irritation, so he replied, with an easy smile and the most perfect politeness of tone:

"Ah, good evening, Mr. Salter! I was just talking about you. No, thanks, the department is not buying any dog flesh just now, not even skins. As to your kind invitation—well, as I say, I was talking about you just now when you came in, and perhaps"—

If ever man uttered fighting words coolly and as if he meant them, Inspector Lipinski did just then. Seth Salter had never been known to take anything like that from any man without prompt and usually fatal reprisals. The crowd waited breathlessly and silently scattered a little more. But, no; the Yankee's hand did not even move toward his pistol pocket. There was just a little crinkling of the outer corners of his eyes, noticed only by the inspector and one or two others, but it vanished immediately, and there was no trace of anger in his voice—in fact, it seemed even more good humored than usual—as he replied:

"Don't take the trouble to say it again, boss. I've known your opinion of me for a long time, and now I've heard it. If you'd backed down, you might have heard somethin drop, but as you didn't I'm free to say that I've too much respect for your honorable department to think of removin its respected chief to another and may be less congenial sphere on account of an honestly expressed opinion—not me, sir! So, now, N. G. and name the poison. Will you join us, gentlemen?"

The crowd joined as one man, and under the circumstances the inspector could do nothing less than come in with them, but for all that he felt a trifle puzzled, though he took care not to show it.

After that the conversation became general and perfectly amicable, albeit dwelling mainly on the somewhat ticklish subject which possessed the chief interest for every one present, but as drinks multipled and lies got more complicated the inspector began to grow taciturn. Liquor has that effect on some natures, and his was possibly one of them.

At last the Yankee rallied him, quite good humoredly, on his lack of festivity, but rather unfortunately, as it seemed to the company, dragged in something about shortage on mine returns. That was too much for the inspector, and his long bottled up wrath suddenly flared out.

"Shortage, confound it! You're a nice one to talk about shortage, Mr. Salter. You know as well as I do that there's about £15,000 short of the month's average on De Beers and Kimberley returns, and you know a big sight better than I do where the stones have gone to. But we'll have you yet. You're wide and you're deep, but you're not quite the cleverst man on earth, and when we do get you"—

"Well, why'n thunder don't you, boss?" the Yankee laughed, with still undisturbed humor. "Say, now, I'll give you a pointer, as them sneaks of yours don't seem to have got on to it yet. I'm goin across to Freetown some time between now and Sunday on a little private business of my own. S'pose, now, I was takin that bit of shortage with me, what'll you lay against me gettin it through?"

"Ten years on the breakwater," snapped the inspector as he emptied his glass and set it down with a bang on the counter.

"No, you don't," laughed Salter. "That's for me to lay. Now, look here, I'll lay you ten years on the breakwater to £1,000—that's only £100 a year, and I think my time's a darned sight more valuable than that, so I'm givin you big odds—that I'll take that little lot through for all you can do to stop me."

As he spoke he suddenly pulled his left hand out of his trousers pocket and held it out to the inspector with the palm full of rough diamonds.

presence of mind nor his professional promptitude. Like lightning a revolver jumped out of his coat pocket, and as he covered the Yankee's heart with the muzzle he said sharply:

"That bluff won't work, Mr. Salter. I'll see your hand for £1,000 now. If you don't want a sudden death in your family, come along to the office and account for the possession of those diamonds."

To the added amazement of every one in the room, Seth Salter burst into a loud laugh and said, without moving out of the line of fire:

"Waal, boss, I did think you had a better eye for klips than that. D'you fancy I'd be such an almighty sucker as to—good Lord, man, can't you see they're all schlenters? There's no law against carryin them round, I reckon. There's plenty of good judges in the room to help you."

A very brief examination satisfied the disgusted inspector that the astute Yankee had once more turned the laugh against him. The things were schlenters, or "snide diamonds"—imitations made of glass treated with fluoric acid to give them the peculiar frosted appearance of the real rough stones—which were used chiefly for the purpose of swindling the new chums and greenhorns who were making their first essays in I. D. B.

Lipinski saw that he had "done him a shot in the eye," as the camp vernacular had it, and put up his revolver with what grace he could. The Yankee took his little triumph very quietly and asked the young lady behind the bar to oblige him with a sheet of note paper and an envelope. Then he wrapped up the false stones, put them into the envelope, stuck it down and asked the inspector to write his name across the flap, which he did, with a peculiar smile on his well shaped lips.

"Waal, now, that's a bet, eh?" said Salter as he put the packet in his pocket. "Now let's take another drink on it and then go home. It's gettin late, and I've got to pack. There's no knowin how soon I might have to start."

The glasses were filled again, and the Yankee clinked his against the inspector's with as much cordiality as though they had been the best of friends instead of, as they were now, hunter and quarry in a chase to the death.

The next day Seth Salter openly hired a Cape cart and team of four horses to take him to Bloemfontein, which is about 80 miles by road from Kimberley, and when the bargain was struck he privately informed the driver, an off colored Cape boy who had made more than one run of the kind, that if he would start at midnight instead of midday and go via Freetown instead of Boshoff he should have £100 for that part of the journey alone, which was not a bad fare for a drive of less than an hour. The boy jumped at the offer and within a couple of hours had accepted one of twice the amount, with half cash down, from Inspector Lipinski to pull up at a certain spot about 400 yards from the Free State border.

That afternoon Salter and Lipinski met, as if by chance, in the private bar of the Central, had a whisky and soda together and talked over the journey with apparently perfect friendliness and freedom. The inspector affected to treat the whole thing as a joke, a bit of spoof that he was far too wary a bird to be taken in by.

It wasn't likely that such an old hand as Salter would try to run anything but the schlenters after giving himself away as completely as he had done, at least not that time—some other time perhaps, and then he'd see. At the same time, it might after all be a clever and daring game of bluff, and so it would be as well to take precautions.

Altogether it was an interesting situation, especially for the inspector. If he caught Salter with nothing but the schlenters on him, he would be the laughing stock of the camp, and if he let him go through with something like a £15,000 packet of diamonds—which he felt perfectly certain he had planted somewhere—his reputation would be ruined and his dismissal certain. It was a desperate game, and Inspector Lipinski was prepared to take desperate measures to win.

A little before noon Salter changed his plans and said he would go the next day, and a few minutes before midnight he got into his cart just outside Besconsfield. The boy whipped up his team, and the cart rattled and jolted away at a quick trot toward the border. The night was dark, but fine, and as they spun along mile after mile without let or hindrance Salter began to think that, after all, Lipinski had funked the trap that he had laid for him and decided to risk letting the diamonds through rather than make a fool of himself by the capture of a lot of worthless schlenters.

The lights of Freetown were already glimmering in the distance across the veld. Ten minutes more would see him safe across the border with the most valuable packet of diamonds that had ever been run out of camp, and then—suddenly his strained ears caught the sound of a voice in the distance, followed by the clinking of horses' bits and the ominous "click click" of rifle locks.

He was sitting, as usual, on the seat behind the driver, and just as the boy turned round and whispered in a frightened way, "P'lice, baas, better pull up, eh? Might get shot," he thrust the barrel of his revolver under his nose and said in a low but very businesslike tone:

"You yellow swine, you've sold me! Now you whip them horses up and make 'em go for all they're worth. By thunder, you shall drive to Freetown or glory tonight, for if I see you pull those reins I'll blow the top of your ugly head off, just so sure as you'll never see the other side of Jordan. Whip up now! You've got to get through or go home, I tell you."

The road just here ran for some distance through a lot of broken ground and surface workings, so there was no chance of making a detour to avoid the mounted police whose moving forms Salter could now see dimly in the distance. The terrified Cape boy, feeling the cold revolver muzzle in the nape of his neck, lashed his horses into a gallop. The shapes on ahead grew more and more distinct, and presently there rang out the short, sharp order:

"Halt, or we'll shoot!"

"Halt, and I'll shoot!" Salter hissed into the driver's ear, and the cart sped on at a gallop.

New mounted forms seemed to rush out of the darkness and close round. Meanwhile the lights of Freetown were getting quite near now. A few minutes more, and crack, crack, crack, went the rifles to right and left and in front. The off leader reared up with a shrill neigh and then pitched on to his head, with the others and the cart on top of him.

"Well, gentlemen, may I ask what is the meanin of this outrage on an unoffendin traveler?" said Salter in a cool but angry voice as the police rode up.

"That'll do, Mr. Salter," said Inspector Lipinski's voice out of the darkness. "The bluff's played out. Pass up with the klips and come along quietly. Don't shoot, for that's murder, and you're covered three times over."

The Yankee climbed down out of the cart with an audible chuckle, walked quietly to Lipinski's stirrup and held up his hand, saying:

"Ah, it's you, inspector, is it? Sorry I've brought you a booby hunt like this and given the department a horse to pay for. Klips? Waal, I did hear of some goin across last night inside a Kaffir dog, but you've struck the wrong shebang for stones tonight; true's death, you have! But you can search and see if you like."

The inspector took no notice either of the Yankee's extended hand or his speech. He just covered Salter with a revolver and ordered his men to light their lanterns and search everything thoroughly. They obeyed, and after a 20 minute investigation, during which they employed every device that their ingenuity and experience could suggest on the cart, clothing and person of Salter, who submitted like a lamb, and even on the horses, they were forced to confess that they had drawn a blank.

"Waal, boss, are you satisfied that I ain't sellin you a pup this time?" said Salter as he finished remaking his toilet, for he had stripped to the buff with the true hardihood of a man who is playing for a big stake and means to win.

Not so much as a schlenter had been found, and Mr. Inspector Lipinski felt that he had got himself into a very nasty place. He had stopped a seemingly honest traveler, shot one of the horses and submitted him to the indignity of a personal search. Visions of his lost bet, of a civil action for damages before a jury that might probably be I. D. B.'s to a man, of heavy damages and of the storm of ridicule that would overwhelm him at the end flashed in quick succession past his mental gaze, and, being only human after all, he decided to temporize.

"Mother of Moses, what a lot!"

"I'm out, Mr. Salter!" he said, with the best assumption of cordiality that he could muster. "I'm dead out, and it's for you to call the game. I'm not satisfied, but I know when I'm licked, and I am this time. What's it to be?"

"Waal," drawled the Yankee, "seein's how you've pulled me up here, shot a horse, cut up the fit out and made me undress in this almighty cold, I think the least you and your fellows can do is to come across to Mike Maguire's shanty yonder and take a drink. You bet I want one pretty bad. What do you say?"

Under the peculiar circumstances there appeared to be only one thing to say, and that was "Yes." In fact, Inspector Lipinski thought it a remarkably good get out. Besides, a miracle might happen even yet, so he said "Yes" and followed it up with a really handsome apology.

The result was that within a very few minutes the dead horse was unharnessed and pulled out of the road, the other leader hitched on to the end of the pole, and the whole party trotted across the border toward Mike Maguire's store and shanty. On the way Salter roasted the Cape boy unmercifully and then not only consoled him but mystified him considerably by telling him that he should have his money after all.

In spite of the wrong that had been done him, Salter insisted on standing the first round of drinks when the party at length stood up against Maguire's bar. The drinks were duly raised and lowered, and while Lipinski was ordering the next round he said very quietly:

"By the way, boss, about those stones. P'raps, as you've come all this way, you might like to see them. Here they are!"

While he was speaking he had pulled the Cape boy toward him and thrust his hand into his trousers pocket. He pulled out the identical envelope which he had asked for in the bar of the Queen's hotel, with the inspector's signature still written across the flap. He handed it over to the barkeeper and said:

"When the chief of the department in Kimberely does do it, he does it to rights. Just you open that, Mike, and tell me if you ever saw a prettier lot."

Mr Maguire looked at the signature, glanced curiously at the astounded inspector, then opened the envelope, unfolded the bulky packet that was in it and disclosed about 50 rough diamonds, the sight of which made even his experienced eyes water. Orange and blue, green, rose and pure white, they glittered most tantalizingly in the light of the paraffin lamp which hung above the bar counter.

"Mother of Moses, what a lot! Shure they're the pick of the mines and worth a king's ransom any day!" said Mr. Maguire in a somewhat awe stricken tone as he gingerly turned the priceless stones over and over with the end of his thick forefinger. "Here, take them back, mister, before I'm tempted beyond the endurance of human flesh and blood by the sight of the darlin's, God bless their pretty sparkles!"

So saying, honest Mike, knowing that his own reward was to come, handed them back to Salter, who pocketed them in a handful as he turned to the almost paralysed inspector and his men and said:

"No, boss, they're not schlenters this time—a little steam and a little skill, you know. Waal, here's to you, and now I'll just take your good-for [the South African form of I. O. U.] for that £1,000, Mr. Lipinski, and then we'll say good night. I'm not comin back to Kimberley till I've done my business down in Port Elizabeth. Chin chin!"

It took all the inspector's self control to enable him to rise to the occasion, but he did it. He took his licking like a man and a sportsman, and his subordinates and the Cape boy just grinned and drank their liquors, for, after all, I. D. B. is but a gamble, and the gods look sometimes this way and sometimes that. The game had been smartly played, and they looked upon the winner rather with admiration than with enmity.

That round of drinks was drunk and then another and another, and then—alas for the weakness of the best balanced human nature!—Mr. Seth Salter, with a confidence born of the fullness of his triumph, left the barroom with the diamonds in his pocket and went out into the night to see his discomfited friends off on their homeward journey. Exactly what happened during the next quarter of an hour was never known. Distant sounds of shouts and shots reached the waiting ears of Mr. Maguire, but he knew his business and quietly bolted the door, remarking to himself the while:

"Smart as he is, it's meself that's fearin he's put his fut into ut this time. What a hairless juggins he was not to lave the sparklers where they were safe when he had them there. Well, well, life's a gamble anyhow, and so's death, too, sometimes. I hope they haven't hurt him beyant recovery."

Shortly before 3 o'clock that morning Inspector Lipinski and his merry men escorted the three horse Cape cart into Kimberley. The horse that was lying dead on the field was paid for to its full value, and the driver got his £200, coupled with a private intimation to the effect that if he ever opened his mouth on the subject of that night's doings 50 lashes and five years as an illicit diamond runner would be the least that he could expect. Inspector Lipinski slept the balance of the night out with a £15,000 parcel of diamonds under his pillow, and the next day there was no one in Kimberley who had anything to say to him on the subject of double skinned dogs or the selling of pups.

Of course there were many in camp who would have given a good deal to know what had become of Mr. Seth Salter, but that is part of quite a different story.

THE END.

War Introduces the Cent In California.

Now the war with Spain is doing with the 1 cent piece what retail traders and the postal department failed to do. The measure which congress framed for raising revenues with which to carry on the war makes it necessary for every one engaged in business to handle the copper cent. The telegraph cannot be used without affixing a cent revenue stamp on the written message, and no check can pass over the counter of a bank and be honored without similar treatment. This war measure has thus forced on the Pacific coast without opposition a coin which it would have taken years of coaxing to persuade it to accept by any ordinary process. And it is here now as a fixture. —San Francisco Chronicle.

Forbidden Foods In Cuba.

Military surgeons familiar with Cuba say the best army ration there is bread or hard biscuit, beans, potatoes, beef and mutton. The only beverage recommended is coffee, not too strong. Alcohol in any form is forbidden. Salt meats should be sparingly used. The native Cubans and Porto Ricans drink coffee habitually, and, though not large, they are well built, agile and healthy. —Exchange.

Roselle	18	8	903
Park	16	6	905
Westfield	13	12	915
Elizabeth	10	11	885
Newark Bay C. C.	11	13	895
N. J. A. C.	7	17	844
Cranford Casino	4	14	811

The bowling team of the Roselle Casino has been rather handicapped this year owing to a lack of unity among the members of the Casino. The schedule of games was arranged late in the fall, but the entertainment committee of the Casino has completely ignored it and arranged its entertainments without regard to the plans of the bowling section. In consequence a number of games, regularly scheduled, have been necessarily postponed.

One of the most exciting series of games in the Central Journal League will be rolled on the Park Club alleys a week from Monday evening when the team from the Roselle Casino, now in the lead, will roll three games with the Parks. It will be the next game to take place in this city. The Parks will put up their best men on that occasion and quite a little enthusiasm among the members of the club is expected that night. Bowling is standing well in popular favor at the Park Club now, and each championship game, rolled on the local alleys, has quite a number of spectators out to watch it.

The results of the games that have been rolled in the Central Journal Bowling League during this week have all combined to the advantage of the Park Club and its team that is now in the race for championship honors. The defeat of Westfield by the New Jersey Athletic Club spoiled the chances of the former team for second place. Then the Parks took three games from the Elizabeth Club, the Park's principal rival in the race for second place. Of course, the Parks haven't any easy thing in the League, but they have obtained a fair lead that good steady work will retain. The Parks have played a number more games than the team from the Roselle Casinos, who now lead in the League, and the Parks are quite confident that when the Roselle team plays the remaining games the Parks will not be far behind.

The bowling team of the Roselle Casino, now leaders in the Central Journal Bowling League, have evidently started on a downward way. When the New Jersey Athletic Club team, which stands unpleasantly near the wrong end of the list, can win two out of three from Roselle on the latter's alleys, then it is time to believe that something has happened. After the wonderful showing of the Roselle team at the start of the league the present appearance must be disheartening indeed to them. It gives the Park Club team renewed hopes for if Roselle falls down from the lead the Parks are ready and waiting to step into their place. The two teams will meet into this city Monday night and the result of these games is going to be quite decisive. Its a chance for the Parks to gain renown and glory for a clean score would leave Roselle ahead by only a very little margin that the result of a single game in the future would turn either one way or the other.

BASKET BALL.

Next Monday will see the opening of a series of games between the basket ball teams of the Plainfield and Summit Y. M. C. A.'s. There is considerable rivalry between the two teams but there really isn't much doubt as to the final result. Plainfield has improved so much since she last played Summit that Plainfield will probably find a comparatively easy thing. The first game is to be played at Summit. The date for the return game in Plainfield is not yet arranged.

Since the girls of the Plainfield High School have received several challenges to matches, it has been necessary to arrange for a school or "varsity" team to compete in these games. The girls have selected Walter L. Long as the school coach and he will accompany them to all games that are to be played out of town. Long, as captain of the Plainfield Y. M. C. A. team, is particularly fitted for the position. The team is nearly completed and its formation will be definitely settled on in a few days.

The attempt to test the abilities of the young women of the Plainfield High School against the outside world at basket ball was a failure. Yesterday afternoon was the time set for the proposed match between the teams from the High School and the Adelphi Academy, of Brooklyn, at the latter's gymnasium. The arrangements as set forth by the Brooklyn team were very indefinite at best and Miss Bessie Fitz Randolph, secretary of the Girls' Athletic Association of the High School, wrote to learn more facts. The answer did not come until the last moment. The Adelphi Academy girls utterly refused to play a return game in Plainfield and also refused to pay any of the expenses of the visiting team. It was the wish of all the Plainfield team that a return game be played. Under the circumstances the game was called off and there is little prospect now that the teams will ever meet. This is to be regretted as it would be interesting to watch just what showing the Plainfield girls would make against an experienced team. It is to be hoped that the proposed match with the girls' academy at Montclair will be more satisfactorily arranged.

fense. Mr. Hand's lawyer stated in his opening that his client would never have brought the suit if his character had not been assailed, and that he took this way of justifying himself in the eyes of the people. There is no doubt but what the defendants will appeal the case.

PUPILS HEARD OF NOTED MEN.

Former Mayor Place Related Interesting Personal Experiences.

Former Mayor Charles Place, of the borough, gave a very interesting address yesterday morning before the scholars in the Borough Public High School, on the subject of "Noted Men Whom I Have Met." The lecturer commenced with Martin VanBuren and followed the line of Presidents down to President McKinley, and about each one he had something of interest to relate in connection with the meeting of each. Incidentally he spoke of other noted men whom he had met. The talk was listened to attentively by all, and when concluded everyone was sorry that the time was up. Perhaps another opportunity will be given to hear Mr. Place, and there is no doubt but what the scholars and teachers would be pleased.

OFFICERS GAVE A DINNER.

Gesang and Turn Verein Members Treated to a Spread.

The newly-elected officers of the Gesang and Turn Verein gave a bountiful spread last evening in the hall on Somerset street to the members of the society. The affair was a very quiet one and was attended by about one hundred members. The menu was complete in every particular and everyone enjoyed it. After the inner man was filled the balance of the evening was devoted to speeches and songs. The new officers made a few remarks, as did also the members of the society. The singing section of the society was present and rendered several fine selections. Before the gathering broke up everyone voted that the new officers are a jolly set of fellows.

Story of a Slave.

To be bound hand and foot for years by the chains of disease is the worst form of slavery. George D. Williams, of Manchester, Mich., tells how such a slave was made free. He says: "My wife has been so helpless for five years that she could not turn over in bed alone. After using two bottles of Electric Bitters, she is wonderfully improved and able to do her own work." This supreme remedy for female diseases quickly cures nervousness, sleeplessness, melancholy, headache, backache, fainting and dizzy spells. This miracle working medicine is a godsend to weak, sickly, run down people. Every bottle guaranteed. Only 50 cents. Sold by L. W. Randolph, Druggist.

ONE HALF THE INSURANCE PAID.

The Travelers' Accident Insurance Company settled their claim today with Mrs. Robert Randolph, of Elmwood place, by paying her one-half of the amount for which her husband was insured. W. V. Mundy, the agent, paid the claim today.

It will be remembered that Mr. Randolph died very suddenly and that after several examinations the physicians refused to sign papers stating that death was due to an accident. The company stood willing to pay the full claim, $2,000, when the proper proof was given. The physicians would not give the proof, hence the liability of the company ceased. However, the company very willingly agreed to meet the claimant half way and today presented Mrs. Randolph with a check for $1,000

Mrs. Randolph is very well satisfied. The company states that on proper proof within the next eleven months they will pay the balance, $1,000, if the physicians will attest to the fact that death was caused by an accident.

C. F. Paulus, representing Landis & Hughes, is delivering the birdseye views of Plainfield and North Plainfield to those who subscribed for them. There are at present twenty five patients at Muhlenberg Hospital, all of whom are on the road to recovery. There is not one real critical case among them.

A CLOCK FOR THE DEAF.

The Pupils' Attention Called Hourly By It to the School Programme.

One of the interesting items of the State expense charges for July, says the St. Paul Globe, appears in the current lists of the State school for the deaf at Faribault. It is an item of $252 for a clock, which is remarkable in more elements than in that of its expensive character.

But this mechanism is certainly a wonder, for it is so arranged that it calls the pupils' attention hourly to the school programme and the calendar, in spite of the fact that they are all deaf and the usual alarms do not affect them in the least.

Of course one clock would not be visible to all the pupils, so there are ten secondary clocks, with 12-inch dials, which tell the teachers and scholars who cannot see the main clock what class in mathematics is now due to count up fractions on its fingers, or when the scholars in English grammar will write their lesson leaflets.

KEEP SNAKES AS PETS.

Ten-foot Reptiles Used to Drive Away the Rats from Houses.

A gentleman who has been traveling in Brazil states that there is a pet snake in nearly every house in that country. He says: "They keep them just as we do cats or dogs, and, indeed, for much the same purpose, using them to kill the rats at night. The snakes are of a species of boa from ten to fifteen feet long, and are perfectly harmless to mankind, while they are quite affectionate and, like cats, become attached to the house where they are kept. These snakes are sold in the markets.

A scientist, to whom I spoke of these snakes, told me that no snakes are really dangerous to man. He said that never had a snake attack a man unless the man first attacked it. The reptile is defensive, but not offensive, and has no desire to pick a quarrel. But if you tread on a snake the thing cannot know that your intentions are not inimical to your welfare. So I always avoid snakes.—Chicago Times Herald.

NEW YORK TRIBUNE.

Recognized as a Leader, of Public Opinion.

The N. Y. Tribune offers to the public a newspaper which is absolutely representative of the best opinion of the Republican party on all national issues. It is dignified, strong, complete and patriotic.

The Daily Tribune is $10 a year. The Weekly, $1, but can be obtained, in conjunction with various local papers, on more advantageous terms. The Semi-Weekly is $2 a year.

A Newspaper and Magazine Both.

The Semi-Weekly Tribune, printed Tuesdays and Fridays, is one of the best general newspapers in the country for a wide-awake farmer, professional man, merchant, manufacturer or mechanic. It saves the necessity of buying other newspapers. It supplements admirably a local daily; many people take it in place of one.

The agricultural page will contain this year, in addition to regular features, a weather review, many descriptions of the actual results obtained on small farms, and other matters of particular use to gardeners, fruit-growers, farmers, dairymen and live-stock raisers.

Stories of the War With Spain

During each week the reader will find a column of "Questions and Answers," letters from correspondents in London and Paris; a page devoted to science and mechanics; home interests and other things which interest women, including the "Tribune Sunshine Society;" some good games of checkers; a series of thrilling stories of actual experiences in the war with Spain, written by soldiers and sailors; and advance information of new enterprises of importance to manufacturers, mechanics and business men.

Market Reports the Standard.

The markets will be kept up to their present high standard. It is the intention of The Tribune at all times to add to them whatever additions will render them of greater value. The finest compliment paid to The Semi-Weekly Tribune is the fact that it enjoys the subscriptions of a large number of merchants, dairyman and farmers who disagree with its political sentiments, but who find its accurate market reports essential to the proper conduct of their business. It is always safe to look at The Tribune before one buys or sells country produce. Once a week there is a special market article on one particular topic.

Pictorial Supplement.

With Friday's number there is an illustrated Supplement, 20 to 24 pages, printed on specially fine paper, full of delightful reading, enlivened with from thirty to fifty half-tone or other pictures. Every reader admits that this Supplement is equal to a magazine in its contents, and better than a magazine in being quicker to lay before its readers perfectly fresh discussions of matters which are attracting attention. Sample copies of Friday's issue will be sent free on application. The Supplement contains two pages of humor; a fascinating letter from Ex-Attache, a gentleman who has served at many of the great courts of the world, and who speaks of kings, emperors and noblemen from actual knowledge; book reviews; short stories; dramatic and musical criticisms; the fine work of great architects and artists; letters from abroad; talk on scientific subjects, new warships, etc.; gossip by pungent writers; and, in fact, the whole range of higher topics in which intelligent men and women are deeply interested, and a profusion of beautiful illustrations. The Supplement is the cream of the whole week's work in the Tribune office.

Clubs

Any reader who may find it convenient to raise a club of subscribers for The Semi-Weekly Tribune is invited to do so, and to send to this office for sample copies, etc.

TERMS THAT TROLLEY OFFERS TO ROSELLE.

HEARING GIVEN BY THE OFFICIALS OF ROSELLE BOROUGH.

Stipulations Proposed by the Street Railway Promoters are About the Same as Given to the Other Towns Along the Route—Rate and Fares to Various Points Which Will be Charged.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Roselle, January 26.—The Elizabeth and Westfield Street Railway Company, which is composed of the same capitalists as the Plainfield Street Railway Company, applied for a franchise through this place at a meeting of the Council Tuesday night. The meeting was largely attended and much interest evinced

Col. E. W. Hine, of the railway company, addressed the meeting, telling of the advantages the trolley would make for this township and the surrounding country. He then presented an ordinance which read the same as those already passed by the Committees of Cranford, Fanwood and Westfield. He also stated that if the franchise was granted the road would be in operation by July 1st of the present year. The tax to be paid the borough for the franchise is to be from January 1st, 1990, to January 1st, 1905, $100 a mile; from 1905 to 1910, 3 per cent. of the gross receipts with a minimum payment of $250 per mile per year, and for each year thereafter 5 per cent. of the gross receipts with a minimum payment of $250 a mile per year. The fares will be 5 cents to Cranford, Westfield and Elizabeth, 8 cents to Fanwood and 10 cents to Plainfield. The applause which followed showed that the people were in favor of the trolley.

T. O. Mone, ex-mayor of the borough, presented a petition signed by fifty residents of the "gridiron" on that part of the town bounded by the Central Railway, Locust street, Grove street and 7th avenue, protesting against the granting of the franchise on the plea that the road is not needed. The taxable property of the signers of this petition amounts to about $275,000. E. C. Hill also spoke against the franchise. He brought up the point that a law existed in New Jersey forbidding a trolley road to parallel another within 1,000 feet and that if this road went through it would kill the boulevard road. Joseph Goodenough, a property owner on the proposed route, favored it. Dr. T. F. Tiernam appeared before the council and stated that P. Sanford Ross, one of, if not the largest, property owner and tax payer in the borough had authorized him to say that he was heartily in favor of the trolley and would give consents in front of all his property.

The franchise was referred to the ordinance committee, they to report at the next regular meeting. The franchise was again taken up and accorded a first reading.

In an interview with The Press representative, A. A. Gaddis stated that the work on the main line from Plainfield to Elizabeth, probably starting at the Plainfield end, would begin in the spring. In regard to the cross town line which the company proposes to run from Rahway to Springfield, connecting the Pennsylvania Railroad, the Lehigh Valley Railroad, the Central Railroad and the Delaware Lackawanna & Western Railway, which will run through Westfield township, Mr. Gaddis said that on Mountain avenue, where most of the opposition was, the company had consents from the majority of the property owners, and that the company would make application for a franchise at the meeting of the Westfield Committee on Friday evening.

DAMAGE BY THE STORM.

Culverts Stopped Up and Water Flooded the treets

The heavy rain Tuesday night did quite a little damage to the streets here and there around the city, but none that could not be repaired in a few hours. Culverts at Carlton and Putnam avenues, Fifth street and Watchung avenue, Fifth and Richmond streets, and Front street and Farragut avenue, were stopped up by debris, and in some cases the water backed up and flooded the streets.

Men were out all day yesterday and by noon a great part of the water had been drained off. The water washed a big hole in the roadbed on Clinton avenue, near the old Coriell hat shop, and a lantern was hung out there last night. It will be repaired today.

SPOKE FOR THE JUSTICES

JUDGE VAN HOVENBERG TALKS WITH THE GOVERNOR.

Justices Want a Limited Jurisdiction in Attachment Cases—They Would Like a Fifty Cent Fee Restored Also.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Trenton, Jan. 26.—Judge Martin H. R. Van Hovenberg, president of the Passaic County Constables and Justices' Association and also of the State organization, has had a talk with Governor Voorhees in relation to the appointment of a commission to draft bills for presentation to the Legislature, favorable to the interests of the constables and Justices. The members of the commission are to be named by the association.

The association is desirous of securing the consent of the District courts to get a limited jurisdiction in attachment cases. Most of the people who desire to get out attachments want them issued at night time, after the closing hours of the Distric courts, and if the Justices had the power to issue them they could be secured at all hours. The constables and Justices say that the majority of people would be benefited if a law was passed giving the Justices the right to issue attachments, as many are unable to go to the District courts on account of the expense incurred.

Judge Van Hovenberg recited the above statements to the Governor. He told the Executive that it was not the intention to have a bill drafted for presentation at the present session of the Legislature. It would take some time to draft the bill, but the idea is to give the commission ample time to get suggestions and have it in proper shape for the next Legislature.

On behalf of the Passaic County Association Judge Van Hovenberg requested the Governor to use his influence in restoring the fifty-cent fee to the constables for attending the examination of prisoners before a Justice.

THE END CAME QUICKLY.

SUDDEN DEATH OF A PROMINENT WESTFIELD CITIZEN.

N. B. Gardner, a Former Official of the Town and a Well-known New York Business Man, Passed Away Last Night.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Westfield, Jan. 26.—Nathaniel B. Gardner, aged sixty-one years, died suddenly last evening at his home on Westfield avenue of heart failure. He had been ill about one week with the grip and was confined to his home. Late yesterday afternoon he left his bedroom and walked down stairs. He was walking upstairs to his room after supper and when he reached the second floor he gasped, staggered and fell backward to the first floor. Members of the family hastened to his side and carried him to his room, where he expired in a few minutes.

Mr. Gardner was associated in business with the large bridge building firm of J. B. & J. N. Cornell, of New York. He has been a resident of this place for eleven years. From 1891-94 he was a member of the Township Committee, and vice-president of the Westfield fire department and a member of the Empire Engine Company and their representative to the department. He was a member of Fireside Council, Royal Arcanum, the Westfield Athletic Club, Exempt Firemen's Association and the Firemen's Relief Association. He was a public spirited citizen and always had the interest of this place at heart. His native place was New York.

A widow and an unmarried daughter survives him. The funeral services will be held from the house tomorrow afternoon at 3:30 o'clock. Interment will be in Greenwood Cemetery, Brooklyn.

Dr. Knott intends visiting some of the English veterinary colleges during his stay in England.

FIFTEEN INDICTMENTS.

GRAND JURY REPORTED TO THE COURT YESTERDAY.

The Case of Rabbi Segal Was Thrown Out—Summit Liquor License Complaint Also Dismissed by the Jury.

(Special to The Daily Press)

Elizabeth Jan. 26—The Union County Grand Jury for the January term came into court yesterday with fifteen additional indictments, eighteen in all. Foreman Woodruff announced that the jurors had finished their labors and they were discharged.

The charges made by Dr. John Max Reiner, of South Broad street, this city, against Rabbi Joseph Segal, of Washington street, Newark; the Rabbi's two sons, Louis Norton, of Newark, and Philip and Samuel Cohen, of Elizabeth, for forcibly breaking into the Reiner home and carrying away Rose Segal, the Rabbi's daughter, were all dismissed. The jurors took the ground that had it been shown that the young woman was of age, then the men who took her out of Reiner's house would have been liable to indictment, but as this was not proven the jurors considered Miss Segal was still under her father's control, and he was justified in resorting to extraordinary measures to regain control of his daughter. This ends the episode so far as the Union County Court is concerned.

The Grand Jury also threw out the complaint made by Anthony Comstock's detectives against John J. Shea, of Summit. Shea was accused of selling liquor Sundays. A couple of indictments were found against residents of Summit who were accused of selling without a license. Shea, whose license application was held up by Judge Vail until he could hear from the Grand Jury, will now, it is believed, be granted a renewal of his license Saturday.

Prior to completing their labors the jurors visited the county jail and inspected the county buildings. They passed resolutions commending Warden Dodd and Matron Dodd for their efficiency in the conduct of the jail and maintenance of the county property. These resolutions will be sent to the Board of Freeholders.

A PRACTICAL EDUCATION.

Interest grows apace in the subscription contest of The Daily Press. The prizes offered are something well worth working for and the contestants realize the fact. Practical education is valuable capital for the young man of the present day when he starts in business.

The course in bookkeeping at the Plainfield Business College, which is offered as first prize in the contest, is particularly advantageous to a young man or young woman about to enter in a commercial career. The Sadler system of practical bookkeeing, the one used at the Plainfield Business College, is conceded by practical accountants and business men to be the educational hit of the nineteenth century. It requires some time and labor to go through the system but when completed, the student has a knowledge of the subject that will fit him to do excellent work for himself and for others.

New Barber Shop.

William Randolph, who has been employed at Brown & Hill's tonsorial parlors on North avenue, has decided to open an establishment of his own. He has rented the barber shop on Park avenue, near Second street, formerly occupied by Butler, and has opened a shop there. He will take charge personally the first of next week. Meanwhile his assistant, Harry Dorsey, is running the place.

There is Plenty of Time

Three Valuable Prizes

That are offered to the winners. The Daily Press does not need a great deal of "boosting" to impress its good qualities on prospective subscribers.

An Unlimited Field

Is at hand to work on, and a little effort and perseverance will put any contestant, at this time, up in the front rank.

PAY FOR ELECTION OFFICIALS IS FIXED.

PROVIDES FOR PLAINFIELD.

No Opposition to the Measure, and Senator Reed Says it Will be Passed by Senate at an Early Date—Commissioners Appointed to Inquire Into Project of Consolidating Hudson's Towns.

(Special to The Daily Press)

Trenton, Jan. 26—The first bill to pass the Assembly yesterday morning was House Bill No 1, which was introduced by Assemblyman Roger F. Murray, of Plainfield. Prior to the joint-meeting of the State Legislature yesterday, both Houses held short business sessions at which several bills were passed and several others introduced.

Assemblyman Murray's bill, which had the honor of being the first introduced and the first passed by the House, refers to the payment of election officers in municipalities of less than 40,000 inhabitants. While a general law, it was really drawn to settle the dispute between the city of Plainfield and the election officers in that city.

According to the old law, the election officers were paid $7 each at each municipal election, $4 for the work done election day and $3 for the duties on registration day. The bill fathered by Assemblyman Murray provides a payment of $15 each, of which $10 is for election day services and $5 for duties on registration day. The new arrangement is satisfactory to the Plainfield election officers who believe that the old amount of remuneration was not sufficient.

The bill was called up and Mr. Murray made a short speech explaining its import and telling the advantages. There were no other speakers. A vote was then called for and the bill was easily passed. President of the Senate Reed says that it will be the first of the House bills to pass the Senate. There will be no objections to its provisions in the upper house of the Legislature.

The next bill passed was House No. 17, authorizing the Governor to appoint a commission of eleven to inquire into the expediency of consolidating the various municipalities of Hudson county, the Mayors of these municipalities each to appoint a member of the commission.

In the Senate the first bill passed was Senate No. 1, authorizing an additional issue of bonds to the amount of $250,000 for the erection of county asylum buildings. The next bill passed was Senate No. 2, which regulates the apportionment of a township's liabilities where a borough or boroughs are set off. This simply cures a defect in an existing law.

Prior to the opening of the session the joint committee on the inauguration met, audited all its bills, found the total cost to be $2,400, and adopted a resolution thanking John H. Bonnell for the efficient assistance rendered the committee in connection with the inauguration of Governor Voorhees.

An Assemblyman from Passaic intends introducing a bill into the Assembly this winter that is likely to arouse a great storm of wrath from the insurance men all over the State. The bill is similar to a law now on the statue books of New Hampshire and commonly known as the complete insurance law. It provides that in case of the loss of a building, or anything else insured against fire, the owner can collect the full amount of the policy and not the value of the building, hence, if a building, worth $1,000, is insured for $5,000, the owner can collect $5,000 from the insurance company should the building be destroyed by fire.

As chairman of the committee on banks and insurance, Assemblyman Murray will have charge of the bill and is quoted as saying that there is little or no chance of it ever being passed. He is personally opposed to it.

$90 WATCH WAS STOLEN

TAKEN FROM ALONZO BROKAW'S VEST HANGING ON A PEG.

Electrician Alonzo Brokaw looks sad these days. But wouldn't anyone who has just lost a $90 gold watch and chain by theft look sad? It is enough to try one's cheerfulness and confidence in the honesty of mankind. It happened this way, you know.

For more than a year Mr. Brokaw has been in the practice of hanging his vest on a peg in the electric light station on Madison avenue. Inside of a pocket of the vest there has always been the highly-prized gold watch and chain. No harm had ever befell the chronometer until the other day, and then it fell into someone's hand that was decidedly out of place.

Monday there was a large number of new workmen around the electric light station, and when Mr. Brokaw went to put on his vest he found the watch missing. Some one had stolen it—who, the owner did not know. He reported the theft to Chief Grant and the latter had an interview with a number of men who were working about the place. But to no avail, as the watch did not show up.

Today the Chief sent out an alarm for the recovery of the stolen watch. The case number is 247,734, and the number of the works is 4,071,459.

FUNERAL OF MISS LUNGER.

Rev. Cornelius Schenck, Ph. D., Officiated at the Services.

The funeral services of the late Miss Hattie Lunger were held from the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. V. Lunger, of Manning avenue, Tuesday evening last. Rev. Cornelius Schenck, Ph. D., pastor of Trinity Reformed church, officiated, and spoke words of comfort to the bereaved ones. During the services Miss Etta Krymer and Horace J. Martin, Jr., sang several selections. The floral display was beautiful and consisted of many bunches of roses. Those who served as pall-bearers were H. J. Martin, Jr., Fred Ross, Charles M. Dolliver and Hiram Humes. Interment was at White House yesterday. A short service was held at the grave.

TOP OF PIPE BLOWN OFF.

Peculiar Accident to a Central Railroad Coach.

A peculiar accident happened to one of the passenger coaches on the Central Railroad last evening. The car belonged to Conductor Dodwell's train, and was standing on the siding at Dunellen. During the night the steam pipe running through the corner of the car congealed and it was not known until this morning when the man who takes charge of the cars was about looking after them previous to their being arranged to go out. The steam was turned into the pipe from the other pipes in the car, with the result of causing a small explosion. The top of the pipe was blown off and caused quite a little damage. It required some little time to fix the damage, but the car was repaired so that it could be used.

Received One Proposition.

Protective Conclave, No. 505, I. O. H., met last evening and received one proposition. At the next meeting, February 8th, the Conclave will receive a visit from District Deputy Sip, of Newark, and the members of the local lodge will give a turkey supper. A full attendance of the members is urged.

Judgment Against Secret Society.

Judgment was rendered today in Justice Moffett's court against Martha Washington Council, D. of L., for $20. Charles Hand rented the cycle academy to the council in August, for $25. They paid $5 down, at the signing of the contract, leaving a balance of $20, which Mr. Hand sued for.

THE CHURCH SETTLED.

REV. B. W. HAND FINALLY SECURES $70 THAT HE CLAIMED.

Raising of the Money Accompanied by a Touching Scene in First Church of Christ—Rev. Mr. Cleaver's Advice.

After several months of ill-feeling, which has threatened at times to disrupt the society, and which Tuesday culminated in a trial in court, the hatchet has been buried between the First Church of Christ and Rev. B. W Hand.

This reconciliation took place last night at a meeting at which tears flowed and promises were made. Rev. J. B. Cleaver, of Bound Brook, the church's original pastor, took charge of the meeting, at which it was expected he would preach. But instead he gave a talk in which he reviewed the past history of the church, and painted in glowing colors what a Christianlike spirit hovered over them in the days gone by. Before he had finished speaking the people all over the house were moved to tears, and even the speaker himself sobbed audibly.

Reference was made to the trouble that had just been aired in the court, and Mr. Cleaver said that the debt of $70 should be paid by the church. This was seconded by church members all over the house, and one after another arose and offered to donate sums of money for that purpose. Mr. Cleaver gave $15; John Goodwin, $10; W. C. Smith, $10; S. P. Huffman, $5; William Lunger, $5, and by the help of others the total amount, $70, was raised and given to Mr. Hand.

The order had been given to appeal the case to a higher court, and notice of appeal was given yesterday morning. The notice was given to Mr. Hand's counsel yesterday afternoon, but now the matter is settled to the satisfaction of all parties.

CHURCH WOMEN SOCIAL.

SEVENTH-DAY BAPTIST EVENT AT MRS. CHARLES POTTER'S HOME.

Given Under the Auspices of the Women's Society for Christian Work—Excellent Musical Programme Was Rendered.

There was a large gathering of the members and friends of the Women's Society for Christian Work of the Seventh day Baptist church at the home of Charles Potter, of West Seventh street, last evening. A social was given by that organization and Mrs. Potter kindly offered the use of her beautiful home for the affair.

A musical programme was rendered during the evening in the music room. Mrs. D. E. Titsworth was in charge. The programme included several selections by a double quartette composed of Mrs. D. E. Titsworth, Mrs. F. T. Clawson, Mrs. George Homan, Miss Elizabeth Allis, Miss Lena Tomlinson, Mrs. J. E. Kimball, Mrs. W. C. Hubbard and Miss Nan Randolph. Miss Jessie Utter acted as accompanist.

There were also violin solos by Mrs. Violet Truell Johnston, accompanied by Mrs. W. C. Hubbard, and two popular songs by little Master George Rogers, who was accompanied by his father, George T. Rogers. This youthful soloist, who is only six years old, stood on top of a stool and sang "She Was Bred in Old Kentuck," in a very effective fashion.

At the conclusion of the entertainment refreshments were served in the dining room which was prettily decorated with pink and white roses. Mrs. Henry M. Maxson was in charge assisted by a number of the young women of the church. Coffee, lemonade and cake were served. The social was one of the most successful ever given by the society. The attendance was remarkably large.

FOR A CONTINUOUS MACADAM.

Movement to Have Upper End of Mountain Avenue Improved.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Scotch Plains, Jan. 26 — Several public-spirited citizens of this place are making an effort to have Mountain avenue macadamized from Stansbery's corner through to the North Plainfield line, thus making a continuous macadam from Newark to Plainfield. The property-owners along the route will be asked to stand 10 per cent. of the cost, and the county the balance. Some of the residents in town are hardly in favor of the improvement, as it is thought it will take away a great deal of the travel that now comes through the village.

All the Way to New Brunswick.

A large number of Plainfielders took a trolley ride to New Brunswick and back last night. All reported having had a good time.

FOR OR AGAINST A GREATER PLAINFIELD.

Borough Voters Will Be Asked for Their Opinions.

VOTE AT NEXT ELECTION.

MEANTIME A PERSONAL CANVASS IS TO BE MADE THERE.

Opinions Wanted on Consolidation and the Best Method by Which It Can Be Accomplished—A. E. Kenney and T. W. Morrison to Act as Canvassers—Formal Vote at March Election.

Do you favor a Greater Plainfield, and, incidentally, what arrangement would suit you best? That is, in brief, the question that every voter in the borough of North Plainfield will be asked during the next month. The question of the consolidation of the city of Plainfield and the borough of North Plainfield is to be brought prominently to the front and a systematic campaign in its favor will be conducted. After no end of discussion the joint consolidation committee, appointed at the request of the Board of Trade, has taken definite action.

At the last meeting of the joint consolidation committee it was decided that the question of consolidation could be placed before the voters of North Plainfield. A sub committee was appointed to take the matter in charge and arrange definite plans for this expression of the opinions of the borough voters. The committee was composed of Former Mayor Alexander Gilbert, Former Mayor W. L. Saunders, School Trustee S. St. John McCutchen and Editor Frank W. Runyon.

Last evening the members of the sub-committee held a meeting at the home of Former Mayor Gilbert on Central avenue, and discussed the best methods to be used to bring the question of consolidation before the people of the borough. Their instructions had been to put the question to vote at the coming borough election in March.

Mr. Saunders had seen a number of the leaders in both political parties regarding the matter. The committee will request each political party at the primary proceeding the borough election to place on its ticket the question of consolidation, for or against. Mr. Saunders had been told that there would be no objection by eitheir political party to placing such a proposition on the ballots of the election.

This vote will merely tell whether there are a majority of the borough voters in favor of or opposed to it without saying the method of consolidation they prefer. The committee was anxious to secure an expression regarding the method that those favoring consolidation would prefer the ends should be attained.

Balloting in the newspapers was suggested but the fact that there are certain citizens who would pay no attention to such a method decided the committee against it. It was suggested that return postal cards might be sent to every citizen asking for an opinion but it was feared that many would not respond.

The plan finally decided upon as the most practical was a personal canvass of every voter in the borough. It was determined to secure the services of two well known citizens of North Plainfield and have them personally interview every voter in the borough regarding their opinion in the matter and, if in favor of consolidation, which method they would prefer. There are about 1,500 voters in North Plainfield, so it will take a month to complete the canvass.

The two canvassers selected were Andrew E. Kenney and Thomas W. Morrison, both men of extensive acquaintance in the borough, well and favorably known there, and with experience in newspaper work which will aid them in their endeavors to obtain the varied opinions of the citizens of the borough. They will begin the canvass this week.

It is intended that the canvass shall be strictly impartial. The canvassers will not attempt to influence the opinion of those they interview but will simply learn just how every citizen stands in the matter. It is the intention of the committee to give the question as much publicity as possible for they believe that when the citizens of the borough thoroughly understand the situation there will be no doubt in their minds as to the advisibility of consolidation. Both newspapers have agreed to open their columns to communications arguing the pros and cons of the question. A thorough discussion and ventilation of the subject is what the committee

EAGAN COURT-MARTIAL

Pleads Not Guilty, But Admits Using Language Charged.

OUTLINE OF HIS DEFENSE

His Testimony Given Under the Promise of the President of Immunity—Goaded to Desperation by the Charges of Gen. Miles—He Appeared to be Greatly Excited.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 26.--The board of army officers designated by the secretary of war to sit as a court martial in the case of Brigadier General Charles P. Eagan, commissary general of subsistence, charged with conduct unbecoming an officer and a gentleman, and conduct to the prejudice of good order and military discipline, in connection with his testimony before the war investigating committee, met in the Red Parlor of the Ebbitt House at ten o'clock yesterday morning and almost immediately proceeded to the business in hand.

The members of the court who appeared in full dress uniform, were seated about a long table placed lengthwise of the room, General Merritt, the president of the court, occupying the seat at the head.

At ten o'clock Colonel Davis called the roll of the court, all of the members responding to their names. As he concluded General Eagan appeared with his counsel, A. S. Worthington, formerly United States district attorney for the District of Columbia. They took seats near the judge advocate at the foot of the table. General Eagan also wore the dress uniform of his rank.

Almost immediately Colonel Davis arose and introduced General Eagan and his counsel, and then proceeded to read the order convening the court.

The judge advocate, when this was concluded, turned to General Eagan and inquired whether he objected to any of the members of the court as designated by the order. General Eagan replied "I do not."

The members of the court then arose and took the usual oath which was administered by Colonel Davis. The charges and specifications, which have been published in press dispatches were then read. General Eagan exhibited no signs of nervousness. While he stood listening to the reading of the charges and specifications his face seemed somewhat paler than usual.

At the conclusion of the reading, on being requested to plead to the specification to the first charge, General Eagan said "Not guilty, not denying, however, that the specifications set forth correctly a part of the language used." To the first charge he pleaded "Not guilty." To the specification to the second charge he pleaded "Not guilty, not denying, however, that the specification sets forth correctly a part of the language used." To the second charge he pleaded "Not guilty."

The judge advocate then said that the case in hand was a peculiar one, but presented no unusual difficulties. The accused had seen fit to add to his plea of not guilty some words qualifying it, but he did not think that the plea relieved the court from the necessity of proving the facts alleged.

Mr. Worthington responded briefly and explained why the qualifying words had been used upon his recommendation. The specifications did the accused a great injustice in that they selected particular expressions without giving the context, in one or more instances the specifications quoted beginning in the middle of a sentence. Mr. Worthington said that he desired to state briefly to the court the substance of General Eagan's defence. Whatever, said he, the court may think of the propriety of the language used by General Eagan before the war inquiry commission, there was no doubt in the speaker's mind that he was fully protected in using that language by the laws of the land. In no court, civil or military, he said, could the accused be held accountable for his language, even if it could be shown that the accused was actuated by malice. In addition to this, the president of the United States had instructed the war inquiry commission to announce publicly that witnesses before that tribunal would be given immunity for whatever they might testify to. This was a solemn promise given by the president of the United States, and counsel had no doubt that the court would find that Gen. Eagan could not, under these circumstances, be held to answer to a military court martial for his language.

General Miles, he said, had appeared before the committee about three weeks before General Eagan had made his statement, and on that occasion had made most serious and sweeping charges against many of General Eagan's subordinates, and particularly against General Eagan and the commissary department of the army. He had charged General Eagan with being incompetent and neglectful of his duties, and had inferentially charged him with issuing poisoned meat to the soldiers of the army, and had averred that many had died in consequence. He had also implied that General Eagan was acting corruptly in the matter.

Immediately upon reading the testimony given by General Miles, General Eagan went to the secretary of war and asked leave to bring charges against him. General Alger had replied that under the president's order of immunity General Miles could not be held responsible for his language before the committee. The newspapers then took it up and goaded General Eagan almost to desperation. He had come to believe that the press and the country at large had accepted the accusations made by General Miles as true, and the condition of his mind, in consequence, grew worse and worse until he was in a state bordering on distraction.

The language which General Eagan used under these circumstances was the natural outburst of an honest man suffering under an unjust accusation. In closing, Judge Worthington reasserted that General Eagan could not be held accountable for his language before any tribunal in this country, civil or military, particularly in view of the president's order of immunity.

Major S. C. Mills was then called to testify on behalf of the government. He said he was the recorder of the war inquiry commission and was present and heard General Eagan's testimony before the commission. The manner of General Eagan in giving his testimony, he said, was that of a man laboring under great excitement, but trying to control his excitement.

Major General McCook, retired, a member of the war inquiry commission, was the next witness. He was present and heard a part of General Eagan's testimony before the commission.

"The impression I had," he said, "was that General Eagan must be laboring under great nervous excitement."

He recalled some of the language used, and it agreed substantially with the testimony as published. He was shown a copy of the specifications and identified some of the language as having been used by General Eagan.

General Miles had appeared before the commission some days before General Eagan was heard. He had objected to being sworn and his statement had been received without his taking the oath. General Miles was the only witness, so far as he recalled, who had objected to taking the oath, although one witness in New York had refused to swear that he would tell the whole truth. Other witnesses had preferred to affirm. The commission had no hard and fast rule in regard to the matter of the oath.

The judge advocate then read at some length from General Miles's testimony before the war investigating commission, which called forth the objectionable language in General Eagan's statement.

At the conclusion of the reading of General Mile's statement Mr. Worthington read at length from General Eagan's revised testimony before the war inquiry commission.

At two o'clock the court adjourned until ten o'clock to-day.

Earthquake in Mexico.

Chicago, Jan. 26.--A dispatch to the Record from the City of Mexico says: "In point of duration the earthquake Tuesday evening was the severest ever known in the history of Mexico. The movement began in the City of Mexico at nine minutes past five o'clock. The oscillations were from northeast to southwest and lasted one minute and fifty-six seconds.

Three minutes later came a companion shock, which lasted five seconds, also oscillating northwest and southeast. The movement made a perfect cross.

The earthquake was felt over the entire republic, and it had a general movement from the Pacific to the Atlantic. It reached Colima at seven minutes past five o'clock, oscillating from east to west. It lasted one minute and twenty seconds.

It reached Vera Cruz at eighteen minutes past five, and the oscillations were from south to north, lasting ten seconds.

Many houses were cracked in the city. Some were entirely ruined. Fully a dozen walls were crushed and broken in the National Palace. A two-foot iron pipe, carrying water from Chapultepec to the city, was broken in seven places. Intense cold and other phenomena followed.

Price of Bessemer Ore.

Cleveland, O., Jan. 26.--After holding several conferences, the Bessemer ore dealers have decided to fix the price of Bessemer ore upon the basis of twenty cents a ton increase over the prices of last year.

L. C. Hanna of the firm of M. A. Hanna & Co., speaking of the advance, said:

"The ore men have formed no combination of any kind this year further than to agree upon a price. Leading dealers have got together during the last few days informally and have agreed that a higher value must be placed upon ore this year. An increase of twenty cents a ton was made upon base ore as a standard. The raise in price was made necessary because of the increased expense of mining."

Spoiled Beef on the Manitoba.

New Haven, Conn., Jan. 26.--In connection with the subject of "embalmed beef" for the army the New London Telegraph of yesterday morning says that last summer the United States transport Manitoba, which discharged the sick of a United States cavalry regiment at East New London, had four hundred quarters of preserved beef in her refrigerators in such a condition that the quartermaster refused to open the doors because of the stench.

The beef had been carried to Porto Rico and back, and it was reported at the time that a board for its inspection had been appointed.

To be Lodged in Barracks.

Pinar del Rio, Cuba, Jan. 26.--The summer home of the First United States infantry will be a massive Spanish barrack building, which has been disinfected. Surgeon General Sternberg approves taking the regiment out of the tents when the weather is warm and a third story will be built to the building so as to accommodate all the men.

The structure cost half a million dollars during the twenty years which elapsed while it was being built.

Severe Gale on the Gulf.

Fort Worth, Tex., Jan. 26.--A severe gale is reported along the gulf coast. The steamer Morgan, from New Orleans and Galveston, unable to get inside the bar, has been carried to sea by the gales.

The lighter Santiago, Captain Kennedy, has been beached near Bagdad, and is a total wreck. It is believed that eight members of the crew were drowned.

The Subsidies Bill.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 26.--The Hanna-Payne shipping bill was further considered yesterday by the House committee on merchant marine. A favorable report is expected after some changes have been made, suggested by the hearing.

AGONCILLO'S FAILURE

Government Will Pay No Attention to His Demand.

A VERY CLEVER DOCUMENT

No New Development in the Philippines—Filipino Insurrection Spreading According to Advices Sent Out of Madrid—Spanish Losses in Cuba.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 26.--The presentation to the state department of the communication from Agoncillo, the representative of Aguinaldo, as he styles himself, has not changed the attitude of the department toward him, and there is not the slightest probability that he will be officially recognized by the president or Secretary Hay. It is conceded that the document is cleverly phrased, with the intention to put the United States government in the wrong in the estimation of the world, and it is suspected, from the half concealed arrogance of the demand to be informed of the purpose of our government in sending reinforcements to the Philippines, that this communication may mark the adoption of a new line of policy by the insurgents in the Philippines.

The first manifestation of this, in case it is decided to resort to open hostilities, probably will be the sudden departure [illegible]illo and his staff from Was[illegible]nd from the limits of the [illegible]

Madrid, Jan. 26.--An official dispatch has been received by the government from Manila saying that all Spanish troops and supplies are now concentrated in the Visayas islands and Mindanao.

Madrid, Jan. 26.--An official dispatch from the Sulu islands of the Philippine group declares that the Spanish occupation continues.

Dispatches to the newspapers assert that the insurrection of the Filipinos is spreading greatly and that a native regiment disbanded by the Spaniards enlisted as a body in the service of Aguinaldo.

The German Anti-Jesuit Law.

Berlin, Jan. 26.--The reichstag yesterday passed the first and second reading of the Centrist motion to repeal the anti-Jesuit law. The bill would repeal the law exiling Jesuits. As a matter of fact the Jesuits have nearly all returned to Germany, where they virtually occupy the same position they did before 1872.

Schooner Runs Ashore.

Cape May, N. J., Jan. 26.--The three masted schooner Mamie Saunders, from Richmond, Va., loaded with railroad ties, came ashore on the south end of Cold Spring bar during the heavy lightning and thunder storm of Tuesday night. She lies in an easy position.

The United States life saving crews of Cold Spring and Two Mile Beach are aboard her.

Her Fourth Pair of Twins.

Flushing, L. I., Jan. 26.--Mr. and Mrs. Michael Doyle of this place are receiving congratulations upon the birth of their fourth pair of twins. Five of the eight children are living. Mrs. Doyle is also the mother of six other children, which arrived one at a time.

Searching for the Paul Jones.

Louisville, Ky., Jan. 26.--Saunders Jones has received another telegram from his brother Lawrence, who states that the search for the Paul Jones will not be abandoned before Thursday. Then he expects to start north with Mayor Taggart, unless some tidings are received in the meantime to prolong their stay.

Colon Strike Extending.

A BOLD ASSERTION

The Assertion Made to this Introduction to this Plainfield Citizen's Statement is Literally True.

There is only one proprietary article on the market which gives local evidence touching its merits; home proof to back up its claims; Plainfield evidence for Plainfield people. Statements from people we know in place of statements from strangers. That preparation is the one endorsed by Mrs. M. A. Hall, of 219 Prescott place, who says: "Doan's Kidney Pills without exception are the best medicine I ever used. My kidneys troubled me for several years with dull, aching pain across my back, and at times extending to my hips. I was compelled to lie in just one position at night, stooping, lifting or bending forward aggravated the pains. I was also subject to severe headaches and was more or less nervous. A kidney weakness which was very distressing and inconvenient also existed and though I used different remedies that were recommended to me I obtained little if any relief. I saw Doan's Kidney Pills highly endorsed in our daily papers and procured a box at L. W. Randolph's drug store. It was not long before I felt great relief and I was surprised how quickly the pain in my back disappeared."

A New York business man of sedentary habits, who has for years occasionally used a Ripans Tabule to aid digestion, relates that he awoke one morning recently with a violent headache of a pronounced type. It was so severe that he considered a dose of calomel and a day in bed, but as the latter was impossible, owing to the business requirements of that particular day, he started from home at the usual hour and in an unusual state of depression and temper. Arriving at his office, his eyes happened to rest upon the packet of Ripans Tabules that he kept in his desk, and in a somewhat desperate state he took three of the Tabules at one swallow and sat down to attend to the work of the day. A half hour later he realized to his surprise that the headache had left him and that he was in his usual good health. Moreover the headache did not return. He went immediately to the office of the company and narrated his experience, with a suggestion that the story be told for the benefit of others. That day's time was saved to him and it was worth more than ten dollars in cash, to say nothing of the discomfort he escaped.

A new style packet containing TEN RIPANS TABULES in a paper carton (without glass) is now for sale at some drug stores—FOR FIVE CENTS. This low-priced sort is intended for the poor and the economical. One dozen of the five-cent cartons (60 tabules) can be had by mail by sending forty-eight cents to the RIPANS CHEMICAL COMPANY, No. 10 Spruce Street, New York—or a single carton (ten TABULES) will be sent for five cents.

A SUIT AGAINST SHIP-BROKERS.

The United States Trying to Recover $36,500 in London.

London, Jan. 26.--In the queen's bench division of the high court of justice yesterday the trial began of the United States against Pelley Brothers, ship brokers, for the recovery of 5,300 pounds paid them on April 21, 1898, part payment for two 600-ton colliers.

This was made by Lieutenant Sims, then acting naval attache of the United States embassy here.

Lieutenant Sims testified that the ship brokers signed a contract, at midnight, on April 21, to deliver the colliers for 53,000 pounds. He added that the contract stipulated that they were to be delivered as soon as possible, and said the ship brokers promised verbally that one of them was ready to sail in twenty-four hours and the other in forty-eight hours.

The lieutenant gave the brokers a check for 5,300 pounds at midnight, but they failed to deliver the ships before the neutrality proclamation of April 26, and claimed that they were unable to get the colliers ready in time.

Continuing, Lieutenant Sims said the check beat the records in going through the clearing house, as the brokers secured the money at noon on the morrow, intimating that they cashed the check, expecting war, and that they did not intend to deliver the colliers. Lieutenant Sims further testified that the colliers were to have joined the United States fleet at Key West.

Expert ship men testified that the colliers could have been made ready to sail in the promised time.

The defence will be that the brokers were unable to fit out the ships before war was declared.

THE LAFAYETTE MONUMENT.

Souvenir Half-dollars to be Asked for from the Government.

Chicago, Jan. 26.--The Tribune said yesterday that the Lafayette memorial commission will ask Congress to have its monument appropriation in the form of one hundred thousand souvenir half-dollar pieces. The members of the commission say that the comparatively small amount to be minted and the international importance of the occasion will give these coins a value which, with the money to come from other sources, will give the commission one hundred and fifty thousand dollars, the sum fixed on as necessary to secure a suitable monument.

The treasurer of the commission, Comptroller Dawes, already has on hand nearly fifty thousand dollars from the subscriptions of the school children and more is expected from this source.

Last week another project was started from which good results are anticipated. It was in the shape of circular letters, addressed to all the postmasters of the country, in which they were asked to use their influence to arrange entertainments in their cities or neighborhoods, the net receipts to go to the memorial fund.

As there are more than seventy-three thousand postmasters, it is thought that thirty thousand dollars will be secured in this way. If these plans succeed it will be necessary to ask the government for not more than sixty thousand dollars.

Trouble Feared from Soldiers.

Norfolk, Va., Jan. 26.--A large proportion of the members of four batteries of the Sixth United States Artillery, stationed at Fort Monroe, are being discharged.

This is due to a flaw in their enlistments, which prohibits further service.

All of these men were enlisted between April and October, 1898. The men are from Pennsylvania. Batteries F, H, I and K lose about seventy men each.

A dispatch from Phoebus says that the police are anticipating trouble from the discharged men, who, it is said, will renew the fight of last summer with the saloon keepers, and who, it is alleged, threatened to burn the place.

A force of well armed men are on duty at Phoebus and are prepared for a fight. The riotous Sixth Virginia (colored) regiment is to be mustered out, and two local companies of the regiment arrived here on Friday.

Russian View of Alliances.

St. Petersburg, Jan. 26.--The Narod, in an article criticising the recent anti-Russian speeches of Lord Charles Beresford, says it anticipates no results in the direction of obtaining British alliances with Germany and the United States, and declares that England would do better to look toward Russia for such a relation.

England and Japan being the keenest commercial competitors of Germany and the United States, have no cause for enmity toward Russia.

Therefore, the paper says, the chimera of an Anglo-American alliance against Russia may be relegated to the realm of unfulfilled wishes.

International College Chess.

London, Jan. 26.--Mr. Tattersall, president of the Cambridge University Chess Club, said yesterday that Cambridge would accept the challenge for a cable chess match on six boards, issued on behalf of the American university chess clubs, comprising Columbia, Harvard, Yale and Princeton.

He suggested that the match be played at the end of March. Sir Geo. Newnes, president of the British Chess Club of London, has invited the British university clubs to play the British end of the match in the rooms of the British Chess Club and at his expense. No reply has as yet been received from the Oxford Club.

TREATY VOTE FEB. 6

GORMAN'S OFFER ACCEPTED

Believed Now That Ratification Will Surely Follow—Committee Discussion and a White House Conference—Friends of the Treaty Confident.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 26.--The Senate has unanimously agreed to vote on the treaty of peace February 6 at two p. m.

Senator Davis was not in a position Tuesday to accept Senator Gorman's offer without consulting the committee on foreign relations. The committee discussed the matttr yesterday and decided in favor of taking a vote, and the above agreement was reached in executive session as a result.

The committee discussion was preceded by conferences at the White House between the president and the administration leaders in the Senate. Mr. McKinley was reported to have urged that a vote be taken as soon as possible.

Meanwhile the debate will go on, and work will be done on the doubtful senators. Their constituents will bring pressure to bear upon them to support the administration, and it is thought that by Monday week there will be no doubt as to a two-thirds majority for the treaty.

The Senate's action is also expected to have a good effect on the Filipinos. It will also cause those nations who threaten to recognize the so-called Philippine republic to hesitate, and will show to Aguncillo and his junta that the administration is not afraid of a vote, or of the defeat of the peace treaty.

The Senate went into executive session at 12.46 and resumed open session at 1.40. It was during this time that the agreement was reached.

At two o'clock the Senate again went into executive session and Senator Davis took the floor to speak in favor of ratification.

During the brief recess between the two executive sessions the administration senators expressed confidence in the result of the vote.

It is now claimed that there will really be but twenty-three votes against ratification. As long as there was a doubt as to the final vote, the opposition claimed over thirty, but now that the bubble has burst, senators are anxious to get on the right side.

The proposition to take a vote came from Senator Davis, and Senator Gorman, after his offer of Tuesday, was obliged to accept it, although he did so reluctantly.

A leading member of the foreign relations committee and a close friend of the president, said:

"This means a ratification of the treaty beyond a doubt. It is another triumph for the president. He insisted that a vote should be taken and the senators placed on record. He felt sure of ratification and now we all do. He wanted a vote this week, but several members of the committee thought it had better be postponed, and so a compromise was arranged in the committee fixing the vote ten days hence."

The situation in Manila is such that further delay may cause an open rupture and bloodshed, and the president wants the Senate put on record for peace or war. If the treaty is defeated one of the administration senators will change his vote and then move to reconsider, a motion which only requires a majority to carry and which will prevail. This will put the treaty in its old place and give the committee on foreign relations an opportunity to withdraw it if it so desires.

The administration firmly believes, however, that when the vote is taken the necessary two-thirds majority to ratify will be forthcoming.

In Defence of Keely.

New York, Jan. 26.--B. L. Ackerman, president of the Keely Motor Company, issued a reply yesterday to the charge that John W. Keely's "secret power was simply compressed air."

Mr. Ackerman declares that the tubing and pipes alleged to have been recently discovered at the plant were known to all connected with the inventor's work, and that they formed a portion of some machinery which had been discarded years ago.

Mr. Ackerman closes with an elaborate description of Keely's methods, giving much technical information in regard to the various devices. He says that recent criticisms have been thoroughly unjust, as there has been no proper foundation for the charges made. The statement was authorized by the directors of the company.

Dewey on England.

London, Jan. 26.--Mr. Hamilton Brown, editor of the British Realm, received a letter yesterday from Rear Admiral Dewey, dated Manila, December 18, in response to a request for an expression of opinion on Great Britain's imperial policy. The admiral says:

"After many years of wandering I have come to the conclusion that the mightiest factor in the civilization of the world is the imperial policy of England.

Smallpox Among Indians.

Santa Fe, N. M., Jan. 26.--Late information from the Zuni Pueblo in western Valencia county tells a sad state of affairs among these Indians. Small pox is raging with terrible results and deaths are numerous.

Since the disease broke out two hundred and seventeen deaths have occurred and six hundred Indians are sick, of whom possibly about one-half will recover.

Scott Elected Senator.

The vote was: Scott 48, McGraw 46, Goff 1.

Mr. Scott at present is United States commissioner of internal revenue.

ADELINA PATTI WEDS.

The Diva Married to Baron Cederstrom—Gayety in Brecon, Wales.

London, Jan. 26.--Adelina Patti, the singer, was married yesterday morning at Brecon, Wales, to Baron Cederstrom, director of the Health Gymnastic Institute here.

Mme. Patti took a train from Craig y Nos, her residence, to Brecon, which was prettily decorated for the occasion. The band of the South Wales Borderers met the party at the station and, with the Fire Brigade and police, headed by the Town Banner and the mace bearers, escorted the wedding party, in five landaus, to the Catholic church, which had been specially decorated. Sir George Faudel Phillips, former lord mayor of London, gave Patti away and the service was very short.

Baron and Baroness Cederstrom left the church at eleven o'clock, entered a carriage, the procession was reformed and the bride and bridegroom proceeded to the railroad station and started for the city of London amid an ovation.

The wedding breakfast was served on the train, which was composed of the special corridor cars built for the Prince of Wales.

The procession to the church and returning to the station passed under several triumphal arches bearing inscriptions in honor of the bride.

The wedding party reached London late yesterday afternoon. The bride and bridegroom will start to-day for the south of France, where they will pass the honeymoon.

Baron Olaf Rudolf Cederstrom was born in 1870. He is the eldest son of Baron Claes Erdad Cederstrom, deceased, who was a lieutenant in the Swedish Light Guards. Baron Cederstrom until recently was instructor in a health gymnasium and director of his Health Gymnastic Institute in London.

Mme. Adelina Patti, or Adele Juana Maria Patti, was born at Madrid on February 10, 1843, and was the youngest daughter of Salvatore Patti, an

MME. PATTI.

Italian singer, who died in 1869, a Spanish mother, also a singer, known as Signora Barili.

Mme. Patti was instructed by Maurice Strakosch after her parents had emigrated to America with their child daughter. Strakosch married Patti's elder sister, Amelia. Patti made her first appearance as a singer at an early age, was withdrawn for further study, and reappeared November 24, 1859, in New York as Lucia, with great success.

On May 14, 1861, she made her debut in England at the Royal Italian Opera House and achieved a fame that has followed her during life.

Mme. Patti on July 29, 1868, was married to Henri, Marquis de Caux, equerry to Napoleon III. Later she separated from the marquis, was divorced and subsequently married Nicolini, a tenor singer in her company. He died at her mansion, Craig y Nos, in Wales.

Minister's Trial Postponed.

New Haven, Conn., Jan. 26.--The trial of the Rev. James B. Miller, a graduate of the Yale Theological School, who is charged with having stolen five thousand volumes from the Yale library and local booksellers, was to have been begun here yesterday, but by mutual consent of counsel it was postponed until next Saturday. In the complaint against the Rev. Mr. Miller there are 148 separate counts.

The only new feature of the case at present is the recovery of the famous Doomesday book, a rare volume belonging to Professor Day, which had just been found in a pile of books taken from the Rev. Mr. Miller's room to the police station. Whether this book was stolen or borrowed is a question. Professor Day admits that he had given the minister permission to borrow books from the library.

Spanish Regiment for Aguinaldo.

Madrid, Jan. 26.--An official dispatch from the Sulu islands of the Philippine group declares that all is well there and that the Spanish occupation continues.

Dispatches received by newspapers here assert that the insurrection of the Filipinos is spreading considerably. It is added that a native regiment which was disbanded by the Spaniards enlisted as a body in the service of Aguinaldo.

To Abandon a Canal.

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 26.--A bill was introduced in the legislature yesterday by Senator Goodsell to authorize the Delaware and Hudson Canal Company to abandon its canal.

This company, which operates the Delaware and Hudson Railroad system finds it cheaper to transport coal from its fields in northern Pennsylvania by rail than by its canal.

The bill amends the charter of the company and gives it full power to consummate the abandonment.

Building the Shamrock.

London, Jan. 26.--Sir Thomas Lipton denies the truth of the statement sent out by the Central News that the new racing cutter Shamrock will be built with manganese bronze plates and steel ribs. He also characterizes as false the statement that an order for manganese has been placed at Deptford for use in the construction of the Shamrock in any way.

Face the Truth.

A policy of secrecy regarding Plainfield's system of sewage disposal is, under the circumstances, probably the worst plan that the city officials could pursue. While no action toward anything of the sort has been taken, several prominent city officials have expressed themselves to representatives of The Daily Press as against the free publication of the facts concerning the disposal beds. They believe that the less said the better.

A little careful consideration of the situation should lead them to see that the fullest publication of the truth is to the interests of the city and all concerned. Rumor, when passed from mouth to mouth, assumes such distorted proportions that the real facts of the case can hardly be recognized, even by one thoroughly conversant with them. There are comparatively few people who have been to the beds and understand the situation, so the reports that have been current in Plainfield and Dunellen are often believed to be the truth by those who have no reason for thinking otherwise. Unless the newspapers give the true facts in the case, these people may continue to believe all sorts of impossible things about the beds just because there is no information on the subject.

It is just as well to come out and face the truth of the situation at the disposal beds fairly and squarely. It isn't anywhere near as bad as it is painted, however.

The beds are being called upon at this season of the year to do more than they were theoretically intended. This is due to the leakage of the ground water into the system of sewers in the lower parts of the east end of the city. There have been several small breaks but they have been quickly repared and there isn't the slightest danger of the embankments to the beds breaking and the whole system being carried out to the ocean, as one Dunellen citizen declares is sure to happen.

Investigating the Wreck.

The New Brunswick Times, which has been violently opposed to Prosecutor Voorhees, of Middlesex county, at various times during his administration, editorially says that the Prosecutor is doing all that is needed to be done in his investigations of the Lehigh Valley disaster at West Dunellen in the effort to lay the responsibility upon the shoulders of those to whom it rightly belongs.

Now, on the other hand, the New Brunswick Home News, which has been regarded as a particular advocate of Mr. Voorhees' administration, says that he is making "a very grave mistake in not guaranteeing to the public the fullest and most explicit information concerning the facts leading up to the wreck at Dunellen."

The Home News takes a serious view of the matter, as might it well, and says:

But we see the forebodings of a storm if this silence continues. It would be just like Allan McDermott to have a bill introduced in the Legislature to impeach the gentlemen for official neglect or worse. We hope, for the honor of Middlesex, no such thing shall come to pass. So far, there is no ground for charges. But let's have plenty of publicity; no juggling by Lehigh Valley politicians. If that company, responding slowly to President Walter's scheme for a better showing, has exercised parsimony, let's have the whole truth. No Grand Jury sits until April. If the facts warrant, let's have an extraordinary term.

THE REAL THING AT A DUEL.

Talk of a duel between Paul Deroulede and Gersult-Richard again raises the question of dueling in France. Most French duels are bloodless, but about once a year there is a fatality on "the field of honor." The picture shows the fatal meeting between the two Italian deputies Macola and Cavalotti, in which the latter was killed by a thrust that severed the jugular vein. The fight was in France, just across the Italian border.

Though it is not to be expected that the completion of the connecting link of the Brunswick Traction Company at Bound Brook, bringing direct and uninterrupted transit facilities between the two lines of that company, will result in great increase to Plainfield's trade from the suburban district, it is nevertheless an important and auspicious event for this city. Of all the smaller cities in New Jersey there is not one with which Plainfield is on such neighborly relations as New Brunswick. In the past it has an inconvenient thing to get to the Middlesex county capital except for those awheel or behind fast horses, but with the opening of this new trolley route it will bring New Brunswick and Plainfield in much closer touch to all classes than heretofore. We anticipate that in the summer months trolley parties in New Brunswick will become quite a fad with Plainfielders under the arrangements put in vogue yesterday.

Another popular delusion is shattered. Professor Leonard Stejenger, a United States Government expert, says that whiskey, instead of being an antidote for snake bites, according to the general belief, is really an aggravation of the trouble, as it accelerates the circulation of the blood and hurries the poison through the veins and arteries with greater rapidity than it would otherwise have.

A pure beer bill has been introduced into the Assembly, and among some things it provides for is the appointment of five inspectors at a salary of $1,200 each. If testing by taste was the only requirement for such a position there are plenty of men in Plainfield who would doubtless offer their services gratis to the State.

There are altogether too many church quarrels and dissensions in New Jersey for the good of christianity. The brethren should get together and counsel in quietude. Courts do not exist for the benefit of promoting harmony in churches.

If all the Assemblymen in the State Legislature introduced bills at the rate Mr. Murray has commenced the session with it would be a long time before the words "adjourned sine die" would be heard in the State Legislative halls.

Bishop Potter avers that saloons are the poor men's clubs. It is a fact, however, that they often make rich men poor. And again poor men are made rich by them. Indeed, the saloon can work wonders.

Assemblyman Murray is still at it. His latest bill, introduced yesterday, labeled No. 51. It is an act to recognize persons who have declared their intentions to become public accountants.

A man has been arrested in Elizabeth for hugging and kissing 163 girls. It is a pity that a man can't emulate Hobson without being called disorderly.

There is plenty of money to be made in Wall street these days. But the best chances of Wall street are held by those who only look on and enjoy the fun.

A New York woman had several thousand dollars' worth of diamonds stolen the other night. Strange to say, she was not an actress.

Mr. Kean will undoubtedly rest on his oars till March 4th next.

WHAT THE SHEARS FIND

Editorial Comment From Other Papers of Interest in Plainfield.

Among the Willy-Boys of Plainfield and Bound Brook, New Brunswick has the reputation of being a lively town and every Saturday and Sunday night the trolleys bring in loads of cheap sports from these places. The jays ogle the girls on the street, promenade up and down Livingston avenue and wind up by taking a glass of beer in an out of the way saloon, each man paying for his own drink. They stand on the back platform of the car all the way home and tell each other what a devil of a time they have had. A Plainfield or Bound Brook jay "seeing life" in New Brunswick is a sight to be long remembered.—New Brunswick Times.

THEATRICAL.

Current Dramatic Attractions That Plainfielders Can Witness.

Stetson's big "Uncle Tom's Cabin" company will be at Music Hall next Monday night. They have all the accessories for producing the play in the most approved style, and are highly successful in pleasing the audience. It is singular how this piece draws, and how the audience laugh over it. There is no necessity for speaking at length over the presentation. It pleases the majority greatly. Topsy is good, so is Uncle Tom, so is Eva, Marks, the dogs and the singing. It is a good entertainment, and the audience, which come to laugh, laugh heartily and are satisfied. The company has a double band orchestra, composed of white and colored musicians, two Topsies, two Marks, two Orphelias, Eva and her pony "Prince," the Lone Star Quartette and African mandolin players, not excluding the pack of savage-looking bloodhounds.

Poultry Show in New York.

Next week will find the tenth annual show of the New York Poultry and Pigeon Association in the Madison Square Garden, New York, and from Tuesday morning until Saturday night there will be thousands of admirers and breeders of poultry and pigeon fanciers to see the 7,000 birds that Secretary Crawford has received entries for, and the showing of incubators and brooders and poultry farm appliances will be unusually large with little chicks hatched on time. time. The New York show increases in value and popularity every year. It has good men to back it, and the garden is a splendid and convenient place for the exhibition.

THINGS THAT INTEREST SCOTCH PLAINS AND DUNELLEN.

DUNELLEN.

(Special Correspondence to The Press.)

Dunellen Jan. 26—Yesterday was a big day for the trolley people in this place and the cars of the Brunswick Traction Company were kept running frequently to carry people back and forth. In the afternoon there was "open house" at Taylor's Hotel, and everybody of note was present to enjoy the hospitality of the host. It was a welcome sight to see the new cars, and the people are now in hopes that better facilities for travel will be furnished. Cars are now running between Dunellen, Bound Brook, Somerville, New Brunswick and Milltown, and the old nuisance, the stage, has been abolished. The cars were decorated yesterday and they looked quite gay in colors of red, white and blue. There were lots of people who took the ride over the road for pleasure, while a number sought the cars as a means of reaching their destination quickly. No future trouble is anticipated regarding the running of cars.

A great many complaints have reached this office regarding the unwillingness of the motormen and conductors of the Plainfield trolley cars to stop their cars in the borough where women want to get off. The women say that men have no trouble in getting off where they want to, but the employes of the trolley make a wide distinction with the fair sex. Why this should be so no one seems to know.

THE WOMAN'S WORLD

The Chinese as Servants.

A young woman whose health and finances both gave out was ordered, by her physician, to the soft, mild climate of Southern California. The prospect was alluring, but as even the purchase of the railway ticket was a serious drain on a pitifully lean purse, the invalid wrote to an acquaintance at Santa Barbara, asking what would be the opportunities for making a living of a well educated, willing woman who would do anything from housework and taking care of children, to teaching music, sewing, or as a governess. The reply was not exactly encouraging. It said: "The Chinese simply swarm and usurp all labor functions here in California. Here people, who can afford, keep one help, where at home they would have three or four. The 'help' has to be cook, nurse and housemaid, must bake, and sometimes wash. Most persons, especially ranchers, employ a Chinese, who, for $30 a month, will cook, churn, laundry, sweep, etc. Ranch life is hard, and the heat trying. Nurses have the best chance—$25 to $30 a month, with one or perhaps two children to mind. To get in with a rich family from the East is a good thing. I will send you a Los Angeles paper. Study the advertisements in the paper I send. But at home there is money, and there are plenty of people willing to pay well for good work. No Chinese competitors! I came out two years ago with my family. We know from bitter experience how hard the fight is. No one need think California an El Dorado; quite the contrary. I know of an English lady who rises at 3 A. M. to cook breakfast for the ranch hands."

Real Four Leaf Clovers to be Worn.

As a good luck charm the rabbit's foot has a rival. Just now it is the four leaf clover that superstitious maidens are looking upon with favor. Even the rabbit's foot mounted in gold has lost much of its subtle power.

Fashionable girls are wearing the four leaf clover as a belt buckle, a watch charm, cuffbuttons, a pendant, and as the newest ornament to swing from their chatelains. And it is a real clover which they are wearing, and if possible, one that they have found themselves.

The clovers are mounted in a most clever fashion, and make an exceptionally pretty ornament as well as a lucky one. The clover is first carefully pressed, and then each petal mounted on a small, round piece of white silk or satin. This is then incased in a glass, and the charm is complete.

This lucky clover leaf forms the centre of many an exquisite belt buckle, this season. One of the prettiest showed the clover mounted in malachite and gold. The belt itself consisted of oval pieces of malachite caught together by gold chains.

The clover leaf is incased in glass swings from the chatelaine just as a good luck charm, or it forms the top of her chatelaine bonbon box.

One of the newest lorgnettes has down in the corner of its golden handle a tiny lucky clover, mounted on white satin and covered with glass. It is sunk into the handle of the lorgnette and then surrounded by tiny diamonds.

A Rainbow Party.

Among the most popular entertainments is a novel form of evening party known by the name of "Rainbow Party," which is somewhat like a figure of the cotilion, danced, or rather acted, throughout the entire evening.

Young ladies invited to a rainbow party are each expected to wear an apron. This may be of any shade or hue the wearer chooses, and must be left unhemmed at the bottom. Each one is provided with a numbered ticket, the duplicate of which is placed in a box near the entrance, these tickets being drawn by the gentlemen on entering.

Then commences the fun of the evening. Each gentleman having found his fair partner, is set to hem her unfinished apron, the ladies supplying the needle and thread to their respective cavaliers.

At a given signal they commence to thread the needles. A certain time is given them for this unaccustomed task, then another signal is given, and they begin to sew. Afterwards a committee is formed to judge the work and award the prizes. The aprons are raffled for, the different couples dance a few dances together and the entertainment ends with supper.

Common-Sense Beauty List.

An authority on physical training for women gives the following directions for securing the best results, which naturally must be modified by individual characteristics and circumstances:

"Sleep nine hours out of the twenty-four, bathe in cold water, exercise five minutes daily with light dumbbells, drink a cup of hot liquid before breakfast, spend half an hour every day in outdoor exercise, make the best of bad bargains, and always keep your temper."

Cornstarch for Grease Spots.

Corn-starch will remove grease most effectually from cloth. Rub a little fresh, dry corn-starch into the soiled place, and it will at once begin the process of absorbing the grease. Brush the first used off carefully from the garment, and proceed, in the same way, with more, until the disfigurement has entirely disappeared.

THE POPE'S GARDENS.

SOME OF THE BEAUTIES OF THE VATICAN GROUNDS.

The Holy Father's Novel Plan of Cultivation—Most Notable Piece of Architecture In the Gardens Is the Famed Casino of Pius IV.

The gardens of the pope are well worth the small difficulty of getting an order to visit them, since this is accorded almost for the asking and to any party of six. The approach is the same as that leading to the library and sculpture galleries, and the entrance is to the left of these. It opens on a terrace which was used in the middle ages as a tilting ground, and, looking over the parapet, one sees what in the same era was a lake for mimic naval battles, but which now is an Italian garden laid out in flower beds with paths ornamented by small orange trees.

In the center of the parterre are the pontifical arms and the name of the present pope cut in bushes of box. Beyond this garden are magnificent stone pines and vast magnolia trees, over which towers St. Peter's, seen here to best advantage, both side domes being visible besides the great one. Passing part way down the terrace you enter, under an arch to the right, two long and ancient arcaded avenues in ilex, in the middle the sunken bed of an old canal, ending in a rocky structure covered with maidenhair fern. There is kept here a cluster of remarkable animals resembling sheep, goats and deer. In reality they are mountain sheep, sent as a present to the holy father on his jubilee by the people of Carpineta in the Campagna, whose ancient castle is the home of his race—that of the Pecci. Close to the rockwork at the end of the hollow stands a little copy of the grotto of Lourdes. Here visitors leave their cards.

Passing from the ilex avenues, one comes rather suddenly into a little park containing numbers of cages and wired in inclosures. These are inhabited by lovely gold and silver pheasants, turtledoves, and gorgeous peacocks, both white and blue. There is also a flock of geese, perhaps descended from the wardens of the capitol. Leaving these on the left, the explorer may wander up into a thick wood, quite surprising in its wildness after the artificial splendors of the terrace and flower garden. This wilderness is supposed to be the site of Nero's circus, in spite of the steepness of the ascent.

In this quarter of the grounds is the pope's garden parlor, a rather handsome building where his holiness may rest or read in the intervals of taking mild exercise. In an apse, prettily frescoed with paintings of climbing plants, peacocks and pussy cats, are a table and a magnificent throne of red morocco and gilded wood carving. To the right of this strip of ground is a very goodly vineyard. Leo XIII has a plan of his own for its cultivation which strikes a stranger as novel and original. Between the vines are planted thick rows of broad beans, which are dug into the earth for manure. The yearly yield is some 3,000 bottles of excellent wine, chiefly sent to various hospitals.

At the farther end of the vineyard are some fenced inclosures containing a number of specially handsome palms, planted perhaps ten years ago and growing very well. Beneath the palms two ostriches have a dwelling, and very much at home the couple appear, while their plumage keeps in very good condition. In strange neighborhood, within the next inclosure are a herd of brown and white deer and a "pelican of the wilderness."

Leaving these and passing along by the walls of Urban VIII, you get a fine view through a window of the San Panerazio position held by Oudinot's troops and of the bastion defended so desperately by the international troops of the revolution under Garibaldi in 1849. From almost the end of the garden to the wood is a long piece of the old Leonine wall, with its two handsome round towers. Passing behind one of these, used as an observatory by the Specola Vaticana, which is engaged upon photographing the stars, one may walk along a broad road bordered with fine mimosa trees. Here also are two more summer houses for the pope's use and a smaller vineyard, in which is a most delightful trellised arcade provided with seats. This is much frequented by his holiness during the heat of the summer.

A little farther on is to be found the pontifical villa, which forms the garden residence. From this a path descends to the Vatican at the end of the gardens near St. Peter's. On the way one passes an immense grotto surmounted by an arch and a stone eagle, underneath which are cool rocky chambers full of maidenhair. The ferns grow over two huge dragons, from whose mouths streams of water flow to mingle with others, all falling into a great basin below. Yet one other fountain remains to be noticed, and that the beautiful one at the bottom of the garden. In an enormous recess surrounded by a castellated wall is a large stone table from which rise six jets of water, three on each side of a seventh, which spurt out star shaped. Over the front of the table a perfect sheet of fine, transparent water flows down into the basin beneath. This is the celebrated fountain built by order of the Borghese pope, Paul V, and it represents very faithfully an exposition of the blessed sacrament on a Roman altar. The arched recess is full of maidenhair, and the delicate fern is also seen through the crystal altar cloth.

The last spot to be visited is the famed casino of Piux IV, the most notable piece of architecture in the gardens. Hardly any building seems really beautiful when deserted, but the casino in its loveliness is still charming. In front of a little palace covered with renaissance stucco work, in which old terra cotta bas-reliefs are set, lies a courtyard, a perfect oval in shape, with walls, arched entrance chambers and a beautiful colonnaded loggia some ten feet high from the ground. This courtyard is surrounded with marble benches, and the walls and entrances are incrusted with pebbles and shells, suggestive of the coolness of ocean waves and breezes.

The visitor now turns into the path leading to the terrace entrance, pausing to admire the magnolias and stone pines towering upward a little distance from the casino. It is with a feeling of very great regret that a stranger to Rome leaves the gardens, for they are peaceful and satisfying in their undisturbed serenity.—San Francisco Chronicle.

NEED OF THE TIMES.

Important Work For a Strong and Enlightened Catholic Press.

Catholics need to be enlightened in these days upon the conditions of the peoples in our new possessions, says The Church Progress. The secular and Protestant press fairly reeks with misrepresentations and calumnies. Never was the need of a Catholic paper in Catholic families so strikingly illustrated as just now. The Catholic press alone publishes accounts of the true conditions in our new possessions. Catholics who have no Catholic papers to inform them correctly are kept in woeful ignorance in these matters. How, then, can they talk intelligently upon the question and refute calumnies when they hear them?

The Pittsburg Catholic says the Catholic press of the United States should receive this year a generous support. The country is entering upon a new page of its history. The church will be a distinct feature in that page, and the Catholic church will have an enlarged mission. It will be more than heretofore for the Catholic body a distinct center, from which will radiate correct history to enlighten public opinion and formulate logical deductions to maintain sound and everlasting principles. The moral effect of a Catholic press united in truth by sympathy and one of purpose should be immense and farreaching. Before its influence falsehoods and calumnies now peeping forth, but which are bound to be fully developed, will shrink away. Our Catholic press of America, acting upon the principles of which the church is the only and correct expounder, should be united in strength and actuated by a single impulse. It should teach the people. It should not be a mirror upon whose surface every mind, no matter how distorted, may see its reflection, but a torch held in a high hand, guiding the minds of men alnog the strong road of duty.

STORY OF A CONVERSION.

Stalwart Mountaineer Tells What Led Him to Become a Catholic.

A convert to the Catholic church relates a very beautiful incident which occurred recently in a mountainous district in Virginia. Rev. W. Gaston Payne was visiting his scattered flock and conducting missions in the small towns. These missions were attended principally by Protestants. At the conclusion of the sermon on one evening a stalwart mountaineer who had been a soldier came up and spoke to the missionary as follows:

"One day I went into the chapel of a military post and saw there a beautiful image, almost life size, of Christ on the cross. I had read about the crucifixion, but I never felt it before. To this day I remember that crucifix, and I don't believe anybody who ever saw it could forget it. Afterward I was taken to a hospital and there nursed by the sisters of charity, who didn't know anything about me except that I was far from home and friends and was sick and suffering. They nursed me until I got well, and then wrote to my people about me, and did everything my own mother would do for me. Father, I believe any church that can make women like them is the true one, and I am ready to join the Catholic church now if you think I am prepared for it."

The next morning he and his wife, together with another Protestant, returned to the bosom of their only true mother, in the midst of a little company of friends who had assembled to witness the administration of the rite of baptism.—San Francisco Monitor.

From the Church to the Stage.

Few people are aware of the fact that Albert Chevalier was a great favorite of the late Cardinal Manning. His eminence took a lively interest in the lad, encouraging him in every possible way. Mr. Chevalier will tell you that many a time has he been one of the bearers of the late cardinal's robes and attended upon him when celebrating mass. It says volumes for the broad mindedness of Cardinal Manning that one of the first letters of congratulation which Mr. Chevalier received when he created such a sensation in London some few years ago was from Cardinal Manning.—Chicago Times-Herald.

General Olmstead a Priest.

General W. A. Olmstead of New York city, a convert to the Catholic faith, was ordained to the priesthood at Notre Dame recently and celebrated his first mass Christmas morning. General Olmstead was a conspicuous officer during the civil war, commanding the first brigade in Hancock's division at the battle of Gettysburg. He was the first officer to board the monitor at Newport News and carried the request of the commodore to General Mansfield at Camp Butler.—New World (Chicago).

Father Chidwick Honored.

The chaplain of the Maine, Rev. Father Chidwick, has been awarded deserved honor for his conduct at the time of the destruction of the battleship. He has been appointed by the secretary of the navy chaplain of the Washington navy yard. The appointment is regarded as a desirable one.—New World, Chicago.

AS THE SUN WENT DOWN.

Two soldiers lay on the battlefield
At night when the sun went down.
One held a lock of thin gray hair
And one held a lock of brown.

One thought of his sweetheart back at home
Happy and young and gay,
Feeble and old and gray.

Each in the thought that a woman cared
Murmured a prayer to God,
Lifting his gaze to the blue above,
There on the battle sod.

Each in the joy of a woman's love
Smiled through the pain of death,
Murmured the sound of a woman's name,
Though with his parting breath.

Pale grew the dying lips of each,
Then, as the sun went down,
One kissed a lock of thin gray hair,

—Town Talk.

THE MARCHIONESS.

It was in Normandy last year, during the shooting season. I had had a long morning's sport, and noon found me footsore and weary in the vicinity of an old mill, somewhere between Mortagne and Conde-sur-l Huisne. It was a comfortable looking place and I determined to solicit the owner's hospitality.

The miller received me very courteously and I was soon stretching my legs under the table and partaking of the most exquisite dejeuner that was ever placed before a hungry sportsman. There were trout from the mill stream and partridges from the neighboring moor, cooked to a turn and accompanied by some really excellent wine, not the "petit viri" of Normandy, but good mellow Bordeaux. This somewhat surprised me, but when at dessert the miller invited me to visit his gallery of family portraits, I was perfectly bewildered.

"What," said I to myself, "a picture gallery in a mill!"

Of course I accepted his invitation, and found that the pictures really existed and were fine ones, too. There were a dozen of them, representing Louis XIV., courtiers and marquises, and marchionesses of the times of Louis XV and Louis XVI., the series being closed by a buxom-looking farmer's wife in a white sun-bonnet next to a delicious little marchioness.

Stopping before the two latter portraits the miller said:

"These are mother and daughter."

He appeared to be amused at my surprised expression, and continued:

"Yes, sir, this country woman is my mother, and that pretty little marchioness smiling there is my grandmother. It is a strange story. Everybody round about knows it, and I may as well tell it to you.

"As you have probably surmised from the age of these portraits the story is laid during the Terror. The father, mother and elder sister of yon little marchioness were arrested, and soon afterward judged and executed. The little marchioness, my grandmother, sir, found safety only in flight. The poor orphan took refuge with one of the farmers on the family estate, whom she knew she could trust. This farmer was a young man—he was only about thirty years of age. He had known the little marchioness from her babyhood, and was devotedly attached to her. In fact, to be frank with you, sir, in his heart of hearts he loved her.

"He was greatly troubled by the perilous position in which her presence placed him, but he could not turn the poor child away to be massacred by the savage revolutionists. He hid her in the cellar and the mob vainly scoured the whole country in search of her. But a neighbor, a ferocious Jacobin, had marked the farmer's trouble, and suspecting the reason for it denounced him to the revolutionary committee.

"In a few minutes the house was surrounded by a horrible mob howling for the death of the hated aristocrat They battered in the front door and poured into the place. Ah! sir, it was a terrible moment."

Here the miller paused and mopped his brow, while his eyes glistened with excitement.

"The first room was empty," he went on. "They smashed everything in it they could lay hands upon, and were about to break open the door of the next room when it suddenly opened and the marchioness stood before them, beside the farmer, who was half dead with anguish and terror.

"For an instant the mob stopped short. But it was only for an instant. Shrieks of 'Down with the aristocrat! Kill her! Away with her! Burn her! Tear her to pieces!' arose, and the blood-thirsty brutes were about to rush forward, when the little marchioness was suddenly struck by an inspiration. Ah! sir, it must have come from on high. She made signs to them that she wished to speak.

"'Citizens, she began.

"Unaccustomed to hearing such an appellation from the mouth of a dainty aristocrat, the mob stopped. She profited by the pause, and continued:

"'Citizens, what do you want with me? Why are you incensed against me? What have I done to you? I am one of you—I am your sister!'

"Murmurs of approval and of protest were heard, but in the main the mob appeared to be astonished and suspicious.

"'She's fooling us, the aristocrat,' shrieked a woman, who, with her dishevelled hair, flushed face and crooked fingers ready to claw the delicate girl's eyes out, looked like one of the Furies let loose.

"'No, no,' exclaimed the marchioness earnestly. 'I swear to you that I am no longer an aristocrat, but a woman of the people. In proof of it, here is my future husband,' and she pointed to the farmer, who, too overcome to utter a word, would have bent his knee before the brave young girl, but she prevented him.

"Her remarkable presence of mind was their salvation. The fact that she was willing to marry a simple citizen caused a complete revulsion of feeling, and the wretches who a moment before had been lusting for her blood, now applauded her.

"'We must be married under the Tree of Liberty,' she added, 'and, citizens, we invite you all to the wedding.'

"Another burst of applause followed this invitation. Friendly hands seized the little marchioness and the farmer, and they were straightway shouldered and carried in triumph to the Tree of Liberty, escorted by the cheering mob, waving their pikes and scythes.

"The marriage took place, and the crowd, joining hands, danced the Carmagnole frantically around the newly-made husband and wife, and the festivities with eating and drinking, were kept up till nightfall, when those of the revelers who were not too intoxicated escorted the couple back to the farm.

"As soon as they were alone the assumed familiarity of the farmer immediately vanished. Doffing his hat, he bent respectfully before the marchioness, and with tears of gratitude in his eyes, exclaimed:

"'Mademoiselle, I thank you from the bottom of my heart. Your sacrifice was our salvation. I beg you to pardon the liberties the critical position in which we were placed compelled me to take. It is, of course, my duty to render you your liberty, and I do so.'

"'Sacrifice! Liberty!' said the marchioness, 'but I am free, and I have made no sacrifice. Don't you then understand that I love you?'

A BUNCHGRASS SHEPHERD DOG.

Left With 2,000 Sheep. He Had 6,000 When His Owner Got Back.

A bunchgrass shepherd dog of eastern Oregon is the hero of this tale. The name of the dog was Jim, and his owner was called Bob Thompson. This story dates back to 1878, when sheep were sheep and wool was wool; when a good sheep dog was worth more than a horse; when horses were horses and bicycles were not known.

Every sheep camp had its crack pack of dogs, and in Thompson's pack there were thirty. At the time of the Bannock uprising Thompson and his men were herding sheep ten miles from Pendleton. One morning a messenger rode up in hot haste, warning the shepherds to flee for their lives, as the Indians were on the warpath. The shepherds fled. Only the dogs and sheep were left. For the next few days the dogs came straggling into Pendleton one by one, and within a week they were all present or accounted for; all but Jim. At the end of a month the Indian uprising had been put down and Thompson went out to look for his sheep. He had left two thousand and he found six thousand, all quietly feeding together. As he rode near he saw, perched on a tall butte, a black object that turned out to be Jim, who gave his master a frantic welcome and then proudly started with him to inspect the band.

Single-handed, Jim had taken care of those sheep for thirty days, driving them to fresh pastures each day. Every stray band that he met he had chased into his drove, until he had become the king herder of the bunchgrass country. Hard work had agreed with him, and he was as fat as a possum in persimmon time. He was too smart to go hungry, and had picked out the fat of the flock whenever he wanted to make a meal. Jim is gone now, but his memory is respected by every wool puller in Umatilla county.—New York Sun.

Duped the Burglar.

Bythe dim light of the dark-lantern the burglar read the following inscription on a card tacked to the outside of the window he was about to pry up with a jimmy:

TO MIDNIGHT CALLERS:
Do Not Ruin the Fastenings of this Window
By Prying It Up.
The Rear Door of the House is Always Unlocked.

"The card is dusty and covered with cobwebs," he said to himself, "It has been there a long time, but I'll just go around and see if that door's still unlocked. If they'd rather have me go in that way I think I'll humor them."

Whereupon he stole softly around to the rear door, opened it, and a man in one of the sleeping-rooms upstairs, awakened by a burglar-alarm, came down and shot at him.

This incident shows, dear children, that it is possible to be too confiding. —Chicago Tribune.

Well Named.

"Why are you going to call your ice yacht 'Gossip,' old man?" asked Van-Wither.

"Because," said Von Miner, "there isn't much to it, but how it does go!"—Cincinnati Tribune.

WORTH WHILE.

'Tis easy enough to be pleasant
When life flows along like a song;
But the man worth while is the one who will smile
When everything goes dead wrong,
For the test of the heart is trouble,
And it always comes with the years,
And the smile that is worth the praise of earth
Is the smile that comes through tears.

It is easy enough to be prudent
When nothing tempts you to stray;
When without or within no voice of sin
Is luring your soul away.
But it's only a negative virtue
Until it is tried by fire,
And the life that is worth the honor of earth
Is the one that resists desire.

By the cynic, the sad, the fallen,
Who had no strength for the strife,
The world's highway is cumbered to-day;
They make up the item of life,
But the virtue that conquers passion,
And the sorrow that hides in a smile—
It is these that are worth the homage of earth
For we find them but once in a while.
—Ella Wheeler Wilcox in Congregationalist.

A DISCORD.

BY E. J. W.

The Soprano was late that morning. As she brushed hastily past the Organist glanced up from his instrument to whisper,—

"Better late than never."

She gave him a nod and laughing sidewise glance, and slipped softly into her chair between the short, good-natured Second Soprano and the tall, melancholy Tenor. She herself was neither short nor tall, but quite the happy medium.

A light snow was falling, and a few of the great feathery flakes still clung to her sealskin jacket. The Second Soprano obligingly flicked them off with her handkerchief, in return for which she received a flashing smile of thanks.

The Soprano smiled a great deal. Indeed, she could well afford to, for her teeth were faultless, and her eyes of that rare golden brown color which always reminds one of a sunbeam dancing upon a clear, dark pool of water.

Beautiful eyes, truly, and reflecting in their liquid depths the many and varying moods of an impulsive, generous, intense nature.

When she rose in her place and sent that wonderful voice of hers ringing and thrilling straight into the hearts of the people, they listened in an ecstacy of enjoyment and sudden spiritual uplifting.

For some the radience of actual divinity lay along the dim old aisles and touched the exquisite faces upon the chancel window; the solemn tones of the great organ became the blended sweetness of many harps and voices led by the one soaring, vibrating voice which sang praise and honor and glory to the Most High.

Something of this kind was said to her once. She threw back her dainty head and laughed long and heartily.

"Really, you do me too much honor!" she cried when she could speak. "Far too much honor! Why, I have studied in Paris, Berlin, Rome—I have spent thousands of dollars to get just that quality into my voice which you are pleased to consider so admirable. It is my stock in trade, and I should be foolish indeed did I not use it to the best advantage."

She loved her art with ardent enthusiasm, and pursued it unremittingly. She had been known to spend months upon an aria before she considered herself capable of rendering it in an acceptable manner before the congregation.

She said once, carelessly, that she should never marry—a husband would be an encumbrance. Women of her type rarely married men with interests or attainments similar to their own, and if not there could be but one result from the union—utter wretchedness either for one or both, which was true enough as far as it went.

She had not said this in the hearing of the Organist, yet it came, as such things do, to his ears.

There can be no secrets exchanged or kept in a choir. Every confidence, every bit of gossip, soon becomes common property.

The Organist knew perfectly well that his love for the Soprano afforded delectable food for many a conjecture, which knowledge often made him provokingly absent-minded; or was it the fault of the narrow mirror which hung before him on the organ? That dear, delightful bit of French plate glass! If it was tilted at just the proper angle he could catch a glimpse of a rosy ear nestling in a mass of dark hair, and a white neck gleaming above a brown fur collar, though the vision, 'tis true, was often spoiled by the intervening heads of the lower satellites.

Then there was always the hope that she would permit him, as she sometimes did, to walk home with her after service. True, she lived barely a block from the church, and the distance always seemed so short to him, because from delight, fear and longing he was bereft of speech, or if he spoke at all, must only utter merest commonplaces about the weather, or the attendance, or the choir, instead of saying that which was in his heart to say.

On this particular morning he seemed more than ordinarily lost in thought. When he began to play the "Nunc Dimittis" instead of the "Te Deum," the Basso apprised him of his mistake by vigorously poking him in the back with a hymn book. The poor organist colored to the roots of his wavy blonde hair. He hastily changed the music, and by the skillful use of a few chords dropped into the required key. But the blunder obviously annoyed him. He was of an extremely nervous temperament.

The Soprano sang a solo that morning—an exquisite, difficult thing which she had taken great pains in preparing. After the first note or two she saw that she had the undivided attention of every listener. An appreciative audience is always inspiring. The Soprano caught the spirit and sang with rare sympathy and power.

But alas for the Organist! Just when the accompaniment was most needed to sustain the harmony his fingers slipped on the keys. Crash! There was a heavy, hideous discord. The beautiful voice hesitated for a moment, then went on smoothly enough, but the effect was spoiled.

When the Soprano resumed her seat all the bright color had left her cheeks, and her eyes had a curious, unmistakable gleam in them which was only there when she was very angry.

After service the Organist lingered timidly, hoping for an opportunity to speak to her and make an humble apology for his carelessness. But none presented itself, and he saw her leave the gallery and pass down the stairs in company with the Basso, whom he cordially detested.

This was the drop too much. He knew she was angry with him; he could have borne that, hoping that time would make all right; but to see her go deliberately off with the Basso, a great, coarse, hulking fellow who openly admired her, and who openly, also, saw a great deal of amusement in his (the Organist's) silent adoration!

Ah, that was worst of all! The poor fellow, his heart bursting with an agony of remorse, jealousy and love, stumbled out into the street, where the snow was still falling softly, pityingly, as it always falls in the streets of a great city.

That evening it was the Organist who entered the choir last of all, looking very pale and miserable. The Soprano watched him out of the corner of her eye while he unrolled his music, placed it on the rack and adjusted the stops of the organ. She was in her gayest mood, and the choir soon warmed under the influence of her merriment. Even the Tenor permitted his melancholy features to become distorted in a smile.

After service the choir leisurely dispersed, laughing and chatting good-naturedly. Only the Organist lingered, and he apparently was engaged in gathering up his music. The Soprano went out with the Second Soprano, of whom she was especially fond, thereby openly snubbing the over-confident Basso.

But at the door she stopped with a sudden exclamation.

"My gloves—I must have dropped them somewhere. I will just run back after them."

She slipped noiselessly up the stairs and into the choir, deserted now save for the Organist, who was leaning against the organ with his face hidden. His very attitude was so suggestive of depression that the Soprano's warm little heart melted at once. She went up to him and touched him softly on the arm.

He started, and turned to see a pale, earnest face and eyes big and bright with welling tears, lifted to his own.

"I came back," she faltered hurriedly. "I want to say I—am sorry I lost my temper this morning. I—I don't want you to feel hurt."

She paused abruptly.

As for the Organist, after the first dazed look of bewilderment had passed from his face he grew positively radiant. He was not so stupid that he could not define something in her face and manner that had never been there before. All her saucy audacity was gone, and she was just a tender, penitent woman—yes, and a loving one as well.

"You came back!" he said, when at last he found words and a voice with which to utter them. "Then you do really care something about me, after all!"

His arm stole around her.

"A great deal?" he whispered.

"A very great deal!" the Soprano answered, hiding her happy face on his shoulder.

"Laugh and Grow Fat."

It is said that every hearty laugh in which a man or woman indulges tends to prolong life, as it makes the blood move more rapidly and gives a new and different stimulus to all the organs of the body from what is in force at other times. Therefore, perhaps, the saying, "Laugh and grow fat," is not an exaggerated one, but has a foundation in fact. No truer words were ever uttered than those which state so clearly: "Laugh, and the world laughs with you; weep, and you weep alone." The jolly, wholesome, happy-hearted people are those who have most friends and see the best that life holds out to them.—Churchman.

What He Were.

Son—"I simply can't get this lesson."

Father—"Don't give it up, Thomas. Remember that General Grant's great successes were largely due to the fact that he never knew when he was licked."

Son—"Then he must have worn a board in the seat of his trousers, same as Billy Brown does."—Leslie's Weekly.

Presence of Mind.

Peter O'Shaughnessy, a prospector of this city, while at work in Sheep Gulch started a landslide at an elevation of 4,000 feet. With rare presence of mind O'Shaughnessy sat astride of his shovel and, with the exception of a few bruises, rode safely to the bottom.—Cor. Salt Lake Tribune.

Equals of Professional Strong Men.

Professional strong men have equals in various respects in private life. It is asserted of Alonzo Lowe of Greenfield, Indiana, that he has lifted one of his horses clear of the ground, and that he can shoulder alone and carry a barrel of sugar.

NEW YORK TRIBUNE.

Recognized as a Leader of Public Opinion.

The N. Y. Tribune offers to the public a newspaper which is absolutely representative of the best opinion of the Republican party on all national issues. It is dignified, strong, complete and patriotic.

The Daily Tribune is $10 a year. The Weekly, $1, but can be obtained, in conjunction with various local papers, on more advantageous terms. The Semi-Weekly is $2 a year.

A Newspaper and Magazine Both.

The Semi-Weekly Tribune, printed Tuesdays and Fridays, is one of the best general newspapers in the country for a wide-awake farmer, professional man, merchant, manufacturer or mechanic. It saves the necessity of buying other newspapers. It supplements admirably a local daily; many people take it in place of one.

The agricultural page will contain this year, in addition to regular features, a weather review, many descriptions of the actual results obtained on small farms, and other matters of particular use to gardeners, fruit-growers, farmers, dairymen and live-stock raisers.

Stories of the War With Spain.

During each week the reader will find a column of "Questions and Answers," letters from correspondents in London and Paris; a page devoted to science and mechanics; home interests and other things which interest women, including the "Tribune Sunshine Society;" some good games of checkers; a series of thrilling stories of actual experiences in the war with Spain, written by soldiers and sailors; and advance information of new enterprises of importance to manufacturers, mechanics and business men.

Market Reports the Standard.

The markets will be kept up to their present high standard. It is the intention of The Tribune at all times to add to them whatever quotations will render them of greater value. The finest compliment paid to The Semi-Weekly Tribune is the fact that it enjoys the subscriptions of a large number of merchants, dairyman and farmers who disagree with its political sentiments, but who find its accurate market reports essential to the proper conduct of their business. It always safe to look at The Tribune before one buys or sells country produce. Once a week there is a special market article on one particular topic.

Pictorial Supplement.

With Friday's number there is an illustrated Supplement, 20 to 24 pages, printed on specially fine paper, full of delightful reading, enlivened with from thirty to fifty half-tone or other pictures. Every reader admits that this Supplement is equal to a magazine in its contents, and better than a magazine in being quicker to lay before its readers perfectly fresh discussions of matters which are attracting attention. Sample copies of Friday's issue will be sent free on application. The Supplement contains two pages of humor; a fascinating letter from Ex-Attache, a gentleman who has served at many of the great courts of the world, and who speaks of kings, emperors and noblemen from actual knowledge; book reviews; short stories; dramatic and musical criticisms; the finest work of great architects and artists; letters from abroad; talk on scientific subjects, new warships, etc.; gossip by pungent writers; and, in fact, the whole range of higher topics in which intelligent men and women are deeply interested, and a profusion of beautiful illustrations. The Supplement is the cream of the whole week's work in the Tribune office.

Clubs.

Any reader who may find it convenient to raise a club of subscribers for The Semi-Weekly Tribune is invited to do so, and to send to this office for sample copies, etc.

N. J. A. C.	7	17	944
Cranford Casino	4	14	811

Monday evening, the Westfield Athletic Club rolled three games against the Newark Bay Boat Club on the latter's alleys at Bayonne. The Newark Bay team took two out of three of the series. The first game went to the home team by just two pins.

Westfield seems to have lost its grip at bowling. The veteran five of the Westfield A. C. has been losing games here for some time and has fallen from its high estate. The only trouble is that Elizabeth has been falling a little faster and so manages to keep behind Westfield in the race.

The bowling team of the Roselle Casino took a firmer grasp on first place in the Central Journal League by winning three games straight from the New Jersey Athletic Club Tuesday evening. The games were rolled on the Roselle alleys. The Roselle team made a better showing than they have done so far this year, scoring 903 in one game.

The Park Club will meet the bowlers of the Roselle Casino in the Park Club alleys in this city Monday evening to roll three games in the Central Journal League. It will be probably the most exciting series of games played in the league this year. Three straight for the Park Club would undoubtedly give them such a lift for first place that they would be uncomfortably close for Roselle. The latter understands the situation and will try to defeat the Parks at home if possible.

There are only three ways of consolidating that look at all practical. Greater Plainfield can either become a part of Union or Somerset county or form a new county of its own. These three methods will be suggested to the voters and their preference asked.

It is not intended that the personal canvass and the formal vote at election time shall conflict. Both methods of ascertaining public opinion on the question will be tried. The personal canvass is more, however, to ascertain which method of annexation would be favored by the friends of consolidation. The vote will be simply for or against consolidation.

Lantern Missing This Morning.

The Street Commissioner set a lantern out last night on Clinton avenue to warn teamsters of a washout in the road. The lantern was placed on a board and held in position by two bricks. This morning the board and the two bricks were there, but the lantern was missing. Evidently some one coming along during the night has wanted a lantern so they took it, not caring what danger teamsters ran from the hole in the road.

Niblo Palmer Found Guilty.

Niblo Palmer, contractor at Roselle, was found guilty last night by a jury in the Union County Court of an atrocious assault on Councilman James W. Hope, of Roselle. The jury coupled with its verdict a recommendation for mercy. Councilman Hope withheld final payment for work on the ground that a contract had not been properly performed. Driving Rod Broke.

One of the driving rods on the engine that draws the 7:53 New York train broke yesterday morning at Netherwood and delayed the train for a few minutes. Danger in Early Rising.

Until now people have been content to accept the theory that early rising—in conjunction, of course, with a correspondingly early habit of going to bed—is conducive to health. But this belief, like many others, has been shattered by the latest scientific research.

"People who get up early," says an eminent scientist, "are more liable to go mad than others."

In support of his theory he cities the prevalence of insanity among those engaged in agricultural pursuits. Though it is sad to see a time-honored doctrine thus exploded, one is disposed to favor the new opinion at the expense of the old. In any case, there can be no harm in being on the safe side, and after all, it is so easy not to get up early.

His Impression of Washington.

"What most impresses you in regard to George Washington?" asked the teacher.

The boy debated with himself for several minutes before answering. Then he said:

"The easy time he had when he went to school."

"What do you mean by that?" demanded the teacher.

"Well, he didn't have any long list of Presidents to learn in their regular order."—Chicago Post.

Latest Observations.

We will always find good when we look for it with a good heart.

Self-righteousness never has any mercy on itself or anybody else.

Poverty wants some, luxury many, avarice all things.

It is charity only that maketh riches worth the owning.

Some people look happiest when they have bad news to tell.

We have done too little when we have not done our prayerful best.

While two Irishmen were viewing the hieroglyphics on the obelisk in Central Park, New York, one remarked to the other:

"Can you make it out, Barney?"

"No, but I think if I had my flute I could play it."

Mrs. Goldstein: "Ikey, Ikey! Felix was svallered a penny."

Mr. Goldstein: "Vot a great poy! Alretty he vants to shtart in peeziness, as a penny-in-der-slot machine."—Tid-Bits.

How He Announces It.

Bishop Wilson of Calcutta was called eccentric, which seems a mild term in view of some of the stories told of him. Here is one: "A young clerical servant of the company, newly arrived from home, was a guest at the palace, awaiting orders, and interceded with the domestic chaplain to get him a good station. The importunity reached the bishop in due course, but for some days produced no response. At last, one evening the decision was thus strangely imparted: "Behold, O Lord, thy servants assembled under this roof, especially the Rev. Mr. ——. Cast over him thy protection, seeing that he leaves us to-morrow morning for the remote and insalubrious station of ——,' naming one of the 'penal settlements' of the service."—Troy Times.

Can He See the Point.

"That so? He'll probably put on cars enough now to make it possible for every passenger to have a seat."

"Why?"

"People can't hang on to straps and read at the same time."—Cleveland Leader.

Permanent Investment.

"You promised to lend me $5, but you have only given me $4," said Jim Neverpay to his friend Charlie Gotsome.

"Yes, I know. I am keeping the other dollar to buy postage stamps to put on the dunning letters I'll have to write you before you pay me back the other $4."—New York World.

Deceitfulness of Appearance.

"My poor man, I have nothing for you. Why don't you—"

"Poor nothin'! I've got dollars to your cents. I'm just back from the Klondike, and I'm lookin' for my sister. Are you the slim-legged little whipper snapper she married?"—Chicago Tribune.

OLD GREY-HAIRED MEN FOUGHT WITH FISTS.

IS EIGHTY-THREE YEARS OLD

"GENERAL" WARREN ROSS BORROWED HIS AXE WITHOJT LEAVE.

The Old Man Nearly Starved in a Shanty Near Stony Hill Last Summer—Kind People Helped Him—Has Been Ill Part of the Winter—Was a Great Pugilist in His Young Days.

"General" Warren Ross is looking for a new home. James Clark and his wife are living alone in the Lord homestead, near Stony Hill, once more. The primary cause of it all was Jim Clark's axe but it ended in the aged fish peddler, forgetful of how aged and decrepid he was growing, thrashing his old friend until the latter was compelled to flee for his life.

It was only last summer that the people of Plainfield learned of the helpless state of old Jim Clark and his wife, how they lived on almost nothing up in their little hut in the woods and how both were so weak that they could hardly stir about. Kind folks of this city went to their rescue and took them relief.

The aged couple were given the privilege of occupying the Lord homestead during the absence of any regular tenants. They both improved in health and lived there quietly but happily. During the winter Clark was again taken ill and old Warren Ross, commonly called the "General," went to the Lord place and lived there, looking after Clark's horse, cutting the wood and spending the rest of his time trying to gain a livelihood at odd jobs about the neighborhood.

For the last month Ross has been employed by Thomas Xener, of Stony Hill, cutting wood by the cord. Ross borrowed Clark's axe without asking and used it at his work.

The warm weather of the past week set Jim upon his feet again and brought new life to the old man. He became quite enterprising and wandered about the place. Then he found that his axe was gone. He accused Ross of taking it and threatened to thrash him if he did it again.

Now the "General" considered Jim an old man, for the latter is eighty-three years old, while Ross is only sixty five. He admitted taking the axe, but laughed at the idea of Jim's attempting to thrash him.

When Jim was a young man, he won for himself a great reputation as a strong and powerful man, unusually handy at his fists. He was then peddling clams when six of the Perth Amboy fishermen announced that he could dig no clams there. Jim went to Perth Amboy, despite their prohibition. He met the six fishermen and thrashed them all. That won for him the admiration of his friends and they told far and wide of his prowess. Finally, the champion pugilist of New Jersey, the "Awful" Gardiner, came and they met one night near New Providence. Jim hit his opponent beneath the ear with a right swing of his fist and Gardner's life nearly ended then and there.

The memory of those glorious times of the past came back to Jim and he forgot that he was old and crippled and started for the "General." Ross awaited the onslaught. With right and left, Jim hammered his adversary with mighty blows of his big fists, finally tumbling him over in the mud. Then Ross picked himself up and departed hastily and has not since returned. Jim went to bed, tired and stiff after the unwonted exercise.

Congratulations to Kean.

Elizabeth, Jan. 27.—As early as Tuesday telegrams of congratulation began to pour in over the Western Union and Postal Telegraph wires for John Kean, and last evening it required the services of nearly the entire force of both these offices to deliver his messages, to say nothing of those sent by telephone, letter and conveyed in person.

Engineer's Brother Buried.

The body of Rev. James Prendergast, the young Roman Catholic priest who died at Raleight, N. C., on Monday, was buried at Phillipsburg yesterday. THE LINCOLN DINNER.

THE AFFAIR TO BE HELD IN STAR THEATRE IN ELIZABETH.

It is Expected That it Will Be the Grandest Affair Yet Held by the Association—Some of the Speakers.
(Special to The Daily Press)

Elizabeth, January 27—The annual meeting and banquet of the Lincoln Association of Union county will be held in the Star Theatre in this city Monday evening, Feb. 13th, next, at 6:15 o'clock. This date has been selected by the executive committee for the reason that in this year Lincoln's Birthday falls on Sunday.

It is confidently expected that the event will be one of extraordinary interest and enjoyment. The Star Theatre has been engaged for the occasion; it will be handsomely and appropriately decorated; flowers and plants will lend fragrance and beauty to the place, and suitable music will be provided.

The novel innovation adopted last year, that of admitting ladies to the balcony, proved so eminently pleasing and successful, that the committee have unanimously decided to invite the ladies this year, that they may hear and enjoy the speeches. Light refreshments will be served to them.

The committee on speakers have invited a number of very distinguished orators to respond to appropriate toasts; and there is every reason to believe that the quality of the speeches will equal, if not exceed, the standard of former years. The names of the speakers will be announced later.

In anticipation of a great demand for tickets, the executive committee have limited the number to 200, and this limit will positively be observed.

Heretofore the names of the speakers have been announced in the circulars, but Gov. Voorhees, who is this year the chairman of the committee on speakers, has been so busy with other matters that the committee has been delayed in this work. Three of the speakers have, however, been secured. Congressman McCall, of Massachusetts, is one; Judge Hoffman, of Jersey City, another, and Hon. John S. Wise, former Congressman of Virginia, makes the third. Another is to be secured and will be announced in due season.

The prospects are that the banquet will be the finest ever enjoyed by the Lincoln Association.

THREATENING FLAMES.

Discovered Just in Time to Prevent Destruction of the House.

Yesterday afternoon about 4 o'clock a fire broke out in the house occupied by William Chamberlain and family, of East Third street. In five minutes the house would have been doomed had the flames not been discovered. The fire was caused by the walls becoming overheated from a stove. The fire was spreading rapidly when Mr. Chamberlain, his brother-in-law, Theodore Martin and John Kiederling arrived home from work. Mrs. Chamberlain summoned them at once and it required considerable hard work on the part of the three men to put the fire out. The fire spread to some clothing that was hanging in a corner and damaged it considerably. The woodwork was also damaged. In all the loss will be about $40. Mr. Martin, in fighting the fire, was burned in several places, and his hair was also singed. Mr. Chamberlain was burned about the hands and face, while Mr. Kiederling escaped without any injuries.

HE WAS OF THE JERSEY RUNYONS.

Former Governor Wert's Father-in-Law Passes Away.
(Special to The Daily Press.)

Jersey City, January 27.—Asher S. Runyon, at the age of 87, died Wednesday night at the residence of his daughter, Mrs. Geo. T. Werts, 80 Crescent avenue. For some years Mr. Runyon had been confined to his room, but had been in his usual health until Tuesday when after having a bilious attack he entered into a heavy sleep until 9 o'clock Wednesday evening, when without any warning he passed quietly away.

Mr. Runyon was born and lived in Piscataway Township. He came from the old French Hugenot family of New Jersey Runyons, and was reared and brought up with that purity and strength of character which so beautifully characterized his entire life.

Mr. Runyon was the father of Mrs. Governor Geo. T. Werts, ex-Comptroller Albert L. Runyon, Mrs. C. B. Martin and the late Henry Wisner Runyon.

THE GREAT INDOOR GAME

WHAT IS GOING ON IN LOCAL BASKET BALL CIRCLES.

Happenings of Interest to Plainfield Enthusiasts—What the Local Teams are Doing—Gossip Among the Players.

There is every prospect that the proposed basket ball game between the girls' team of the Plainfield High School and the team from the Montclair Academy will take place in the next two weeks. The Montclair girls are quite anxious to have the Plainfield team come there and have offered to pay half their visitors' expenses. What the Plainfield team wishes, however, is a return game and considerable correspondence is now going on between the two teams regarding the appearance of the Montclair team in Plainfield. It seems probable that the return game will be satisfactorily arranged.

The team that is to represent the Girls' Athletic Association of the Plainfield High School in basket ball contests this season has finally been selected by its captain, Miss Jessie Pruden. The team, as now chosen, will probably be the one to meet the team from the Montclair academy in case the games with that team are satisfactorily arranged. It is made up as follows: Forwards, Marjorie Sterling and Beatrice Miner; centre, Jessie Pruden; guards, Bessie Randolph and Alice Morgan. Miss Pauline Denton will be the substitute. Of the team the Misses Sterling, Pruden and Randolph are from the Senior class, while the others are from the Junior class. All have played the game since it was first introduced in the High School last winter and play on their respective class teams. Miss Pruden is captain as well as president of the Girls' Athletic Association.

This evening the basket ball team of the Plainfield Y. M. C. A. will go to Summit and play the first of a series of games with the Y. M. C. A. team from that place. The old rivalry between Plainfield and Summit is well known and has continued since the time basket ball was first intruduced in this section. The teams used to be well matched, but Plainfield has always managed to get the best of it in the long run. Plainfield has made wonderful progress during the past year and will undoubtedly out class her opponents in the game this evening. The disadvantages of a strange gymnasium may make the contest more even, however.

Monday evening will see another basket ball game in the gymnasium of the Plainfield Y. M. C. A. The visiting team will be the Olympias, of Brooklyn. The Olympics are new comers in Plainfield but have the reputation of playing a good game. Manager Fuller has arranged a series of games with them the first of which is played in this city Monday night. The Olympic team is composed of young men who are busy at business duties all day but spend their evenings frequently in playing basket ball. The team is comparatively a new one but has made a good showing against the other registered teams in Brooklyn.

The basket ball team of the Eastern District of the Brooklyn Y. M. C. A., which was suspended by the A. A. U. some time ago, has decided to remain an unregistered team and is arranging games with other teams of the same class. The Eastern District team is one of the strongest in Brooklyn and its loss is greatly regretted by the few teams in the registered class. Some of the New York athletic organizations are putting two teams on the field, one registered and the other not registered.

RIVALRY IS KEEN.

Contestants in The Daily Press Subscription Contest are on the Hustle.

New subscriptions are pouring into The Daily Press office every day telling of the energy of those who are trying for prizes in The Daily Press subscription contest. The number of contestants is steadily increasing, new ones being added to the list every day. The rivalry is keen and every contestant is working his or her best to secure the coveted awards. Much interest has been manifested in the complete course at the Gregg School of shorthand, which is offered as second prize in the contest.

These who have taken the pains to look up the Gregg system which is used there have found that it is fast becoming the leading system on account of the short length of time it takes a student to learn it and become proficient therein. The older systems require from nine to twelve months study while the Gregg system can be learned in three. This made possible by omitting the vowel and word signs used in the old systems.

YOUNG GIRL MADE A VICTIM OF DECEPTION

Outrageous Conduct of a New York Detective at the 'Plains.

CRUEL CHARGE WAS MADE.

MARY ALBERTS WAS THREATENED WITH ARREST.

A Young Woman Who Became a Mother in a New York Hospital, and Then Deserted Her Baby, Gave Miss Alberts' Name and Caused a Grevious Misunderstanding—Detective's Way Incensed People.
(Special to The Daily Press)

Scotch Plains, Jan. 27.—The family of George Alberts, of Scotch Plains were yesterday made the victims of a serious piece of deception played on the New York authorities a few days ago by a young girl who craftly used the name of May Alberts to cover up her identity after having deserted a two weeks' old baby in a New York hospital a few days ago. It seems that the girl was admitted to the hospital and became a mother. She gave her name as Mary Alberts, of Scotch Plains. As soon as she was able to get around she left the hospital and disappeared, leaving her child to its fate.

Yesterday, a New York detective visited Scotch Plains and made inquiries for Mary Alberts. He was directed to the home of the Alberts, and after being admitted announced his intention of taking the daughter, Mary, back to New York with him to face the charge of desertion. For nearly an hour Miss Alberts and her mother expostulated with the detective that there must be a mistake somewhere, but the officer was obdurate and threatened all sorts of things if Miss Alberts did not go to New York with him. He insisted that she was the mother of the deserted child, and even went so far as to pull out a pair of handcuffs from his pocket and threaten to handcuff the young woman if she did not come along peaceably.

At the sight of the handcuffs the young girl almost went into hysterics, and the mother had great difficulty in quieting her. Finally the detective withdrew uttering all kinds of threats and promising to return soon with the proper papers to compel the girl to go to New York under the disgraceful brand. Since then Miss Alberts, who is greatly respected in the community, has been in a higtly nervous state.

The citizens of Scotch Plains are highly incensed at the outrageous conduct of the detective and will make an effort to have him punished by his superiors for the manner he assumed towards Miss Alberts and her mother.

OIL FIRE ON ICE POND.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Bound Brook, Jan. 27.—A great column of black smoke appeared to the south of this place, this morning, causing general alarm among the residents. It was first supposed to be a large fire but investigation showed it to be the burning of oil that was leaking from the pipe line of the National Transit Company, a branch of the Standard Oil Company.

There are two pipe lines that pass near Bound Brook, one to the north and the other to the south, the property respectively of the Tide Water Oil Company and the National Transit Co. A break occurred in the latter near an ice pond, belonging to F. S. Carr, a Bound Brook butcher, which is located close to the Raritan canal, a mile below Bound Brook.

The oil ran down and covered the pond. In some manner, it was set fire and burned most of the morning until the flow of the oil was stopped. The wind blew the flames away from the large ice houses and so they were unharmed by the fire.

Adam Seigel, a farmer who lives near by, says that he saw a man drive up in a buggy, hitch his horse and examine the ground. The stranger spent some time there. Soon after, the fire was first noticed. Mr. Siegel believes that the man set fire to the oil that was escaping.

Rev. Dr. French Dying.

Newark, N. J., Jan. 27.—The condition of Rev. Dr. J. Clement French, pastor of Park Presbyterian Church, who has been ill for several weeks, is such that his physicians have abandoned hopes of his recovery. His death is looked for at any moment.

Theodore Maatz, of East Fifth street, has gone on a business trip, west.

MANY AT TURKEY SUPPER

Annual Event Given by Ladies' Christian Work Society—252 Suppers Served—Those Assisting to Make it a Success.

The annual reunion and turkey supper of the Ladies' Christian Work Society of Trinity Reformed church opened in the lecture room of that church last evening and will continue tonight. Like other affairs conducted by that enterprising society it was a complete success, and the rooms were crowded with members of the congregation and their friends from other churches who came to partake of the bountiful spread provided.

In the main room, six supper tables were arranged. A banquet lamp illuminated each with its handsome display of silver and china, the ladies in charge of each table vieing with each other in the beauty of the table decorations.

Mrs. Paul and Mrs. Disborough were in charge of one table, assisted by Miss Jeanette Simpson and Miss Maude VanDyke. Mrs. P. A. Emmons was at another with the Misses Grace Emmons and Dora Ulrick as her assistants. Mrs. H. W. Marshall presided at the third and Miss Grace Smith and Miss Ada Chandler as waitresses. Mrs. Benj. Newell and Mrs. Templin were at another table, assisted in the serving, by Miss Jennie Quick and Miss Edith DuBois. Another table was presided over by Mrs. H. J. Martin with Miss Gertrude Tier and Miss Grace Rowland as waitresses. The sixth table was commanded by Mrs. Robert Clark, Jr., assisted by Miss Grace Berg and Miss Alice Berg.

Booths were arranged about the sides of the room for the sale of various articles. At the cake table were Mrs. John Whitenack, Mrs. Frank E. Woodruff and Mrs. Townsend. Mrs. Sheppard, Mrs. VanDoren and Mrs. O. W. Dunham divided the cares of the apron table.

At a rustic lemonade booth the ladies in charge were Mrs. VanDyke, Mrs. Curtis M. Thorpe, Mrs. B. Frank Coriell and Miss VanEps. The flavoring extract table was in charge of Mrs. VanName and Mrs. VanZandt. Here were sold bottles of flavoring extract donated by Carl Kaerth. Miss Emma Gillem and Mrs. E. E. Anthony were in command of a "mystery" table. The candy booth at the end of the lecture room was in charge of Mrs. E. H. Bird, Mrs. William Startup and Miss Minnie Williams.

The coat room near the entrance was looked after by William Startup. Postmaster E. H. Bird and E. T. VanWinkle alternated as door-keeper.

The whole affair was under the charge of a general committee composed of Mrs. E. H. Bird, chairman; Mrs. P. M. Demarest, Mrs. F. A. Church, Mrs. E. T. VanWinkle, Mrs. Seaman Williams, Mrs. S. C. Baker, Mrs. J. Krymer, Mrs. Robert Clark, Jr., and Mrs. Harry W. Marshall.

Turkey was the principal dish of the supper, but the rest of the menu was an excellent one and there was plenty of everything. There were 253 persons who partook of the supper during the evening.

An informal programme was rendered during the evening by the Ladies' Orchestra, of which Mrs. Buckley is the leader. Their music was excellent.

One of the most important departments of a first-class supper, the kitchen, was in charge of an efficient superintendent, Mrs. P. M. Demarest. J. H. Tier, Sr., assisted the ladies very materially in the kitchen by carving the sixteen turkies served. The supper will be held again this evening, and another large attendance is expected.

MID-WINTER EXAMINATIONS.

High School Pupils to be Put to a Test Next Week.

The mid-winter examinations of the Plainfield High School will begin Monday and continue for the two days following. Of late years there has been a growing tendency among the educational authorities of the public schools to lay less stress on the examinations and more on the daily work. In some cities the examinations have been given up altogether, weekly tests, figuring in the daily work, taking their place.

This year the faculty of the High School have considerably reduced the examinations. Each examination, instead of taking three hours, will be reduced to two, and there will be two examinations each day. As a result the examinations will only occupy three days instead of a week.

MARRIED TO GET FREE.

NUPTIAL CEREMONY PERFORMED IN SOMERSET COUNTY JAIL.

Leberitz Promised to Marry Miss Beno and Then Failed to Keep His Agreement Until Locked Up in the Jail.
(Special to The Daily Press.)

Somerville, Jan. 27—Joseph F. Leberitz and Miss Mary Beno, of Raritan, were married Wednesday in the county jail. Last Sunday night Leberitz placed a ladder under the window of the room in which Miss Beno slept. Leberitz had climbed the ladder and entered Miss Beno's room, when she awakened. Screams of terror aroused her family and most of the neighborhood. Leberitz was captured by the girl's irate father, who threatened him with instant death.

Leberitz offered instead to marry Miss Beno, and the time for the marriage was set for Monday night, but Leberitz changed his mind and failed to appear. Tuesday a warrant was procured, and Constable Totten arrested Leberitz and lodged him in the county jail. After a night spent in a cell Leberitz sent a message to Miss Beno stating that if he was set at liberty he would marry her at once.

Accompanied by her friends and Justice Jacob Frech, of Raritan, Miss Beno visited the county jail Wednesday afternoon. She and Leberitz had a quiet talk in the corridor, which concluded by the party retiring to a private room of the jail, where Justice Frech pronounced them man and wife. After the ceremony Leberitz and his bride left the jail together.

A SERIOUS NOSE BLEED.

Heroic Measures Taken by Physicians to Stop the Unnatural Flow.

George R. Vanderhoef, of East Fifth street, is suffering with a peculiar case of bleeding at the nose which has caused the physicians considerable trouble to interrupt. The bleeding has continued now about a week, and although the unnatural flow of blood has been effectively quenched, it is only kept so by filling both of Mr. Vanderhoef's nostrils with cotton and compelling him to remain quietly at home.

The bleeding began about a week ago, and it was only with difficulty that it could be prevented from flowing so freely as to greatly weaken him. A small growth of some kind in one of the nostrils was thought to have something to do with it, so the physician burned that out with caustic yesterday. Instead of it acting as a check to the flow of blood, it seemed to open the blood vessels still wider, and it became necessary to take heroic measures to stop the bleeding. Mr. Vanderhoef is manager of the Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea Co.'s store on West Front street.

A SKATING PARTY.

There Wasn't Much Skating But it Was a Successful Affair Nevertheless.

The Misses Holly gave a skating party to a number of their friends last evening. The guests gathered at the Holly residence near Avon Park and spent part of the evening playing old-fashioned games, including tag, blindman's buff, on the lawn. It had been intended to spend most of the evening on Spring Lake, which is close by, but the warm weather of the day had made the ice soft and so the skating was not good.

The young people, numbering fifty altogether, had a very pleasant evening despite the fact that the skating didn't materialize and ended it by gathering in the house where refreshments were served and an impromptu dance enjoyed.

NINTH YEAR OF THE UNITARIAN SOCIETY.

Celebrated in an Auspicious Manner Last Night.

MANY CLERGYMEN HEARD.

REV. D. W. MOOREHOUSE DESCRIBES SOCIETY'S EARLY LIFE.

A Few of the Members First Organized in the Public Library in 1889—A Steady and Thrifty Growth Followed—What the Unitarian Church is Doing in Religious Thought.

The First Unitarian Society of Plainfield celebrated its ninth anniversary in All Souls' church on Park avenue, last evening, and was in every respect a success from a denominational standpoint. There were about seventy persons present, including the members of the Plainfield society and guests from other society out of town. The affair was held in the Sunday-school room, where a banquet was served at 7 o'clock. The guests were seated on either side of the tables that were arranged to form a letter "U."

After the banquet Samuel Huntington, a member of the Board of Trustees, acted as toast-master in the absence of President Henry B. Wells, who, together with Mrs. Wells, are now in Texas for the benefit of Mr. Wells' health. Mr. Huntington introduced the speakers of the evening, the first of whom was Rev. D. W. Moorehouse, of New York, secretary of the Conference, and the one who formed the Plainfield society. Mr. Moorehouse told briefly how a few of the members met at the Public Library in 1889 to organize. From there the members went to the Seventh-Day Baptist church, where a few meetings were held. After that the meetings were held for a time in a music store on East Front street, and then through the generosity of the late Mayor Job Male a house on Second place was given temporarily to hold meetings. Rev. W. E. Tilden was the first pastor called and he remained until the spring of 1889. Then Rev. Hobart Clark was called and remained six years, when he retired owing to ill health. The last and present pastor, Rev. Alfred Chase Nickerson, was then called. Mr. Moorehouse spoke of some of the dark days, but congratulated the members on their great success in securing such a beautiful house of worship and in their growing membership. He claimed that science had changed everything, and that higher criticism had established new literature, and had reconstructed the history of the Bible.

The next speaker on the programme was Rev. Thomas R. Slicer, pastor of All Souls' church, New York. He claimed that the Unitarian church is doing a work among the unchurched, and that a higher feeling and deeper thought was the rule of the members.

The next speaker was Rev. Hobart Clark, of West New Brighton, who was a former pastor of the church. He congratulated the church on its growth and recalled many incidents in connection with his pastorate here that were enjoyed. He mentioned the names of several persons, some now dead, who had given a great deal to the church.

Following this address remarks were made by Rev. D. M. Wilson, of Brooklyn, who was a classmate of Revs. Clark and Nickerson. Rev. Walter R. Hunt, of Orange, followed with a few remarks in which he congratulated the Plainfield society. He was followed by Rev. Arthur H. Grant, of Montclair, who also congratulated the members of the home church.

Mrs. David P. Hall was called on and she made a few remarks, in which she stated that the women rejoiced with the men in celebrating the anniversary of the church. The last speaker was the pastor of the home church, Rev. A. C. Nickerson. He spoke briefly about the growth of the Plainfield society, and said he felt sure that the next decade would see it in an advanced stage of prosperity. With these remarks the event came to an end, and after a brief social time the happy gathering dispersed.

Says That He Can't Get a Settlement.

William Miles, of New York, who formerly lived at 320 Somerset street, North Plainfield, is suing T. J. Carey in tort for $200. The suit was brought in Justice Nash's court and will be tried Monday. When Miles moved away from the borough he left his household goods with Mr. Carey to be sold. Miles claims that he has been unable to effect a settlement with Carey or to secure possession of the goods. J. P. D. Kirch represents the plaintiff.

GEN. EAGAN'S DEFENSE

VERY DRAMATIC INCIDENT

With Tears in His Eyes the Defendant Tells of His Sufferings Over Gen. Miles' Interview Reflecting on His Honor—Believed the Country Regarded Him as a Murderer for Gain.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 27.--When the Eagan court martial reassembled yesterday Judge Advocate Davis said that he wished to submit formally the testimony of General Miles as read on Wednesday, as an exhibit in this trial, and with this statement the prosecution rested its case.

Mr. Worthington, counsel for General Eagan, presented several exhibits in connection with the testimony read at Wednesday's session, including the correspondence between General Miles and General Eagan through the adjutant general, in which the latter asked if the interview printed in a New York newspaper in which General Miles is alleged to have severely criticised the commissary general's department, was authoritative.

Extracts from the alleged interview were also read and submitted as a part of the record.

Colonel W. L. Alexander, U. S. A., of the subsistence department, the first witness called by the defence, said he returned to Washington from Jamaica on the morning of the day General Eagan gave his testimony before the war investigating commission.

General Eagan, he said, was going over papers hastily in connection with his testimony and showed signs of great excitement.

Colonel George B. Davis, assistant to Commissary General Eagan, was the next witness. He testified that he had been very closely connected with General Eagan during the last several months. He was in the office on the day that General Miles gave his testimony before the war investigating commission, and when General Eagan saw the published statement of his testimony he became considerably excited and wrote to the general asking as to the truth of an interview published with General Miles.

The day before General Eagan appeared before the commission he read his statement over to the witness, who urged him to modify it somewhat, but he would not listen to him, and, walking up and down the room, said that he would not change a word of it. He was in a very nervous state. Newspaper clippings were constantly being received criticising General Eagan, and these greatly increased his excitement. Some of these clippings carried the idea that General Eagan was a murderer, and that he had acted corruptly in sending unfit food to the army. During these days, the witness said, General Eagan was wholly unfitted to perform the ordinary duties of his office. Up to this time the general had been a hard worker and never before exhibited signs of nervous strain.

In answer to a question Colonel Davis said that General Eagan's conduct of his office was perfectly honest, and he had always had the good of the soldier at heart, more so, in fact, than any other commissary general of whom he had ever known or heard.

After the testimony of Miss Millard, General Eagan's stenographer, and Mr. Rodgers, a clerk for General Eagan, had been taken, General Eagan was called.

He said that he entered the volunteer army in 1861 and in 1866 was made a second lieutenant in the regular army. He briefly gave a history of his military career. He received a wound in the Modoc war for which he received a brevet.

He held a conversation with the secretary of war and was told by him he desired to bring proceedings against General Miles. He was told that the immunity granted by the president would prevent such action.

Witness accepted this as the fact, but did not think this immunity covered the newspaper interview in which General Miles by inference declared him to be a murderer for gain. This statement, in his opinion, had taken away his character. He could not proceed against General Miles in the courts or otherwise, and felt that he might better be dead in the gutter.

General Eagan's eyes filled with tears, his voice trembled and he spoke feelingly. His honor as a soldier, he continued, had been attacked, and a soldier's honor should be as sacred as the honor of a woman. He had kept his sorrow to himself. He had stayed away from the clubs and could not sleep.

He felt that the people of this country had come to believe that he was a dishonest man; "but I am honest now," said the general, with feeling, "and I believe that no one who knows me will believe that I am a dishonest man. My record is clean, my uniform is unsullied; but I have been slandered and wronged."

In answer to a question by his counsel as to whether he had received benefit for any contract, General Eagan answered:

"No, on my honor and before my God, not one cent's profit gain did I ever receive and yet my office has disbursed nineteen million dollars, and I am now a poor man, so poor that I have not now sufficient money with which to pay your fee."

At noon Mr. Worthington announced that he was not able to proceed with his case, as the secretary of war, whom he desired as a witness, was before the war investigating commission and could not appear, and the court adjourned until to-day.

Rumor About Justice Harlan.

Washington, Jan. 27.--While Mr. Marsh was speaking in the House yesterday a report spread about that Justice Harlan of the supreme court had dropped dead.

Mr. Hepburn, who was in the chair, interrupted the proceedings to announce that there was no truth in the rumor, and his statement was received with applause from both sides of the chamber.

EXCITEMENT AT MANILA.

Philippine Congress Empowers Aguinaldo to Declare War on United States.

Manila, Jan. 27.--The Republica, the official organ of the Filipino government, announces that the Congress at Malolos has adopted the Philippine constitution, passed a vote of confidence in Aguinaldo and empowered him to declare war on the Americans whenever he deems it advisable.

At a mass meeting of women at Cavite, the paper adds, it was enthusiastically resolved to petition Aguinaldo for permission to take men's places in defence of independence and to bear arms if necessary.

Paterno has asked for and has been granted the privilege of "taking a prominent place in the line of battle against the Americans."

An American sentry last Friday evening killed a captain of Filipino artillery at the Tondo outpost. As a result the native press is intensely excited and denounces it as a "cowardly assassination."

Manila, via Hong Kong, Jan. 27.--On Saturday evening, January 21, five Filipinos, determined to have revenge for their captain's death, attempted to enter the United States lines.

An American sentry killed one of them, who was armed with a revolver. After an exchange of shots the others were arrested. The incident has intensified the excitement here.

The Malini cabinet has insisted upon the liberation of the Spanish civil prisoners, in commemoration of the proclamation of the Filipino republic, and also donated money to the native clergy. A decree to that effect was signed. The Spanish clergy, however, remain prisoners.

It is rumored that the Filipinos at their next meeting will give the Americans eight days in which to accede to their demand for recognition. The rumor is discredited.

Gen. Wood at Havana.

Havana, Jan. 27.--Major General Leonard Wood, military governor of the department of Santiago, has arrived here from the United States to confer with Major General Brooke, the governor general of Cuba.

Dr. Castillo, representing the business interests of Santiago, who went to Washington with General Wood, says that the commission of three appointed to act on Cuban franchises produces a very bad effect.

He says: "This tribunal will sit where the citizens are unable to get a hearing, and will give away concessions and privileges, as we understand it, that may be a load upon Cuba for a generation. I hope our information is wrong, but the functions of the commission, as reported, are a bad thing for Cuba."

Smallpox Affliction.

Little Rock, Ark., Jan. 27.--Dr. H. C. Dunavent, president of the state board of health, tells of a terrible state of affairs in Salem, Fulton county. Dr. Dunavent says there were at least four hundred cases of small pox there within two months, with a number of deaths.

He found people walking about the streets with the disease, and others falling ill daily.

The local physicians contended that it was not small pox. The contagion was scattered along the line of the Memphis and Fort Scott and Cotton-belt railroads.

The infection was brought to Fulton county about two months ago by a returned soldier.

The Samoan Trouble.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 27.--The navy department yesterday was advised that the cruiser Philadelphia has completed coaling at San Diego and is prepared to sail for Apia, Samoa, in execution of the department's instructions to look after the United States's interests in that quarter of the globe. She will touch at Honolulu en route for coal and fresh provisions.

In view of the foul condition of the bottom of this vessel it will be impossible for her to make full speed, and it will be near the end of February before she reaches her destination.

Mr. von Holleben, the German ambassador, was among Secretary Hay's callers yesterday.

Quarantine at St. Thomas.

St. Thomas, Danish West Indies, Jan. 27.--The fact that the United States armored cruiser Brooklyn did not enter port here after appearing off Charlotte Amalie on Sunday last was a great disappointment to the people here.

The pilot who informed the Brooklyn that the health regulations provided that she should be quarantined for fourteen days, which is said to have made the warship return to Cuba, is blamed for his unauthorized action in informing the commander of the Brooklyn that his vessel would be quarantined.

No doubt she would have been passed by the doctor if she had entered the harbor.

The New Steamer Havana.

The trip will include a run from here to New York, the actual speed trial taking place near Sandy Hook.

The Havana will ply between New York and Campeche, Mexico, touching at Havana and other ports. The Havana is a five decked steamer, 385 feet over all, and is of five thousand tons register.

An Extraordinary Accident.

Steubenville, O., Jan. 27.--The home of Daniel Burns, at the north end of this city, has been crushed by a huge rock weighing about one hundred tons which rolled down from the top of a hill with great force.

It crushed one end of a loaded gondola railroad car on a siding, and twisted the track out of shape.

Mr. Burns was buried under the debris and badly injured. His wife was hurled fifty feet away and seriously injured.

Their son, who was sleeping upstairs, was carried on his bed a distance of eighty feet, together with the roof, and also badly injured.

GEN. ALGER A WITNESS

EXAMINED BY GOV. BEAVER

Bureau Chiefs Exonerated—Denial That the Secretary Was Personally Interested in Contracts or Camp Sites—Knew Nothing About Chemicals in Beef.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 27.--Secretary Alger, in response to an invitation of the war investigating committee, appeared before that body yesterday. The secretary was sworn by General Wilson, after which Governor Beaver, after asking permission to use the title "General," instead of "Mr. Secretary," began the examination of the head of the war department.

Secretary Alger, in beginning, stated that he had been on duty at the war department constantly during and after the war with Spain. The chiefs of bureaus in the war department, he said, were generally appointed to such places because of seniority, but the president, if he thought proper, could break this rule.

When asked in regard to expenditures by the department of the war fund, the secretary replied that the larger part had been devoted to the strengthening of the coast defences. In anticipation of such an inquiry he had brought with him memorandums prepared by heads of bureaus, giving details of the expenditure of this fund. During the continuance of the war he had been kept constantly advised of all actions taken by the several bureaus. The chiefs of bureaus often reported to him several times a day. If he had not been advised of any important fact in regard to department work, the head of one of the bureaus was to blame.

If any report originating outside of the department came to him he investigated it at once. During the early days of the war, with a large body to provide for, some defects were apparent. It was not because of a lack of funds, but because it was impossible to handle properly so large a body of men on short notice.

Witness did not recall having received during the war complaints in regard to foods furnished to the army.

There was a shortage of food at Santiago, not because there were no supplies, but because they could not be landed from the ships. No old soldier, said the secretary, would make harsh criticism of the food furnished the army under the circumstances. He had never heard any cause during the war for complaint of any officer.

"Was the head of any bureau guilty of failure to discharge his duty during the continuance of the war?" asked Governor Beaver.

"No, sir," replied Secretary Alger.

Q.—Did any report come to you of any irregularity or of any fraudulent practices in the contracting for supplies furnished to any department?

A.—No sir.

Q.—Did you directly or indirectly have any interest in the selection of any of the camps occupied by any of the troops?

A.—No, sir. I never had any interest in any camp. I do not know that anyone connected with me had any such interest.

Q.—Did you have any interest in any contract for materials supplied during the war?

A.—Not a cent in any contract.

Q.—Does that apply to transports purchased?

A.—Yes, sir.

The secretary went on to state that he had never had any personal interest in the expenditure of government funds, directly or indirectly. No contracts for equipment were entered into prior to the declaration of war.

"Have you received any complaint from the major general of the army while at Porto Rico as to the quality of refrigerated and canned roast beef furnished the army?"

The secretary replying, referred to his annual report, quoting a dispatch from General Miles asking that no more beef be sent because they could get a large supply there. General Miles had said something about beef that had spoiled there.

Secretary Alger next told of the inspection of camps, especially the tour of inspection by General Miles.

The secretary never had received any official complaint from the armies in the field in regard to fresh or canned meat furnished the troops.

"Have you any information that meat was chemically treated?"

"Nothing but what has been brought out by this commission." Beef, he went on, had been used as an army ration for many years, and its use was not an experiment in the Spanish war. No complaints had been received by him from the camps in regard to beef.

When asked whether he was personally interested in contracts for furnishing meat the secretary said with positiveness:

"I have not; I never had, directly or indirectly, interest in any property, in anything supplied."

He had never received any official report that beef furnished the army had caused sickness. He had received reports from several sources that at Chickamauga and Camp Thomas there had been a lack of medicines and supplies. The reports were investigated, and supplies ordered at once. He had never received a report from the surgeon general that he was unable to furnish supplies. In regard to the arrival of the Fifth Corps at Montauk he said that every possible precaution had been taken to make the camp healthful and comfortable. There had been many difficulties that it was impossible to remedy, but everything that could be done had been done.

This closed the examination, and Secretary Alger was asked whether he wished to volunteer any statements, but he declined to do so.

Colima Volcano Active.

City of Mexico, Jan. 27.--A dispatch from Colima says that the volcano of that name is in full activity. An outburst of smoke, followed by lava, took place directly after the earthquake of Wednesday afternoon.

The volcano presents a grand spectacle. The Indians are moving from the neighborhood of the mountain.

Nervous Dyspepsia

MAKE A TEST OF STUART'S DYSPEPSIA TABLETS.

No trouble is more common or more misunderstood than nervous dyspepsia. People having it think their nerves are to blame and are surprised that they are not cured by nerve medicines. The real seat of the mischief is lost sight of. The stomach is the organ to be looked after.

Nervous dyspeptics often do not have any pain whatever in the stomach, nor perhaps any of the usual symptoms of stomach weakness. Nervous dyspepsia shows itself not in the stomach so much as in nearly every organ. In some cases the heart palpitates and is irregular; in others the kidneys are effected; in others the bowels are constipated with headaches; still others are troubled with loss of flesh and appetite with accumulations of gas, and sour risings and heartburn.

It is safe to say that Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets will cure any stomach weakness or disease except cancer of the stomach. They cure sour stomach, gas, loss of flesh and appetite, sleeplessness, palpitation, heartburn, constipation and headache.

Send for valuable little book on stomach diseases by addressing F. A. Stuart Co., Marshall, Mich. All druggists sell full-sized packages at 50 cents. Prof. Henry W. Becker, A.M., the well known religious worker and writer of St. Louis.

"Some weeks ago my brother heard me say something about indigestion, and taking a box from his pocket said 'Try Stuart's Tablets.' I did, and was promptly relieved. Then I investigated the nature of the tablets and became satisfied that they were made of just the right things and in just the right proportions to aid in the assimilation of food. I heartily endorse them in all respects, and I keep them constantly on hand." 19eod9 are packed for physicians in large bottles, each containing one hundred and fifty Tabules by count. These packages being intended for physicians' use, are not advertised or accompanied by any circulars or other advertising matter, but any druggist will supply one whenever requested to do so. A Western doctor relates an experience with one of these special packages as follows: "A few days ago I ordered some more from Chicago, and when a patient, for whom I intended one of the bottles, opened it, he found within a stone wrapped in paper, much resembling a diamond, and which he will have set and wear in his shirt bosom. Now, I want to know," asks the doctor, "if it is the custom to occasionally put in a little gem like that? If it isn't a diamond it is a fair substitute, and if one is put in occasionally, I think I am as much entitled to receive one as any of your numerous patrons, for I am constantly employing and commending the Tabules in my practice."

PROCEEDINGS OF THE HOUSE.

Gen. Grosvenor Calls Aguinaldo an Unhung Traitor of Traitors.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 27.--Immediately after the opening of the session yesterday the House went into committee of the whole for the further consideration of the Hull army reorganization bill and Mr. Marsh of Illinois, a member of the committee on military affairs, addressed the committee in support of the bill.

After a brief speech against the bill and against expansion, by Mr. Dinsmore of Arkansas, General Grosvenor addressed the committee in support of the bill.

He said the purpose attributed by the opponents of the bill to the measure had absolutely no foundation. No one could point to a single instance wherein any officer of the army or of the militia gave an order against the interests or welfare of the people.

General Grosvenor devoted the greater part of his speech to a review of the events of the war, especially such as related to and were connected with the president.

He complimented the army, the navy and the heads of departments.

General Grosvenor referred to the demand; "insolent" he termed it; of Mr. Johnson that the president should give to the Filipinos an expression of his intentions, an assurance that it was not intended to infringe their liberties.

He read from the president's proclamation of December 21 last to the Filipinos sufficient answer to that demand.

"This proclamation," General Grosvenor said, "had been torn up and the men shot who endeavored to publish it, by that unhanged barbarian, the vile traitor, who twice sold his country's honor for money; this person who is so well depicted as the traitor of traitors; a man who has developed apparently the highest attributes of a bad man, under the distinction made by a gentleman in New York that he wouldn't stay bought.

"To whom is the gentleman referring?" inquired Mr. Johnson.

"There is but one such person," answered Grosvenor.

"But to whom does the gentleman refer?" persisted Johnson.

"He was good enough to be our ally," sneered Johnson.

"If he was our ally," retorted Grosvenor, "he should have stood with us to the end. (Applause.) Benedict Arnold was at one time the ally of the Revolutionary army, but that did not prevent Americans from pilorying him in history as the greatest criminal traitor."

Senator Platt to Speak.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 27.--In the Senate yesterday notice was given by Mr. Platt, Republican of New York, of his purpose to address the Senate to-day on the Vest anti-expansion resolution, which will be Mr. Platt's first speech in the Senate, and by Mr. Berry, Democrat of Arkansas, of a like purpose for next Tuesday.

Mr. Mason, Republican of Illinois, gave notice that he would ask a vote to-day on his resolution declaring it to be the policy of the United States not to attempt to govern the people of any oheer country without the consent of the people themselves.

The Vest anti-expansion resolution was taken up and Mr. Mallory, Democrat of Florida, addressed the Senate in support of it.

On motion of Mr. Davis, Republican of Minnesota, and in pursuance of the arrangement made Wednesday, the Senate went into executive session on the peace treaty.

Government Loses Its Suit.

London, Jan. 27.--The trial of the suit brought by the United States against Pally and another to recover the sum of 5,300 pounds paid under a contract for the purchase of the steamships Rookwood and Lockwood prior to the war between the United States and Spain was ended in the queen's bench division of the high court of justice yesterday, the jury bringing in a verdict for the defendants.

Justice Bigham, before whom the case was heard, ruled that war existed on April 23, 1898, preventing the defendants from delivering the vessels. If further preparations for the delivery of the vessels had been made after April 23, the defendants would have incurred the penalties of the foreign enlistment act.

Strikers Resort to Violence.

Colon, Colombia, Jan. 27.--The striking wharfmen at Panama are resorting to violence. Yesterday they destroyed all the railroad switches and tried to prevent a train from leaving for Colon.

The military charged upon the strikers, wounding three and dispersing the crowd.

Five Weekly Mails to Havana.

Washington, D. C., an. 27.--To meet the requirements of the postoffice department for mails for Cuban ports, the Plant Steamship Company announces that commencing Monday its steamers will make five round trips a week between Port Tampa and Havana.

The vessels will include the Yarmouth, Florida, Olivette and the Whitney.

Hooley's Application Denied.

London, Jan. 27.--The application made by counsel for Ernest T. Hooley to commit the publisher of the newspaper Sunday Special for contempt of court for having published comments upon certain of Hooley's alleged transactions, was heard in the queen's bench division of the high court of justice yesterday. The court denied the application.

London Lyceum for Irving.

London, Jan. 27.--It is rumored that a company is forming to purchase the Lyceum theatre, which is to be conducted by Sir Henry Irving as managing director.

The report also says that Irving agrees to appear at the Lyceum for a season of one hundred nights.

DEATH OF A. H. GARLAND

Fell Unconscious While Addressing Supreme Court.

HE DIED ALMOST AT ONCE

Had Been Arguing a Case and Was Apparently in Good Health—The Court Room is Thrown Into Confusion by the Tragedy.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 27.--Ex-Attorney General Augustus H. Garland was stricken with apoplexy while addressing the United States supreme court shortly after noon yesterday, and died within ten minutes.

When the court convened Mr. Garland resumed an argument in the case of Towson vs. Moore, which had begun Wednesday. He had read from a law volume, and had followed with the sentence: "This, your honor, is our contention." As the last word was uttered he was seen to raise his hand and then gasp. He tottered and fell sidewise, striking against a chair and overturning it as he fell heavily to the floor.

His associate in the case, Mr. Franklin Mackey, was at once by his side, and with other counsel and officials, the head of the dying man was raised, his shoes removed and a draught of water given to him.

He was carried from the chamber across to the room of Chief Clerk McKenney, and there placed on a sofa. Senator Gallinger, who is a physician, was near at hand. He saw at once that the attack would be fatal. Within ten minutes from the time of the stroke Mr. Garland had breathed his last.

Augustus Hill Garland of Arkansas was born in Tipton county, Tennessee, on June 11, 1832, and was educated at St. Marys College, Kentucky. He studied law in the office of ex-Congressman Benjamin Hardin and was admitted to the bar in Arkansas on obtaining his majority.

Three years later he settled in Little Rock. A Whig in politics, he was nominated for presidential elector on the Bell and Everett ticket, and strongly opposed secession in the state convention in 1861. He "went with the state," however, and was elected to the provisional Confederate congress, which met at Montgomery, Ala., in May, 1861. He served in both houses of the Confederate congress, being in the Senate at the close of the war.

Mr. Garland was elected to the United States Senate from Arkansas for the term beginning March 4, 1867, but was not admitted to his seat, and he practiced law in Arkansas until 1874, when he was elected governor of the state without any opposition. In January, 1876, he was again elected a United States senator from Arkansas as a Democrat, without opposition, and took his seat in March, 1877. He was re-elected to the Senate in 1883 for the term to expire March 3, 1889.

On March 4, 1885, he entered President Cleveland's first cabinet and served for the four years of his term, then retired to private life, and had since been practicing law, appearing chiefly before the United States supreme court.

No Change in Quay Fight.

Harrisburg, Pa., Jan. 27.--All interest in the several senatorship candidates' camps yesterday centered in the fate of the McCarrell bill, aimed to take from district attorneys the right to decline to accept jurors except in capital cases.

This measure is looked upon as a Quay scheme to assist the defence in the trial of the conspiracy suits in which Senator Quay and his son and former State Treasurer Haywood are defendants.

It is alleged by the opponents of Senator Quay that it would prevent any interference with a jury which might be drawn.

Senator Quay's chief lieutenants continue to insist that he will win in the end and that the deadlock will not prevent that result.

But the anti-Quay leaders characterize these assertions as silly bluff and point to the statements made before the balloting began as the best evidence of their worthlessness.

The eighth ballot resulted as follows: Quay 105, Jerks 81, Delzell 15, Stewart 6, Stone 7, Huff 6, Rice 1, Markle 2, Tubbs 2, Grow 1, Irvin 3, Weidner 3, Riter 2; total 232.

Necessary for a choice 117.

The Delaware Deadlock.

George Gray, Democrat, 15; J. Edward Addicks, Union Republican, 15; Henry A. Dupont, regular Republican, 12; L. Irving Handy, Silver Democrat, 4; J. H. Chandler, regular Republican, 2.

The seventeenth ballot was: Gray, 15; Addicks, 15; Dupont, 11; Chandler, 3; Handy, 4. No election.

The eighteenth ballot was the same as the seventeenth.

J., Jan. 27.--Articles of incorporation were filed with the secretary of state yesterday of the Rubber Goods Manufacturing Company, with an authorized capital of fifty million dollars, one-half preferred stock. The company is empowered to manufacture and deal in all goods of which india rubber, gutta percha, balata or their substitutes form a component part.

FIREMAN'S BRAVE RESCUE.

New York, Jan. 27.--While cleaning a boiler in the cruiser New York yesterday six men were injured seriously by escaping steam. One of them will die. Three others were scalded slightly.

The injured men, now in the naval hospital, are W. Cullen, coal passer; P. Halstead, coal passer; Thomas Hickey, fireman; J. F. Shea, coal passer; T. Wainwright, fireman, and George Liegler, coal passer. Shea is the man who will die.

The other three men who were slightly scalded and are still aboard ship, and on duty, are J. H. Brown, fireman; P. Reid, coal passer, and Samuel Willis, fireman.

It was early in the afternoon and the men had not been in the boiler long, when one of them unscrewed the valve of a pipe connecting with boiler F. Instantly there came the hissing rush of steam, followed by the cries of the men over whom it poured.

Three of them, all experienced hands, dropped to the bottom of the boiler and began to grope for the manholes there. The other six, wild with fright and pain, scrambled across or through the maze of pipes to the manhole, through which they had entered, near the top of the boiler.

By this time, too, the steam had shaped a course for this opening and poured out. Just inside were the six sufferers, fighting, it is said, with one another to be the first to get to the hole. This terrible struggle for self kept them all back.

It is even said that one man got his head out and was pulled back by one of the agonized creatures behind him. Finally George Ziegler got his head and arms through and was pulled out to safety. Four others followed.

But one remained, and then the hero came.

Among the three who had dropped to the bottom was Samuel Willis, a fireman. The other two, Patrick Reid and J. H. Brown, had got through the lower manhole, and Willis's turn to get out came. He had worked himself half way through the hole when he chanced to look up.

He saw Thomas Hickey, who was the last of the six above to attempt to reach the manhole, there fall back, evidently overcome.

It was lucky for Willis that just about that time the steam was turned off. But he didn't know that, as the boiler still seemed to be full of it. He forgot how near he was to safety. He did not seem to think of the danger. To the surprise of those outside he drew his feet back into the boiler and disappeared. He climbed up to where the other man lay, and picking up the unconscious form, pushed it out through the manhole. He had little trouble in getting out himself then.

All of the men, with the exception of Willis, Reid and Brown, were taken to the naval hospital, suffering from severe scalding. Shea, in addition, was in agony from having inhaled steam.

Whole Villages Wiped Out.

San Francisco, Cal., Jan. 27.--The steamship Aorangi, which arrived yesterday at Victoria, brought news of terrible hurricanes which swept the South seas during the middle of December.

Whole villages on the islands were devastated, many vessels were wrecked and many lives lost.

A terrific gale struck Samari, New Guinea, on December 11, and wrecked twelve vessels. The cutters Mayflower and Nabua were wrecked at Basilaki.

The ketches Sabem and Raidan were lost off Goodenough island, and Manager Kennedy of the New Guinea Development Company was drowned with all of the crew, save one boy.

The mission steamship Albert McLaren was driven ashore, and the lugger Lysander and the cutter Fleetwing were wrecked at Wedan.

The cutter Portia was smashed near Port Glasgow. The schooner Ellen Gowan and the cutter Ivy were lost near the Kossman group, and Captain Godet and crew of the schooner were drowned.

The hurricane did the greatest damage in the Solomons islands, where whole villages were destroyed. Over five hundred natives are reported to have been killed.

Cuban Assembly's Good Advice.

Havana, Jan. 27.--The Cuban assembly issued a manifesto yesterday advising the Cubans to keep quiet until it is officially known what the Washington government has decided to do in regard to paying the insurgent army.

The Assembly says in its proclamation that it represents forty-five thousand armed Cubans and will take care of their rights.

At present the duty of all Cubans is to await the arrival of the Cuban commissioners from Washington with the answer of the United States government and not make any display of disgust grounded only upon rumors.

Pope May Sent a Delegate.

Rome, Jan. 27.--The Russian minister resident at the Vatican held a conference with Cardinal Rampolla, papal secretary of state, yesterday, with the result that it was arranged that the pope would send a delegate to the universal peace conference if the powers accredit special representatives thereto.

Otherwise the Vatican will be represented at the conference by the papal nuncio in the city where the conference is held.

M. De Beaurepaire's Charges.

Paris, Jan. 27.--The Intransigeant says that the inquiry into the allegations against certain members of the court of cassation by M. Quesnay de Beaurepaire has been finished, and that the commissioners recommend that President Loew be censured and Councillors Bard and Dumas be prosecuted.

Rhodes Gives Up His Scheme.

London, Jan. 27.--Cecil Rhodes has abandoned for the present his scheme for a continuous railway line from the Cape of Good Hope to Cairo and will content himself with asking a guarantee for the extension of the Buluway railway to the Zambesi.

A Practical Plan.

The gentlemen who have been put in charge of the plans to secure the consolidation of Plainfield and North Plainfield into one municipality took an eminently practical and cautious step towards that end by deciding that the most essential thing to do at the start is to secure a concensus of opinion from the people who are to be effected by the proposed change, as described in The Daily Press yesterday.

The fact that the North Plainfield borough election is near at hand makes the step especially opportune. It will allow the voters "over the brook" to give quasi official decision with reference to the plan without irretrievably committing themselves in favor or against the consolidation idea. Once the boroughites have given voice by this semi-official plan that consolidation will be a good thing, the hardest part of the battle for the success of the project will have been gone through with. If it is seen that a majority of the people desire a consolidated city, it will be found much easier to arrive at a satisfactory plan of details to consummate the idea.

It is the intention, of course, to follow out the same modus operandi in securing the sentiment of the city voters with respect to Greater Plainfield as is to be put in operation in the borough. But it will be impossible to do this until the city election next December. Soon after that the Legislature will convene in session for next year, and then the leaders in the movement will be well prepared and ready to go before the Senators and Assemblymen with a bill designed to bring about the consolidation on such lines as will probably be deemed most practical and just in the meantime.

With concentrated sentiment under the proposed plan the Legislature will be found willing to listen to the appeals for enactment to make a Greater Plainfield.

Growth of the Trolley.

The Newark Evening News printed the following editorial yesterday concerning the extension, present and prospective, of the trolley lines in this section of the State:

The different links in the trunk trolley line between New York and Philadelphia are gradually being connected, and it is probable that within the next two years the entire line will be complete. As soon as the road between Elizabeth and Plainfield, a franchise for which has been granted by the Union County Board of Freeholders, shall be constructed, there will be a continuous line from Jersey City to Somerville, the link joining Somerville and Bound Brook having been finished Tuesday. Work has either been begun or will soon be started on a line between Trenton and Princeton, leaving only the distance between the latter place and Somerville to be covered in order to make a through line from Jersey City to Trenton. From Trenton, on the New Jersey side, the road has been extended to Bordentown and about two miles beyond, and before the end of the coming summer it is expected that it will reach Camden, while on the Pennsylvania side the construction of a line from Trenton to connect with one now advancing from Philadelphia, will probably be completed about the same time. In taking the route it has from Elizabeth to Trenton the trolley has not followed the shortest line, but rather that of the densest population, showing that for some years at least it expects that local travel will furnish the bulk of its revenues. What the future may develop in the way of through traffic will depend largely upon the improved methods of electrical propulsion. It can hardly be doubted, however, that the possibility of such traffic in the future is clearly anticipated.

Councilman Barrows, chairman of the Councilmanic Street Committee, who is virtually in charge of the sewage disposal system, takes exception to the editorial printed in these columns yesterday concerning the beds and the attitude of certain prominent city officials towards them. Mr. Barrows avers that he is not in favor of suppressing facts about the beds so as to mislead people. It is a fact, however, that other prominent city officials, even higher up than the gentleman from the Third Ward, have taken exactly the same position that The Daily Press quoted them as taking yesterday.

The Rahway commuters have begun an agitation for a modification in the price of commutation tickets to New York. A petition to the railroad company has been drawn up and is now being circulated, setting forth the fact that the Pennsylvania Railroad is now charging its Rahway patrons twenty-eight per cent. more than the highest rates charged for the same distance by any railroad leading out of New York city, and they think it is high time some concession should be made.

If you want to be sure of a copy of The Daily Press each night you should subscribe for it regularly. The sales of the Press have been increasing rapidly and despite the increase made in the number printed, it has happened on five different evenings in the month of January that the entire edition of the Press has been sold out by 6 o'clock in the evening. As a result, many people who depend upon getting their favorite newspaper from a newsboy or at the counter in the Press office have been disappointed.

According to a Camden contemporary, a business man in that city said that he spent the most money for advertising when people felt poorest. "That is the time," he said, "when people read advertisements. If they find a store advertising bargains, they will leave their old places and go to the newer and the new one, if smart, will keep them every time. The old-fashioned business man will feel that he must do things in a modern style if he wants to swim with the current."

Senator Platt is scheduled to make his first speech in Congress today. Inasmuch as he is expected to orate on the Vest anti expansionist resolution it is not probable that Mr. Platt will talk through his hat.

If Mr. Gratz, of Jobstown, feels sorrowful because he failed to secure election to the United States Senate, he ought to feel correspondingly happy that he is not in an insane asylum by this time.

The New York Journal must have given up all hope of ever catching the poisoner who has puzzled the police for so many weeks now. It has offered a reward of $5,000 for his or her capture.

We are nearing the time of the first anniversary of the destruction of the battleship Maine. This is the way of a reminder to "Remember the Maine."

Senator-elect Kean has still one honor to gain. His picture has not yet been printed in a patent medicine advertisement.

WHAT THE SHEARS FIND

Editorial Comment From Other Papers of Interest in Plainfield.

Assemblyman Cooper represents an agricultural community, and introducing a bill to reduce the rate of interest from six to five per cent. in this State, he is doing what the farmers want. Mr. Cooper will use every effort to have the bill passed.—Somerville Unionist Gazette.

* * * * *

We wonder if John Kean will be able to say when he has been elected United States Senator by the New Jersey Legislature, as Senator Hawley has just said after being chosen by the Connecticut Legislature, that the expenses incident to his election were only $3? We imagine it has cost Mr. Kean at least $7 to be elected United States Senator.—Plainfield Press.

Mr. Kean's expenses consisted solely in contributions to the campaign funds. Most other Senators elected in New Jersey in the last quarter of a century had not only to spend money in that way, but to go down to Trenton after the Legislature met and make lavish distributions.—New York Tribune.

Under the administration of City Judge Runyon, who was inducted into office January 1st, the police have begun a crusade for the improvement of the city's morals and have begun to let light into the dark places. The young Judge who administers the office that his father filled years ago, taking example from his honored father, says that while he is Judge there shall be no defiance of the law, open or hidden, which he has power to prevent. Within the past ten days two raids have been made, one of disorderly persons and one of gambling dives. If he continues the way he has begun, Plainfield will be the model city for morals.—Newark Advertiser.

THEATRICAL.

Current Dramatic Attractions That Plainfielders Can Witness.

The Stetson "Uncle Tom's Cabin" company, which is to appear at Music Hall Monday night, is said to be the largest and best equipped company now traveling, whose specialty is the presentation of this famous drama. It is composed of some 50 artists, all especially selected with reference to their ability to sustain their respective roles. Mrs. Harriett Ward Beecher Stowe, the noted authoress, said it was the most perfect interpretation of her celebrated work that she had ever witnessed and thousands of amusement seekers have endorsed this opinion. The play will be presented here in its fullest detail, with special scenery, bands and incidents of slave life. A grand street parade of the entire company, the bloodhounds, animals and accessories, will be a feature Monday noon. Reserved seats are having good sale at the Box office.

The Jefferson Comedy Company, composed of Joseph Jefferson Sons, will shortly appear at Music Hall presenting "Rip VanWinkle." Due notice will be given of their appearance.

Since the invention of the Cinematographe, that wonderful moving picture machine, it has been a permanent feature at the Eden Musee. The best pictures that could be secured anywhere in the world have been placed on exhibition at the Musee, and there is no place in the country where so many and so good pictures could be seen. Hundreds of scenes from the late war have been shown and the public has in this way seen the heroes of the war as well as obtained a better idea of the hardships which surrounded the soldiers. The latest improvement in moving pictures has been made recently by the Musee artists. The second act of the Opera "Martha" was photographed and a few days ago they were reproduced at the Musee in colors. The second act is a long one and necessitates the showing of over forty thousand complete pictures. Every detail in the costumes was accurately brought out in the pictures even to the movements of the spinning wheels. While the pictures are being shown, the operatic artists who posed for the pictures, sing the opera. The result is surprising.

WHAT DO THE CHILDREN DRINK?

Don't give them tea or coffee. Have you tried the new food drink called GRAIN-O? It is delicious and nourishing and takes the place of coffee. The more Grain-O you give the children the more health you distribute through their systems. Grain-O is made of pure grains, and when properly prepared tastes like the choice grades of coffee, but costs about as much. All grocers sell it. 15c. and 25c.

PASSING COMMENT.

Things that Are Not Exactly News but Just as Interesting.

Two colored men, chasing a rooster that had escaped from a farmer's wagon yesterday morning, presented a ludicrous sight on Park avenue. One of the men finally captured the bird, but in such an awkard fashion that it proved conclusively that he was no practiced chicken thief.

THE SUNDAY LESSON.

INTERNATIONAL SERIES WITH, COMMENTARY BY DR. STEARNS.

Golden Text—Whosoever drinketh of the water that I shall give him, shall never thirst—John 4, 14. Jan. 29.

The Great Teacher. "Jesus was weary in the flesh, but not in the spirit, as he journeyed through Samaria. The congregation was not large, nor influential, nor cultured; only one person a sinner, a woman, a Samaritan; yet he preached to her one of the most powerful sermons of his ministry. Not an old sermon with a new text, for a vacation journey and a country audience, but a new sermon, adapted to peculiar needs, and so full of Christ that it aroused the neighborhood and led many to drink of the Water of Life.,, It reads, He must needs go through Samaria. Though it were a geographical necessity, he had a higher purpose in view than merely to shorten his journey. He was going there to dispense a blessing upon an inhabitant of that land. Wherever he visits a people he dispenses blessings. He would correct a prejudice. The Jews have no dealings, etc. Though he might be more despised by the Jews for his work that day, he would have an example to prove that salvation was not alone for the Jews. He would proclaim a truth unknown to any in that place—that he was the Savior, not only to the Jews but to all nations. In this his new disciples would learn to what extent the Gospel should be preached, and how it might be taught and received even by half-heathen. If he were an example to his disciples then, he is the same to-day. Let us study him in our Example in that single instance at Jacob's well. 1. "He went to an unwelcome neighborhood. 2. He was willing to teach one scholar. 3. He took a disagreeable, unpromising, difficult scholar to teach. 4. He taught with great zeal. 5. He taught when even he himself was weary. 6. He used ingenuity and tact. 7. He took the things in which she was interested and used them as an illustration. 8. He impressed her conscience. 9. He was not led aside by irrelevant questions, but kept to his one great point. 10. He completed the work by disclosing himself the Messiah." If we love as we ought, one soul is as precious as another.

The Great Gift—Christ himself—the fountain of life, of peace. "Christ seeks the salvation of all men, by all means, and at all times. Thirst for the salvation of men was greater in Christ than bodily thirst for water. How deep is the well of Jesus, from which the flock of God is refreshed! Jesus himself, the gift of God to us! If we but saw things so (knewest the Gift) what glad labors, what cheerful sufferings, what effectual prayers, what glorious hopes would make up our life! There are those who consider that a favor is asked from them by the ministers of religion when they are urged to accept the Lord Jesus; who seem to suppose that their adhesion would be a boon, if not to the Savior, yet to his people. Let such persons really come into spiritual contact with Christ, and the case will be altogether changed. They will then see that they have nothing to give and all to gain, and the divine benefactor of humanity will be approached with humble entreaty." What a glorious dawning it must have been to the mind of that Samaritan when she became aware that the promised Messiah had found her, read her heart, and offered her peace. What a melting away of sectarian prejudice! What a joyful rendering of her service to him! What delightful anticipation in the thought of making known her blessing! How her thoughts turned away from boasting upon her ancestry! Who could look upon this event and call it a simple incident that just happened to be so? He who reads all hearts, and loves all men, knew that heavy-hearted woman lived near Sychar, and would be at Jacob's well. A long journey on foot brought the Savior to the spot so dear to the descendants of Jacob. The parcel of ground was Jacob's gift to Joseph, but there a humble, toiling woman received the Gift of God, even Jesus her Savior! Had the place been sacred to her before? How much more so now? Souls do not happen to be saved. They are sought, invited, instructed and entreated and often for some time ere they see and receive the gift of God.

"Jesus....sat thus on the well." "There cometh a woman....Jesus saith unto her, Give me to drink." V. 7. Jesus did not wait for the woman to speak to him; he spoke to her. He threw a bridge across the gulf which separated them. He stooped to ask an earthly favor of her, that he might press upon her an eternal gift. One marvelously used of God in winning souls, yet without any art in public speaking, was asked the reason of his success. "I am one of your 'as you go' preachers," was the answer.

"A woman of Samaria." V. 7. This woman was a heathen, and enemy of his race, held in supreme contempt by the Jews. A sinful woman who had trampled on her conscience. A woman whom the Jews never thought it worth while to teach. But Jesus must go through Samaria and rest by that well. This was more than a geographical "must." It was the necessity love laid on him to meet and help a poor, sinful, despised woman.

When Eliot was preaching to the Indians, a poor red-skinned woman walked fifteen miles to hear him. She arrived as the sermon closed. Her disappointment was so evident and intense he could not bear to see it. He sat beside her and patiently told again the story of God's love, and had the joy of seeing her turn her face homeward, happy in the love of the Savior she had accepted.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Topic For the Week Beginning Jan. 29—Comment by Rev. S. H. Doyle.

TOPIC.—God's army.—Ps xx. 1-9. (Christian Endeavor day.)

Ancient kings of Israel before going to battle offered up bloodless offerings and whole burnt sacrifices in the temple unto God. This ninth psalm was probably intended to be sung while the king on such an occasion was making these offerings. The psalm consists of three parts. 1. The prayer of the congregation probably chanted by the Levites while the smoke of the sacrifices ascended to heaven (verses 1-5). 2. The king himself takes up the strain and expresses his faith in God (verses 6-8). 3. The congregation respond, praying again, "God save the king" (verse 9).

The army of ancient Israel going forth to battle against the heathen nations of the world may be symbolical of God's army today going forth to battle against the kingdoms of the world. Such a conflict is constantly being waged. The kingdoms of satan and of this world are constantly arrayed against the kingdom of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ. The battle rages more fiercely every day. The elements of evil contend against the elements of good, and each one of us is enlisted on the one side or the other. The desire for victory is the great ambition of one who goes forth to battle. In this psalm we have pointed out what God's army must do today to have success and victory. Let us study these essentials to success.

1. God's army to succeed must be willing to make sacrifices. The king made sacrifices before going forth to battle. God's church, God's people, must be willing to make sacrifices today to be successful. It costs something to win battles. War is expensive to the victor as well as to the vanquished. It will cost God's people today money, time, labor, sacrifice, to war successfully against the powers of evil, but victory will pay for all the cost.

2. God's army to succeed must pray to God. This both the people and the king did. God decides the destinies of men. God gives victory or defeat. How necessary, then, that we should earnestly and fervently beseech Him to be with us in our struggles.

3. God's army to succeed must set up its banners in the name of the Lord. "In the name of our God we will set up our banners" (verse 5). To expect even to succeed we must be sure that we are advocating the cause of God. We must not confound the cause of self or of the world with God's cause. We must be on God's side rather than expect God to be on our side. This will give us a just and worthy cause, an essential to success. "Thrice is he armed who hath his quarrel just."

4. God's army to succeed must trust in God. "Some trust in chariots, some in horses, but we will remember the name of the Lord our God" (verse 7). Faith in God is an absolute essential for success in fighting for God. Our trust must be in Him rather than in man. The battle is not to the strong, but to those who put their faith and trust in God.

Bible Readings.—Ps. xxvii, 1-6; xxxiii, 12-20; Prov. xxi, 31; Eccl. ix, 11; Isa. xxxi, 1-3; Amos. ii, 14-16; Hosea i, 7; Jer. ix, 23, 24; Zech. iv, 1-6; Rom. xii, 1, 2; II Cor. iii, 5; Gal. vi, 9; Eph. vi, 10-18; Phil. iv, 12, 13; II Tim. iv, 7, 8.

Heroism Without Suffering.

There is sometimes as much merit in taking pains for Christ's sake as in suffering pain. We are more apt to conceive of a saint as one ready to expire for Christ's cause than as one ready to perspire for it, but the call to duty is oftener one to patient, plodding, thoroughgoing fidelity in little things, rather than one to yield up the life in some supreme act of sacrifice. A mother who takes the trouble daily to teach her child, patiently and wisely, how to conquer the evils in the world against which it needs to guard, may be more truly the savior of the child than if she threw herself into the flames to rescue its body from death. The fidelity to details that makes a life luminously consistent and Christlike may be a stronger argument than martyrdom for the truth. Conscientious living often counts for more than conscientious dying.—Sunday School Times.

The Rewards of Faith.

Rich indeed are the rewards of faith. Sure and certain is the course of a life illuminated by its rays. Faith takes hold upon Him who cannot lie, upon Him who is not willing that any should perish and whose infinite love is only paralleled by His ability. Well may we who trust Him and rely upon the atoning work of Jesus rest assured that no one shall pluck us from His hand, fully persuaded that He is able to keep that committed unto Him.—Episcopal Recorder.

Selfishness.

Selfishness shuts out God and leaves one to himself. It also involves the eternal separation of man from man. Dives lived alone upon earth and the companionship of the once despised Lazarus was denied him in eternity.—Presbyterian Journal.

Sincerity.

Sincerity must always remain the ingredient of all our actions, of our thoughts and their expressions. Insincerity is the curse of life and cannot be smoothed over by any effort.—Jewish Voice.

Accumulation and Distribution.

The happiness of the man who lives for mere self interest here is in accumulation. The blessedness of the man who lives for God is in distribution.—Stopford A. Brooke.

Here Already.

There is a success bound up in every noble effort. The hour of triumph may be far distant, but in the sight of God it is here already.—Presbyterian Journal.

EPWORTH LEAGUE.

Topic For the Week Beginning Jan. 29. "A Student's Prayer." Text, Ps. cix. 1-14.

"Let the words of my mouth and the meditation of my heart be acceptable in Thy sight, O Lord, my strength and my redeemer!"

Prayer for our young people in schools and for the blessing of God upon our institutions of learning is specially appointed for this week, and this psalm is selected as peculiarly appropriate to their condition.

We are in a world of natural and material forces and things. We must study them and learn how to live successfully in their midst. We soon learn that mind is in a great measure dependent on matter, but is superior to it in nature and can control and use it to reach its own purposeful ends. We soon learn that spirit is superior to mind and that mind and matter are to be brought under the rulership of spirit and made to serve the good, the true, the beautiful and perfect ends of the highest nature. All is under the laws of God, and His laws as perfectly regulate the heart and its emotions and volitions as in nature His hand guides the stars in their courses.

Sins are violations of God's law, are the mad leaps of a soul from its true course around the central sun; the flying of a planet from its orbit to become a comet wandering from the light into outer and utter darkness and ruin.

Only in the presence of God can we find His true pleasure and perfection. Not what men call eloquence of speech, not the beauties of rhetoric and elegancies of expression are the most valuable forms of words. Pure and simple and sincere truth, loving terms and Christlike tones are the treasures of language.

In all our search for knowledge we should strive above all else to acquire wisdom. This is higher than mere learning of things and men. It is deeper than understanding of reasons and causes and philosophies. It is the practical power of applying what is known to reaching desirable and definite ends. It is the ability to do the right.

All the gaining of ability in the right use of language depends on the possessing a right spirit. The thoughts must be pure or the words cannot be clean.

The Sweet Singer of Methodism.

Charles Wesley is only less noted in the story of Methodism than his elder brother John. They were intimately associated in all their work. They were students together at Oxford. Both belonged to the little band of devout scholars nicknamed "the Holy Club" and Methodists. Both were ordained as priests in the established church of England. Both engaged heartily in evangelistic efforts which gave rise to the Methodist societies and which have resulted in worldwide Methodism. Charles had less of executive ability than John, less boldness and foresight. He was conservative and slow to adopt any new measure which departed from the traditional practices of the church. He was an able preacher, but was specially useful as the writer of spiritual hymns. He shares with Isaac Watts the distinction of being the most voluminous and devotional writer of sacred lyrics the world has ever seen. His tone is widely different from Watts'. Not less musical or devout, but more fervent and confident of personal communication with God. "Jesus, Lover of My Soul," is a specimen of his verse and is one of the best hymns ever written.

His poetical works, with those of John, fill 13 octavo volumes.

He was in America for a short time in early manhood. Returning to England, the vessel was driven for shelter into Boston harbor. He spent Sunday on shore and preached in King's chapel, which is still standing on Tremont street, overshadowed by the towering structures of more modern days.

He lies buried in London, but not in the grounds at City Road chapel, where John is buried. His face is engraved beside that of his brother on the marble tablet in Westminster Abbey in Poets' corner, which honors the memory of two as worthy sons as Britain ever had.

God's Love of Beauty.

When we think of all the beauty which human eyes seldom behold, but see only often enough to know of its existence, we gain a new thought about our Heavenly Father. Many a brilliant sunset occurs in the far oceans where no ships sail. Many a wonderfully colored flower blooms in the jungle where no human foot has penetrated. Many a striking effect of light and shade, or tender glow of semitwilight, or strange, picturesque formation of mist and cloud, occurs in the remote arctic regions, if what returned explorers tell us be true. There are many forms of beauty here upon our earth of which we, its inhabitants, are almost unaware and which only God sees.

I never yet found pride in a noble nature or humility in an unworthy mind. Nothing procureth love like humility, nothing hate like pride.—Owen Feltham.

SOME QUEER PEOPLE.

Peculiar Customs of Certain Tribes of Indians.

The Tsimpseans are composed of the following tribes: The Crow, Bear, Whale, Frog, Wolf, Beaver and Eagle. Each of these represents a family tribe corresponding to the Clan Campbells of Scotland or the Nakamuras of Japan. Each tribe has its own crest, as in Japan at this day. A member of the Wolf tribe has the wolf for his crest, and a Bear has the moon and stars, showing his celestial origin.

An Indian may not marry one of his own crest, but he may marry into any other clan excepting an allied tribe. A Crow may marry into any clan except the Frog; the Frog into any but the Crow, the Whale any but the Bear, the Bear any but the Whale, the Beaver any but the Eagle, the Eagle any but the Beaver, and the Wolf, being so different from all in ancestry, may marry into any tribe.

Suppose a Wolf marries a Crow woman; the children are all Crows. They are named after the mother, not after the father. In quarrels between two tribes, as the Wolf and Crow, the children, being Crows, would be forced to join their mother against their father, and he would fight against all Crows, including his own family.

A Crow is a member of a Crow family, or crest, to such an extent that when in a distant village he would sojourn with a Crow household, and would there be treated as a veritable son or brother. If in the village there were no Crows, then, as the Frogs are closely allied, he would go to them and receive the same treatment as if he were a Frog. So among all other allied crests, the same loyalty is maintained. —The Chautauquan.

"Why don't I let it? Good heavens, deah boy, I do, but it won't."

STRANGE ADVENTURE OF A HEARSE.

A Day of Glory for Indian Warriors in Early Times at Cheyenne.

When Cheyenne was a much smaller place than it is now, when, in fact, it was so small that one had always to speak of the place as Cheyenne City or stand the chance of shooting, city life was characterized by a familiarity with the Indian which the town would now blush to own. Much of the time the warriors of the Cheyenne tribe were street loafers who had to be pushed out of the way if any one was in a hurry. But there were times when the Cheyenne warrior drew his allowance of cash from the Great White Father and then he was an object of consideration until he had spent it. There was a society in Philadelphia which looked out for the Washington end of the transaction on the score of philanthropy and Indian rights and made sure that the Indian got the cash. The citizens of Cheyenne and every other town which had an Indian agent loked after the other end of the transaction and saw that the Indian restored the Government funds to speedy circulation by spending quickly, if not well.

On one such pay day there was a particularly large sum coming to each Indian. Possibly some of his very shadowy rights to something which he did not use and never could use had been purchased by the Government. At any rate there was a distribution which turned each warrior loose upon the business community of Cheyenne City with something in the neighborhood of $2,000.

In the early stages of a plains community there are not many specimens of the pleasure rig. The rolling stock is for the most part composed of quartermasters' wagons and the almost equally cumbrous ambulances used by the officers at the post. But it is never long before a commendable spirit of enterprise introduces a hearse. At the time of the great payment to the Chevennes the new hearse was the only ornamental wheeled conveyance in Cheyenne City. This hearse caught the eye of a warrior with more money under his blanket than he had ever had before. From catching his eye it was no long step to exciting his desires to own that vehicle and to celebrate in style. That's Indian nature, at least the kind of Indian that people know on the plains. It took very nearly all the money he had, but he bought the hearse and a team of six mules complete. There wouldn't have been any surplus for the Indian but for a miscalculation on the part of the undertaker in setting his price. He made allowances for the Indian's spending money a little more freely than was actually the case. However, the surplus was not lost to the general circulation of the currency. The warrior and his squaw got on the box seat of the vehicle and drove off in style. As other Indians of standing in the tribe were encountered, the hearse was stopped and they were invited to get aboard. When they had filled every available inch on the roof of the conveyance other Indian passengers were crowded into the box and sat behind the glass panels looking solemnly out upon the world. When the hearse could not be made to hold another Indian the outfit set off at a gallop on a tour of the business houses.

HANDY WITH THE GUN.

Twelve Year Old Mamie Hyland a Clever Wing Shot.

Mamie Esther Hyland is probably the youngest wing shot in the world. Despite the fact that she is only 12 years of age and has been shooting only two years, she has defeated men with experience at the traps and has never been beaten by any of her own sex. Her father says that wing shooting seems to be a natural gift to her He has been able to teach her many trick shots, such as breaking swinging glass balls and breaking them with rifle or pistol, aided by the reflection of a mirror. When the girl was 10 years old her father bought her a very light double barreled shotgun, weighing five pounds. With this she would roam the woods near her home at Tarrytown, New York, in quest of small game. One day her father and some friends were shooting clay pigeons from a trap and the child asked to be allowed to try her little gun at that sport. Much to her surprise she broke three out of five, and from that time on her trap shooting started, and her father has kept her practicing constantly. Many times since, she has broken 25 straight, and in her first attempt at live birds she killed 7 out of 9. She is hardly strong enough yet to use a gun of sufficient weight in which she could use a killing charge for pigeons. The shotgun that she uses now weighs but six pounds, and she has to use a light load, otherwise the recoil would be too great. The young miss took part in the Westchester County handicap, at White Plains, and shot at 15 birds. She killed 13, three falling dead out of bounds. The girl prefers trap to rifle shooting, as she says the contests are more exciting.

Pasteur's Absent-Mindedness.

Absent-mindedness seems to be a common failing among great men. An amusing story is told of the late Louis Pasteur, who so distinguished himself by his discoveries in regard to bacteria. While dining at his son-in-law's one evening, it was noticed that he dipped his cherries in his glass of water and then carefully wiped them off before eating them. As this caused some amusement, he held forth at length of the dangers of the microbes with which the cherries were covered. Then he leaned back in his chair, wiped his forehead, and, unconsciously picking up his glass, drank off the contents, microbes and all.

THE REAL KAISER.

MOST TALKED OF MAN ON EARTH—ROYAL TAILOR'S DUTIES.

William II., His Vanities, His Foibles, His Clothes, His Ways, His Habits and His Home Life, as Described By a Frenchman.

The fierce light that beats upon a throne burns to-day with fiercer lustre than ever. The occupants of those thrones no longer shun its glare—indeed, they are usually as anxious to court it as if they were star actors yearning to get under the calcium light on the mimic stage.

Emperor William is not a man of scholarly attainments. He was rather a dull pupil at school. His younger brother far outshone him. When, at eighteen years of age, he left the College of Cassel to proceed to the University of Bonn, William was only tenth in a class of seventeen. But this was through no lack of wish to excel. He was a hard worker and gained one of the three medals reserved for the three most studious pupils.

Curiously enough, he loves Paris and hates London. His mind still goes back with delight to the few rollicking days he spent in the French capital in 1878. But despite his English mother he has never felt any affection either for England or the English.

It is said that long ago, when he was only a Prince, he was seized at review with a bleeding of the nose. As the officers of his staff pressed around him he reassured them.

EMPEROR WILLIAM.

"Do not trouble yourselves about it, gentlemen; it is only the last drop of English blood escaping from my veins."

He loves the army and is beloved by it in return. After leaving the University of Bonn he turned his chief attention to his military education. Always the first at parade, he was the last to seek repose. He exacted much from his men, but more from himself. On the very eve of his marriage he was commanding, as captain, a company which he was drilling at Potsdam, while according to ancient custom, his betrothed was making her triumphal entry into Berlin. His family and his future wife only saw him for a few moments in the evening. The very day of his religious ceremony, at six o'clock in the morning, he was once more at Potsdam, to give a medal to a sergeant-major. He said to the officers, who were astonished to see him at such a moment—

"Gentlemen, I am only doing my duty."

"But," said the sergeant-major, under his breath, "when I was married I had a week's leave."

He has carried the same traits into his imperial life. His energy is proverbial. He never rests, and professes the deepest horror of idleness. Moreover, his capacity for work is prodigious.

At levees the Emperor pays his guests some original attentions. During the course of a levee he will change his uniform five or six times. Thus, for instance, if the son of a deceased general of the artillery comes to announce to William II. the death of his father, the Emperor does not fail to put on his artillery uniform to do honor to the officer who has lied in his service. He wears the uniform of a general of artillery, of cavalry, of infantry, or the naval uniform, according to the person he receives and the position that person occupies.

If the Emperor receives foreign representatives or military attaches of foreign Powers, he wears the uniform of the army of the country which the visitor represents, or at least the orders belonging to that country.

This fatiguing ceremony lasts till about half-past two. The Emperor then joins his children, who are already at table, and takes his second breakfast with them.

He then visits certain great functionaries, generals and ministers, and discusses state affairs with them. He visits an artist and sits for a picture or a bust. He inspects the barracks and the public offices, and, if he has time, he concludes the afternoon with a carriage drive, which lasts till five or six o'clock.

At half-past six he again receives persons who have some communication to make to him, or who come to consult him on military or civil business. He reads reports and signs papers which were presented to him in the morning, but which he wished to think over. Finally, at seven o'clock, he dines with his family.

On leaving the table the Emperor devotes some time to his children, who have spent the day in their studies, or in physical exercises, and then he returns to work.

In the evening, as a novel recreation, the Emperor practices fencing. Toward ten he takes a light repast and then retires to his bedroom. A little after ten he summons his valet to help him to undress.

On a table beside his bed there are always placed paper and pencil, in order that the Emperor may make a note of anything that occurs to him before he goes to sleep or before he gets up in the morning.

SHORTEST TELEGRAPH LINE.

It Begins and Ends in the New York Stock Exchange.

Probably the shortest independent telegraph line in the world is the one contained within the walls of the New York Stock Exchange. It is little more than fifty feet in length, extending only from the first to the fourth floor of the famous money mart, yet it is perfect in mechanical detail, and over it during operating hours passes a volume of business exceeding that of trans-continental wires.

This unique telegraph system is employed solely in reporting the transactions of the exchange. One terminus of the line is on the exchange floor, the other is in the top of the building, a flight above the point to which the elevators run and where none but trusted employes of the telegraph company are admitted.

Here, in two little rooms side by side, are the offices of the New York Stock Quotation Company, where record of all the exchange operations is received and is transmitted to "tickers" in every part of the city almost as soon as the transactions are completed downstairs. Inside the offices are six operators selected from many hundred for their skill, rapidity and trustworthiness to carry on this confidential work. Nothing is left to the honesty of the operators, however. From the time they enter the office, at 1 in the morning, until the exchange closes, at 3 in the afternoon, the doors, which afford the only means of entrance, or exit, are closed and locked. Outside on the stairway stands a uniformed guard, who warns away all would-be intruders and keeps watch and ward over the men themselves.

The business transacted in the office at the top of the exchange building is of a peculiar kind, being made up entirely of the record of quotations and sales. The method followed in doing this work is interesting, as illustrating the perfection of quick communication. There may be 10,000 quotations sent out in the course of a day, but so complete is the system that every sale or offer is reported in 2,000 offices in from ten to thirty seconds of the time when it takes place.

All the business on the floor of the exchange is transacted by verbal agreement, and when the market is brisk there is a perfect fusilade of bids and sales. Fourteen official "reporters" jot down the record of all transactions on little slips, which are then rushed over to the telegraph desk, a distance of perhaps twenty feet, and promptly placed on the wire which runs upstairs.

At the other end of the line the operators are ready to receive the message and put it on the outreaching lines. When business is running in ordinary course there is no copying in the upper office and each transmitting operator takes the message by ear as it is clicked off and puts it on his own wire without waiting for the receiving operators to pass it to him, so that the printing of the quotations on the tape of every ticker in the system is practically instantaneous with the touch of the transmitting operator on the exchange floor.

But when there is a rush this method cannot be followed. In that case two receiving operators are stationed with each sender, one seated on either side of him. They take down the messages as they come and pass them on to the transmitter. He sends them out alternately, being able to work twice as fast as the receivers.

"The men employed in the stock quotation office are all experts," said the superintendent of the exchange telegraph in answer to a question. It requires a special training to master our system and become familiar with all the characters employed in our work.

"Each quotation consists of from four to eight characters, running like this: 'W. U. 107 1-8,' 'C. B. & Q. 99,'" all letters and figures. The speed which the men acquire in handling these quotations is remarkable. The average record of each operator runs about twenty-five of these per minute. This means from 150 to 200 impressions per minute or something like 50,000 during the hours when the exchange is open—from 10 to 3. It would rattle the ordinary operator even to think of maintaining such a speed."

A Method In His Peculiarity.

A certain learned professor at Cambridge is a very absent-minded man. A friend of his had been seriously ill. When he was convalescent the professor used to send him jellies and other delicacies. One day he took him a fine bunch of hothouse grapes. The old friends were very pleased to see each other, and were soon in deep discussion. The professor, becoming interested, began absent-mindedly picking the grapes, taking one at a time till they were all gone. On going out of the door he called back to his friend. "Now, mind you eat those grapes; they will do you all the good in the world!"

"Yes, we lost that good girl that I told you about." "What was the trouble?" "Why, she left the water running in the bathtub, and it leaked through and she caught cold. She said she wouldn't stay in a house where they didn't have watertight floors."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

NEW YORK TRIBUNE.

Recognized as a Leader of Public Opinion.

The N. Y. Tribune offers to the public a newspaper which is absolutely representative of the best opinion of the Republican party on all national issues. It is dignified, strong, complete and patriotic.

The Daily Tribune is $10 a year. The Weekly, $1, but can be obtained, in conjunction with various local papers, on more advantageous terms. The Semi-Weekly is $2 a year.

A Newspaper and Magazine Both.

The Semi-Weekly Tribune, printed Tuesdays and Fridays, is one of the best general newspapers in the country for a wide-awake farmer, professional man, merchant, manufacturer or mechanic. It saves the necessity of buying other newspapers. It supplements admirably a local daily; many people take it in place of one.

The agricultural page will contain this year, in addition to regular features, a weather review, many descriptions of the actual results obtained on small farms, and other matters of particular use to gardeners, fruit-growers, farmers, dairymen and live-stock raisers.

Stories of the War With Spain

During each week the reader will find a column of "Questions and Answers," letters from correspondents in London and Paris; a page devoted to science and mechanics; home interests and other things which interest women, including the "Tribune Sunshine Society;" some good games of checkers; a series of thrilling stories of actual experiences in the war with Spain, written by soldiers and sailors; and advance information of new enterprises of importance to manufacturers, mechanics and business men.

Market Reports the Standard.

The markets will be kept up to their present high standard. It is the intention of The Tribune at all times to add to them whatever quotations will render them of greater value. The finest compliment paid to the Semi-Weekly Tribune is the fact that it enjoys the subscriptions of a large number of merchants, dairyman and farmers who disagree with its political sentiments, but who find its accurate market reports essential to the proper conduct of their business. It is always safe to look at The Tribune before one buys or sells country produce. Once a week there is a special market article on one particular topic.

Pictorial Supplement.

With Friday's number there is an illustrated Supplement, 20 to 24 pages, printed on specially fine paper, full of delightful reading, enlivened with from thirty to fifty half-tone or other pictures. Every reader admits that this Supplement is equal to a magazine in its contents, and better than a magazine in being quicker to lay before its readers perfectly fresh discussions of matters which are attracting attention. Sample copies of Friday's issue will be sent free on application. The Supplement contains two pages of humor; a fascinating letter from Ex-Attache, a gentleman who has served at many of the great courts of the world, and who speaks of kings, emperors and noblemen from actual knowledge; book reviews; short stories; dramatic and musical criticisms; the fine work of great architects and artists; letters from abroad; talk on scientific subjects, new warships, etc.; gossip by pungent writers; and, in fact, the whole range of higher topics in which intelligent men and women are deeply interested, and a profusion of beautiful illustrations. The Supplement is the cream of the whole week's work in the Tribune office.

Clubs.

Any reader who may find it convenient to raise a club of subscribers for the Semi-Weekly Tribune is invited to do so, and to send to this office for sample copies, etc.

IT IS NOT

economy to buy a cheap quality of meat. You will usually find it stringy and tough with plenty of white, shewy matter through it. Good honest meat aids good digestion. That is the kind you want—in the kind we keep, and while our prices are not below value, we don't charge any higher, because we give good service.

Runaway Horse Had a Short Run.

An unfortunate accident occurred this morning at the freight house, when the horse owned by J. P. Laire, the hardware dealer, became frightened and ran away. The young colored man employed by Mr. Laire was in charge of the horse and wagon and was loading goods on the wagon at the time. The horse ran as far as Callahan's grocery store on Richmond street, where he was caught. The wagon was damaged a little, but the horse escaped injury.

To be bound hand and foot for years by the chains of disease is the worst form of slavery. George D. Williams, of Manchester, Mich., tells how such a slave was made free. This supreme remedy for female diseases quickly cures nervousness, sleeplessness, melancholy, headache, backache, fainting and dizzy spells. This miracle working medicine is a godsend to weak, sickly, run down people. Every bottle guaranteed. Only 50 cents. Sold by L. W. Randolph, Druggist.

Improvements in Hardware Store.

A decided improvement in store fixtures is the changing of the sample boxes or drawers in Laire's hardware store. There are about 400 of them on the south side of the store and changing the front of each drawer from a dull green to a bright-polished oak, with a sample of the contents on the face of each, is a very decided improvement to the looks of the store.

A TROTTING HORSE STOPPED THE TRAIN.

LOCOMOTIVE STOPPED JUST IN TIME TO SAVE THE HORSE.

The Trotter's Hoof Became Wedged in Between the Planking and a Rail on the Lehigh Valley Crossing at New Market—Frantic Waving of Flag Prevented Train From Running Over Horse.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

New Market, Jan. 28—There was an exciting scene on the Main street crossing of the Lehigh Valley Railroad yesterday afternoon about 3:30 o'clock in which Ellis Campbell's valuable sorrel colt, "Prince Edward," came near being ruined for life. The horse caught his foot in the space between one of the rails and the wooden planking, was thrown and lay there across the track until released from his dangerous position.

Yesterday Edward Campbell was exercising the horse. He was harnessed to a road cart. At the crossing where the accident occurred the platform is worn away considerably, leaving space enough for a horse's hoof between the platform and rail.

Campbell's horse happened to be the one in a thousand to strike this point so as catch his hoof, and was thrown. Rearing up, the horse tried several times to withdraw his hoof without avail. Campbell, who sat easily in the cart, was thrown out and struck his head on one of the iron rails and stunned, but recovered his senses in a moment, and threw himself upon the struggling horse to keep him quiet and prevent his further injury.

As soon as the accident had occurred a crowd of people arrived. Suddenly some one raised the cry "Here comes a train," and down the track ran the crowd, waving flags, caps and coats, in an endeavor to stop it. But the train was too close to stop, and on it came. Then it was discovered that the train was a freight and that it was on the east-bound track.

The horse laid on the west-bound track, and it was seen that the train would pass within six inches of the horse's head. Usually the animal is afraid of railroad trains, and it was expected that he would struggle frantically to get up, but to the surprise of all he lay quiet until the long train had rattled by.

The freight had no sooner passed than the whistle of an approaching passenger train was heard. This train was on the west-bound track, on which the horse lay, and unless that train was stopped the horse would be ground to pieces.

Fortunately the train was running slowly, for it was to stop at New Market station, and was brought to a standstill before reaching the crossing.

A crowbar was brought and the rail was pried back so as to permit the horse to rise and walk off. No bones seemed to be broken, but it is certain that the cords and tendons of the animal's whole body are strained and torn. He was walked to his stable near Avon Park and a veterinary sent for. Today the horse is so stiff and sore that he can scarcely stand up. A demand will be made on the Lehigh Valley Railroad for damages, just as soon as the horse's injuries can be fully ascertained.

SECOND TIME SCORCHED IN A YEAR.

Fire Fiend Works Disastrously in A. J. Leader's New York Printery.

The many friends and acquaintances of A. J. Leader, of Duer street, are sympathizing with him in his second loss by fire in about a year's time. His printing office, situated on Reade street, New York, was badly damaged by fire and water Thursday evening, and his large printing business completely paralyzed for a time by the unfortunate circumstances. The fire started in book-bindery under Mr. Leader's office, which was almost totally destroyed. Mr. Leader has a large amount of "grit" and will set up a new office in the vicinity of his present location, as soon as arrangements can be perfected. In the meantime, friendly printers have come to his rescue and are endeavoring to help him get out some of his most important orders.

Complain About Poor Roadway.

Residents in the vicinity of Woodland and Central avenues are complaining a good deal about the condition of the roadway. It has been washed out by the recent rains, and has received no attention during the past three years.

MORE TROLLEY PLANS.

Will Build a Powerhouse Near Bound Brook This Spring—Through Line Cars From Somerville to New Brunswick.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

New Brunswick, January 28—Judge Kreuger, president of the Brunswick Traction Company, has been interviewed as follows concerning the future plans of the Brunswick Traction Company:

"In the coming spring we shall start the erection of a storagehouse and trolleyhouse outside of Bound Brook, at about the point where the stage has hitherto connected with the trolley terminus. This storagehouse will be used to furnish extra power, and augment or rather relieve our plant at Milltown.

"We propose to run a through line from New Brunswick to Somerville. Persons will be able to travel direct to Somerville without leaving the car.

'At Bound Brook," he said, "the Brunswick Traction Company will have a waiting room. It will be located on Main street in a new building now in course of erection."

Judge Kreuger expressed himself as being very well satisfied with the new trolley bridge. He also told the reporter that the Traction Company is contemplating the building of a road to South Bround Brook; and to continue the road over to Princeton. Possibly the preliminaries for this work will commence in the spring. The company's difficulty now is to get across the canal at Bound Brook. They have not yet obtained the necessary consent to cross the canal bridge, and for certain reasons the Brunswick Traction Company is unable to proceed with the building of a bridge of its own.

The president further said that before summer the company expected to have the system arranged so that trolley cars can go from Bound Brook via Dunellen to Plainfield and through Plainfield over the tracks of the Plainfield Street Railway Company. In return for this courtesy, the Brunswick Company will allow the Plainfield Company to run cars over the tracks to New Brunswick.

MEDALS FOR THE SOLDIERS.

Elizabeth Citizens Propose to Present the Tokens to Volunteers.

The Elizabeth committee on a reception to the returning volunteers from the Spanish-American war have decided to have 250 souvenir metals made and presented to soldiers from Elizabeth who entered the national service and received an honorable discharge.

It is the intention of the committee to write to Gov. Voorhees, Congressman Fowler, Senator Kean, former Prosecutor Marsh and Rev. Otis A. Glazebrook to make speeches at the reception.

To Condemn Land for Railroad Use.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Rahwhy, Jan. 28—Justice VanSyckel has designated Feb. 6th as the date on which he will appoint commissioners to condemn the land on Irving street, Rahway, on which the Pennsylvania Railroad has laid its fourth track, and which land belongs to D. B. Dunham, a wealthy carriage manufacturer of Rahway. The railroad company disputed Mr. Dunham's right to the property, but was defeated by him some time ago in an ejectment suit brought in the Union County Circuit Court. Now Dunham expects to get a good price for his land.

Judgment Against Bicyclist.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Elizabeth, Jan. 28—Judge Vail, in the Union County Court of Common Pleas, has affirmed the decision rendered by District Court Judge Atwater in the suit for damages brought by Night Telegraph Operator Charles J. Martin, employed at the Western Union office, in Rahway, who sued William Lamphear, of Rahway, for running him down on a bicycle and severely injuring him so that he had brain fever. Judge Atwater awarded Martin $150 and costs. Lamphear's attorney says that the case will now be certioraried to the Supreme Court.

YOUNG PLAINFIELDER TO BE ORDAINED A MINISTER.

CEREMONY TO BE HELD IN FEBRUARY

George Poole Will Be Qualified to Accept a Call to a Hunterdon County Church.

At the last business meeting of the Park Avenue Baptist church a communication was read from the Baptist church at Bingoes, Hunterdon county, stating that that church had called George Poole to preach for them. Mr. Poole is a member of the Park Avenue Baptist church, and has just completed a short course of study in the Louisville Theological Seminary.

The church clerk, Thos. A. Cuming, was instructed to issue a call for a council to take action upon the matter of ordaining Mr. Poole, and the council will meet in the church parlors the third Tuesday in February.

The council will be composed of about thirty-seven Baptist ministers of the East New Jersey Association, and among those from this vicinity who may be members of it are Rev. Frank Fletcher, Rev. Dr D. J. Yerkes, Rev. Robert Lowry, Rev. Dr. Parks and Rev. Mr. Cubberly. Invitations have already been sent to Rev. Dr. Lowry, Rev. Dr. Parks, of Scotch Plains, and Rev. Mr. Pogson, of New York.

CROW'S CONDITION CRITICAL.

Somerville Policeman Lingers Between Life and Death Yet.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Somerville, January 28.—Officer Manning Crow, who was shot by burglars last week, is doing as well as could be expected. At times his physicians have thought his recovery very probable, and again he has seemed to be in a critical condition. He has been resting easy during the past two days, and unless the bullet which entered his chest is lodged in some vital point which may cause trouble, he is likely to recover. He keeps in good spirits and says he will be out soon.

There is yet no clue to the robbers. Prosecutor Dungan has offered a reward of $500 for their apprehension, and detectives have been at work. It is said that the Beef Company have a noted detective on the case. The only clues to work from seem to be a gold ring found by a boy in front of the beef house the morning after the robbery, and the blanket used to wrap the safe when it was blown up. This, it is believed, came from the barn of William Beardsly, over the river. Whether these clues will aid in discovering the culprits seems doubtful.

FOR MUNICIPAL OWNERSHIP.

Westfield Proposes to Secure Their Own Electric Light Plant.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Westfield, Jan. 28—Committeeman Dennis sprung a surprise on the township committee last evening by introducing the following resolution:

"Resolved, That the committee recommend an appropriation by the township to cover the cost of making a canvass of the town to ascertain the amount paid by private consumers of electric light and water; also an estimate by a competent disinterested engineer as to the probable cost of the plant, and the annual running expenses of the same; also to ascertain if the plants of the private corporations in the township could be purchased, and if so, at what price. The final result of this investigation to be made public, and an election to be held afterward to decide what policy is to be followed in the township regarding street lighting and fire hydrants."

This resolution caused a long discussion, but being seconded by Committeeman Harden was passed, Chairman Embree voting against.

Funeral of George Benson

The funeral of the late George Benson was held yesterday from the house on Duer street. Rev. Dr. D. J. Yerkes, pastor of the First Baptist church, officiated. There was a large attendance of friends, including the firm of Woolston & Buckle, and the employes from their shop, where the deceased was employed. The floral offerings were simple, but very beautiful, and included a pillow from the employes at Woolston & Buckle's. Interment was in Plainfield avenue cemetery, and those who acted as pall-bearers were Samuel Terry, Jr, Arthur McDonald, Howard Woolston and Clinton Shannon.

Banquet For Senator Kean.

A dinner will be given Senator-elect John Kean Feb. 10 by the Mattano Club of Elizabeth, of which he was one of the projectors. Gov. Voorhees is a former President of the club, and Congressman Fowler, Senator Cross, Mayors Mack and Rankin, County Clerk Howard, Surrogate Parrot and Sheriff Kirk are among the members.

CAMP-MEETING MAN HEARD FROM AGAIN.

Rev. W. B. G. Costor Turns Up In Brooklyn This Time.

HE IS ASKING FOR CHARITY.

BROOKLYN AUTHORITIES WRITE TO THIS CITY FOR INFORMATION.

With the Help of Former Councilman Spangenberg, Mrs. Woodruff, Agent for the Organized Aid Association, Compiles His Record in Plainfield and Sends it On—His Record is Bad Here.

Rev. W. B. G. Costor, the colored preacher who attempted to organize a church here last summer, and afterwards decamped with the proceeds of the large collections taken up at a series of camp-meetings, has been heard from again. He is in Brooklyn, soliciting aid for his wife and himself, and applied to one of the aid societies there for help.

When the officers of the society questioned him about his past life, and where he had lived last, he mentioned Plainfield, and said that he was engaged in mission work here last year.

The preacher's glib tongue almost won him the confidence of the society and he was on the point of receiving the desired aid when it was thought best to communicate with Plainfield and find out if his record was good.

Accordingly, Mrs. W. A. Woodruff, superintendent of the Organized Aid here, was asked to tell what she knew about him. Aided by Leonard Spangenberg, who was one of the preacher's strongest supporters, and who lost about $65 by him, Mrs. Woodruff was able to send back to Brooklyn such a clear record of Costor's actions that the society turned him off.

Costor arrived in Plainfield from Newark last spring. He came well recommended and through the help of Mr. Spangenberg he organized St. Peter's church in the northern part of the city. A series of camp-meetings were afterward held at Netherwood, at which prominent colored preachers spoke. When the camp-meetings were over Costor decamped, carrying with him the amount of the collections, nearly $100. No very good efforts were made to locate him, and Costor's whereabouts have been unknown.

In his talk with the officers of the Brooklyn Aid Society, Costor said that he was coming back to Plainfield once more.

SUMMIT WAS DEFEATED.

EASILY DOWNED AT BASKET BALL BY PLAINFIELD.

Plainfield Y. M. C. A. Team Was Never Compelled to Play Its Best Game—Score Was 35 to 8—They Played at Summit.

Summit, Jan. 28.—The basket ball team of the Summit Y. M. C. A. fell an easy prey to the Plainfield Y. M. C. A. team last evening, in the first game of a series between the two teams. The match was played in the local gymnasium and was witnessed by a large crowd of rooters.

There was a time when Plainfield and Summit were evenly matched in a basket ball game but that time has evidently passed. The Plainfield team won by a score of 35 to 8, and was never once compelled to play its best. The local team was completely outclassed at the start.

In the first half, Plainfield played with Carroll in Smith's regular place at guard. The score stood 18 to 4 at the end of the first half. Then Walter Long, the captain of the visitors, was knocked out and Bonner took his place. Smith went in at guard, Carroll retiring. The Plainfield men all played well but were not forced to do any brilliant work.

The teams lined up as follows:

PLAINFIELD.		SUMMIT.
Long, Bonner	right forward	Wagner
Egan	left forward	Muchman
M. Moraller	centre	Houston
Carroll Smith	right guard	Mc onald
E. Moraller	left guard	Foster

Score—Plainfield, 35; Summit, 8. Goals from the field—Long (4), Bonner (2), Egan (5), Carroll, Smith (2), E. Moraller (3), Wagner, Muchman, Foster (2). Goals on fouls—E. Moraller. Fouls—Plainfield, 3; Summit, 1. Referee William Jessop, of Summit. Umpires—William Nicholls, of Summit, L. I. VanAlstyne, of Plainfield. Scorer—C. E. A. Heywood.

RESTORING EFFECTS OF DEAD.

Jewels and Money of Lehigh Valley Victims Collected by the Coroner.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

New Brunswick, Jan. 28—Coroner Moke and County Physician Long, of New Brunswick, have been at Shamokin and Mt. Carmel, Pa., for the last two days, looking up the legal representatives of the victims of the fatal wreck on the Lehigh Valley Railroad, at West Dunellen, and restoring to them the money, jewels and other valuables that were taken from the dead.

OLD SOMERVILLE LAWYER FOUND DEAD IN BED.

HEALTH WAS APPARENTLY GOOD.

J. Vred Voorhees, One of the Oldest Lawyers in Somerset County, Passes Away.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Somerville, Jan. 28.—This community was deeply shocked yesterday when the news of the sudden death of J. Vred Voorhees, aged 70 years, was known. The day before Mr. Voorhees was in the County Clerk's office and was apparently in his usual good health. Death was due to heart failure.

Mr. Voorhees was the oldest lawyer in Somerset county and had always lived in the county. He was a highly respected citizen and well known for his honesty and integrity. At one time he had a very lucrative practice and was at the time of his death well-to do. In politics he was a sturdy Democrat. He was one of the best known residents of his county. He leaves a son and daughter, the latter being married.

No doubt the legal fraternity of Somerset county will take suitable action in connection with his death.

A FREE ENTERTAINMENT.

First of a Series of Affairs to be Given by First Church of Christ.

The first of a series of entertainments to be given by the Christian church this winter and spring took place last night. The entertainment was given in Reform Hall and was followed by an oyster supper in the basement.

The entertainment was free and everybody was invited. It consisted of recitations, singing and instrumental music, and seemed to be enjoyed thoroughly.

A quartette composed of W. C. Smith, Sr., W. C. Smith, Jr., Edward P. T. Smith and Arthur E. Smith, rendered a selection at the opening and close of the programme. Besides these there were recitations by little Beulah VanWinkle, piano solos by A. G. Carpenter, vocal solos by Mrs. Manley, a vocal duet by Rev. and Mrs. McKane, and an original poem written for the occasion by Noah Pike and entitled, "The Church." This was read by Arthur E. Smith, who also had charge of the entertainment.

The supper was served down stairs. Cake, coffee, crackers and oysters were donated by the members of the church and then sold. Twenty-five cents bought a stew and 10 cents a cup of coffee and a piece of cake. The ladies of the church had charge of this part of the affair and quite a snug sum was realized.

DIED IN CALIFORNIA.

A. L. Voorhees Went There Seeking Health, But Did Not Get It.

Word was received in this city yesterday telling of the death of A. L. Voorhees, formerly of Millstone, but late of California. Mr. Voorhees went to California last March for his health, but the change did not seem to be beneficial. He was to have started yesterday from California for home, and his sister, Mrs. William E. Day, of Vine street, received a letter early this week to that effect. His death occurred at 4 o'clock yesterday morning and was due to consumption. He was about 30 years of age, and was quite well known in this vicinity. The body will no doubt be brought on to his home for burial. Mr. Voorhees was in company with a friend from his home, and he is now looking after the body. Mr. Voorhees was a nephew of E. M. Laing, of Park avenue.

Want a New Municipality.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Westfield, Jan. 28.—Some of the citizens of Union Township are going to make another attempt to secede from the township. The voters of Aldene, Lorraine and Elmora, forming practically the First election district of the township, are to hold a meeting Monday night at the Park Clubhouse to consider the matter. They want either a separate township or to be incorporated into a borough. The majority seem to prefer the township idea, but are willing to be set off in a borough if it can be done easier.

A Pleasant Surprise Party.

A pleasant surprise party was given to Miss Gordon, of Church street, Thursday evening, in honor of her twenty-fifth birthday. It was arranged by J. W. Brady, who had charge of an exhibition of phonograph selections that formed the principal part of the evening's entertainment. There were twenty-five present. Dancing and music was also enjoyed.

The Minister's Associations.

The Plainfield Ministers' Association will be entertained Monday, February 13th, by Rev. Dr. W. C. Snodgrass, at his home on Central avenue, and Rev. Dr. Rodman will present the topic for discussion.

THE EPWORTH LEAGUERS

CHAPLAIN CASSARD TO SPEAK TO YOUNG METHODISTS.

State Convention to Be Held in Camden Three Days in February—Delegates From All Over the State.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Camden, Jan. 28—The annual convention of the New Jersey conference Epworth League will be held in the Broadway M. E. church, this city, the 15th, 16th and 17th of February. The opening exercises on the first-named date, at 7:30 p. m., will be highly interesting, as Chaplain Cassard, of the United States battleship Indiana, will deliver the address, following which a public reception will be tendered to the board of control.

This organization is composed of over 200 chapters of the Epworth League, connected with the different Methodist Episcopal churches within the bounds of the New Jersey conference, which have an aggregate membership of between 18,000 and 20,000.

Delegates from all these churches are entitled to attend the convention, for whose comfort the Epworth Leagues of this city are making extensive preparations.

The programme, which is one of real merit, is made up of many addresses, conferences on every branch of work, an "Old-fashioned Methodist Love-feast," and various praise, prayer and social meetings. Among the speakers will be Bishop William X. Ninde, of Detroit, Mich.; Rev. Dr. Cadman, the eminent orator and preacher, of New York City; Rev. Thomas Martindale, D. D., of Delaware; Rev. Charles M. Boswell, superintendent of the Philadelphia Forward Movement, and other prominent ministers and laymen. The convention gives every promise of being a great success.

A RED-LETTER WEEK.

Biggest Record for New Subscriptions to Daily Press Ever Known.

This has been a red-letter week with the circulation department of The Daily Press. More new subscriptions have been received during the past six days than in any other period of equal length since The Daily Press was founded. The contestants in the subscription contest are hustling with might and main and their efforts are very apparent. There is a group of contestants in the lead all standing close together. The young women in the contest have shown up well and one, in particular is fast running up the number of subsriptions credited to her.

In a few days handsomely-framed diplomas from the Plainfield Business College and the Gregg School of Shorthand, to be presented to the winners in The Press contest, and the Webster's International Dictionary, third prize in the contest, will be placed on exhibition in the central show-window of Woodhull & Martin's big store.

WILL HAVE FUN WITH THE CURFEW.

Vineland Youths Preparing to Ridicule the New Law.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Vineland, N. J., Jan. 28.—The Borough Council's curfew ordinance takes effect today, and all Vineland will be on the streets to see the fun. The young men, when visiting Millville, Bridgton and other cities, say they are taunted and jibed with admonitions to "go home before the curfew bell rings," etc., and they feel their indignities keenly. It is reported that secret preparations are being made to ridicule the curfew by having each Councilman serenaded by a band of masqueraded youngsters with cow bells. Everybody is still wondering where the Borough Council is going to get a bell to toll.

New Bridge Satisfactory.

(Special to The Daily Press)

They made a thorough inspection of the structure. County Engineer Queen expressed himself as entirely satisfied with the manner in which the work is being done.

THE LAST TRIBUTES PAID TO THE DEAD.

Three Funeral Services Held in This City This Afternoon.

THE RADFORD OBSEQUIES.

LATE LETTER-CARRIER HANN HONORED WITH CHURCH SERVICES.

Funeral of the Late Robert Radford Held From His Old Home—Floral Tributes Were Beautiful—Letter-Carriers Visited Mr. Hann's Home and Viewed His Remains—Pythians Present.

The funeral services of the late Robert Radford were held this afternoon from the house, corner of West Front street and Elmwood place, at 1:15. There was a very large attendance of friends and relatives, bearing strong evidence of the high esteem in which the departed was held. Rev. Charles E. Herring, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, conducted the services, and his words of comfort to the bereaved ones were filled with consolation. He spoke very highly of the exemplary life of the departed, and paid a rich testimony to his faithful Christian character. He told how he had attended so regularly divine worship, and how he had lived a Christian life every day.

The floral tributes were many and beautiful, including offerings from the several children of the departed. Interment took place in the North Plainfield cemetery, and relatives of the deceased acted as bearers.

This afternoon the local letter-carriers visited the late home of Edward T. Hann, on Somerset place, and viewed the remains of the former comrade. The scene was a pathetic one and the carriers were much affected. The funeral services were held this afternoon from the First Presbyterian church at 3 o'clock, and were in charge of the pastor, Rev. Charles E. Herring, who spoke words of feeling and comfort to the bereaved ones. He also spoke about the life of the departed, of his faithfulness in the service of the Government. The floral display was beautiful and consisted of many set pieces and bunches of flowers. The attendance of relatives and friends at the services were large, and included a large delegation from Perseverance Lodge, No. 74, K. of P., of which the deceased was a member. Officers from this lodge assisted in the services at the grave which made it very impressive. Interment was in Hillside cemetery.

The funeral services of Jennie Root, aged nine years, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Root, were held this afternoon from the house, 526 West Sixth street, at 1 o'clock, and were private. Rev. G. Kennedy Newell, pastor of Hope chapel, officiated. Interment took place at 3:30 o'clock in VanLiew cemetery, New Brunswick, and Dr. Pockman, pastor of the First Reformed church of that place, officiated.

VERY GRATIFYING RESULTS.

Second Night of the Turkey Supper at Trinity Reformed Church a Success.

The second night of the turkey supper in the lecture room of the Trinity Reformed church, last evening, was not as largely attended as the first night, although there was a very good attendance. About 167 suppers were served. The same ladies and their waitresses were in charge at the supper tables, while the other departments were in the same hands as on the first night, when the full list was published in The Daily Press.

The ladies feel very grateful for the generous patronage they received and also for the fact that $175 was cleared above all expenses. This will enable the Christian Work Society of the church, under whose auspices the affair was held, to pay off the balance of their indebtedness incurred in upholstering the church, and leave then a snug balance to assist the other departments of the church, needing assistance, or otherwise.

Presidents Will Report.

An executive meeting of the Local Union, Christian Endavor, will be held at the home of the president, Miss F. Hawkins, 473 LaGrande avenue, Monday evening at 8 o'clock. The presidents of the societies are requested to hand in reports for the last three months, and the Junior superintendents are also requested to be present.

A Troublesome Wound

Leonard Smith, of Duer street, has again been laid up with the wound on one of his lower limbs caused by a fall from his bicycle last summer. Mr. Smith says that the wound heals sufficiently to enable him to go to his business, then at the least little jar or wrench opens again, and compels him to remain at home. He hopes to be out again by Monday.

LET US ARM YOU!

It's quite necessary, because while Uncle Sam is settling scores with the Spaniards you're bound to have a little brush at home at the same time, and there's nothing like being ready for emergencies. Until you can sign a perpetual truce with sun, wind and storm, your house and other buildings will need to be fortified with paint, and ours are like a 20-inch chilled steel armor.

EAGAN CASE CLOSED

Secretary Alger a Witness for the Defense.

THE QUESTION OF IMMUNITY

The Daughter of Gen. Eagan Describes His Condition—Thought Gen. Miles Had Ruined His Life—Closing Arguments Made in the Afternoon.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 28.--The first witness before the Eagan court martial yesterday was David R. McKee of this city, for many years the agent of the Associated Press, who has known General Eagan for about 45 years.

During the period between the time General Miles gave his testimony before the war investigating commission and the day on which General Eagan made his statement, the witness stated he saw him two or three times. He then seemed careworn and much preoccupied.

Mr. McKee said that the impression General Eagan then made upon him was that he had become insane.

Major S. C. Miles, the recorder of the war investigating commission, was recalled and in answer to inquiries said that so far as he knew the order of the president granting immunity to witnesses before that body had not been reduced to writing.

At this point the judge advocate read the president's address on the assembling of the war investigating commission, which, however, was unsigned, and the witness was asked whether any other instructions had been given.

He replied that there had not.

The witness was present at the meeting between the president and the members of the war investigation commission. The witness said:

"The matter of immunity for witnesses came up. I think it was called up by Mr. Dodge, and the president said that witnesses who should appear before the commission could do so without any fear of punishment or prosecution."

Mr. Russell A. Alger, the secretary of war, was next called.

He said he recalled a conversation he had with General Eagan shortly after General Miles had given his testimony. General Eagan came into his office in an excited frame of mind and said it was his wish to prefer charges against General Miles for what he had said.

"I told him," testified Secretary Alger, "that under the president's order granting immunity to officers who testified before the commission he could not do so."

General Alger was excused, the members of the court rising to their feet as he withdrew.

Mrs. Hopkins, the daughter of General Eagan, was the next witness. General Eagan's counsel explained that he called her against the wish of her father and husband and only because her absence from the trial might be remarked upon.

She said her father came home one afternoon, and standing in the doorway, with a paper in his hand, exclaimed:

"General Miles has crucified me." She could never forget that scene, and said that since that time her father had been a greatly changed man.

He could think of nothing else nor talk of anything else than that General Miles had ruined his life.

He was from that time in an alarming condition, and when witness was compelled to go to New York she had returned almost at once to help care for her father.

The witness spoke with much feeling in regard to her father's changed condition and was given the closest attention of the court.

The defence rested then.

The case was argued during the afternoon, and at 1.30 o'clock General Merritt declared the case closed and ordered the room to be vacated by all except the members of the court.

A session behind closed doors of an hour sufficed for the court to reach a decision and embody it in a report. The verdict is altogether a matter of speculation, and, officially at least, will not be made public until action is promulgated by the proper reviewing authorities.

Kaiser Celebrates His Birthday.

Berlin, Jan. 28.--Emperor William yesterday received the birthday congratulations of his family and household and after a special service in the chapel of the castle, he held a reception in the White Hall.

The emperor was born in Berlin, January 27, 1859.

His majesty also received the German sovereigns and princes who had arrived in Berlin for the occasion, and the other princes and princesses of the royal family.

After the reception the emperor proceeded to the arsenal to give the password to the garrison.

For Cuban Independence.

Havana, Jan. 28.--Dr. Castillo is going to Remedios in order to confer with General Maximo Gomez regarding the formation of the projected Cuban independence party. The platform has one idea, the termination of the military occupation of the island as soon as possible.

The Spaniards have been invited to join in the movement and will be given proportionate representation on the committees.

The general purpose is to draw into the party the educated and wealthy, and not to allow the military element to control it.

A Womans Peculiar Suicide.

Corning, N. Y., Jan. 28.--Miss Helen M. T. Ayres, a maiden lady who lived alone at Penn Yan, committed suicide in a peculiar manner Thursday. She went to the attic of her house attired in her night robe, got into a large packing trunk with a large bottle of chloroform and there ended her life.

DUN'S WEEKLY REPORT.

Greath Strength Evident in the Industries of the Country.

New York, Jan. 28.--The country is in a stronger position than a week ago. Remarkable strength in its industries is important, but is not the chief element. Public confidence in the business of the country and in its securities has been tested to an unusual extent by the sudden fall in stocks and the subsequent rise.

Confidence in the value of wheat, corn and cotton has been shown by the markets, and at rising prices the world buys because it has to buy. The vast supply of unemployed capital has been shown impressively, and the new and startling independence of foreign money markets fixes attention.

The lumber movement is unusually large for the season with prices of low grades sharply advancing. Railroad earnings and tonnage have shown surprising gains. Treasury receipts are gaining, and a vote on the peace treaty has been fixed for February 6.

Wool grows weaker because forced by speculation a year ago to prices which the market for goods could not sustain, and has been much embarrassed in trying to sustain ever since.

Cotton is higher one-quarter cent, and goods have been strong. Belief that damaged cotton will cut down the yield helps increased demand for goods to raise prices for both.

Boots and shoes do not quotably change, though the lowest offers for boots by fifteen cents are reported, while leather is nearly one per cent. higher, with hides not changed.

Pig iron has risen at Chicago because of higher freights frof the south, and at Pittsburg a shade for Bessemer and Grey Forge because of growing demand, but for the moment the rise of .2 per cent. in pig is exceeded by the rise of 2.0 per cent. in products. The pressure for many products is such that the works are able to make their own quotations, and rails, bars at Pittsburg, and wire nails have slightly advanced. The demand is heavy in all lines.

Wheat has risen eight cents, with much buying based on extraordinary exports, from Atlantic ports for the week, flour included, 813,301 bushels, against 2,971,333 last year, and from Pacific ports 321,255 bushels, against 1,180,272 last year, and from other ports 462,454.

Reports of injury to winter wheat always come at this season, but count for little when the farmers are selling heavily. Corn has advanced two cents although exports have been 11,513,335 bushels, against 13,061,477 last year, and the surprising continuance of demand, equalling last year's, seems to be forgotten.

Failures for the week have been 224 in the United States, against 342 last year, and 33 in Canada, against 44 last year.

Miners Perish in Alaska.

Seattle, Jan. 28.--The steamer Cottage City, from Alaska, brings news that several Copper River prospectors have perished in Valdes Glacier. The following are known to have been lost:

Ole Evjens, Baldwin, Wis.
——— Henderson, Wisconsin.
Charles Khron, New York city.
D. P. Smith, Chicago.
George Sweesy, New York.

Among the many badly frozen miners are:

Holven Evjens, Baldwin, Wis.
Sylvester Grog, St. Joseph, Mo.
George Poalowits, New York city.

There are six men at Valdes suffering from frozen feet, hands and faces. A hospital has been established at Twelve Mile camp, on the other side of the glacier, and fifteen men are suffering there from the same cause. All were frozen trying to cross the glacier, but managed to get back to camp.

The freezing of the Evjens, father and son, is particularly sad. They started for Valdes, but on getting well toward the summit of the glacier, found their feet freezing. Both started back. The son gave extra wrapping to his father for his feet, and as a result both the son's legs were frozen in a few minutes, and he was unable to go on. He bade his father good bye and compelled him to go on without him.

Then the boy lay down in the snow to die. The body probably will never be recovered.

The father reached Twelve Mile camp, but is not expected to live.

Missed Their Transport.

San Francisco, Cal., Jan. 28.--Captain J. F. Morrison of Company I and Lieutenant M. F. Smith of the Twentieth regiment, United States infantry, from Fort Leavenworth, Kansas, with several non-commissioned officers and a few privates, were left behind when the transport Scandia sailed for Manila.

The officers had secured shore leave and will report to General Shafter at the Presidio. The privates were not given any permission to go ashore and are in dread of summary punishment.

PLATT ON EXPANSION

HIS SPEECH DRAWS A CROWD

Present Critical Situation in the Philippines He Says is an Argument for and Not Against Early Ratification—House to Amend Army Bill.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 28.--Senator Thomas C. Platt made his debut as a senatorial orator yesterday in a speech in favor of ratifying the peace treaty, the first he has delivered during his present term in the senate.

The senator gave notice Thursday of his intention and there was a full attendance on the floor and in the galleries. There was a very general interest to see how the able political leader would acquit himself as a speaktr.

He took practically the same ground that Senator Lodge took in his speech last wee, that the first clear duty of the American people was the ratification of the ptace treaty; after that, in its turn and time, would come the question of Philippine government.

In the course of his speech the senator said: "The disorder now existing in the Philippine islands, to which senators who are opposing the treaty may well afford to consider how far they are contributing; the unwillingness of the armed natives to accept American authority, does not constitute, in my mind, the slightest ground on which to base a vote against the Paris agreement. On the contrary, it affords a new reason why our action should be the more prompt and unanimous.

"No senator has had the hardihood to suggest that we shall now return these islands to the Spanish government and no other disposition of them than that is inconsistent with a vote to confirm the treaty.

"Imputations have been made here upon the purpose of those who advocate the assumption by the United States of Philippine sovereignty which can scarcely be genuine. All this talk about forcing our government upon an unwilling people, all this eloquent invocation of the spirit of the declaration of independence is far and away from any real point that concerns the senate in this discussion.

"No senator can suppose that there exists an American statesman who approaches the consideration of the Philippine problem with any other than the most benevolent intentions concerning the Filipinos and their future. There are reasons why the natives of those islands, after their experience with Spanish misrule, should misunderstand the presence at Manila of an American army. But there is no reason why an American senator should misunderstand it, and no justification of his course in misrepresenting it.

"Mr. President, I do not know, and I do not think anyone else can know, just what ought to be done with the Philippine islands beyond this--that we ought as instantly as possible to complete the withdrawal of their sovereignty from the kingdom of Spain, and that we ought ourselves to assume its obligations and prudently to discharge them until we have had full opportunity in our own councils to determine their best disposition.

"This is all that the treaty of Paris proposes or imposes. It is all that the administration has at any time suggested. It is no more than a safe and conservative policy advises. It is no less than our public obligations require. It is a plain, clear, positive duty. It is one of those duties that are not to be got rid of by evasion, nor even by denial. It would remain after you had rejected the treaty. It lies in the nature of the situation.

"Your army, your navy, and your flag are at Manila. You can add to their dangers if you will. But their duty abides and the will of the nation must be done."

To Amend Army Bill.

Washington, Jan. 28.--In view of the opposition on the Republican side to an increase of the regular army to one hundred thousand men, an agreement has been reached among the friends of the measure pending in the House to amend it in two important particulars. The minimum strength of the army will be fixed at fifty thousand men, authority being given the president in time of emergency to enlist fifty thousand additional men.

The organization and strength of the cavalry and infantry companies will be made the same as they were before the Spanish war.

Mr. Choate at White House.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 28.--Joseph Choate, United States ambassador to Great Britain, had a long conference with Secretary Hay and later with President McKinley at the White House yesterday.

He received his final instructions from Secretary Hay. On leaving the president he said that he would not sail for London until the latter part of February, and that he might return to Washington again before setting sail from this country.

Siege Batteries at Washington Barracks.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 28.--Two new modern batteries of siege artillery have arrived in Washington and are now at the Washington barracks, where they will be used for drill purposes. General Miles, in company with Colonel Maus of his staff, yesterday paid a visit to the barracks for the purpose of examining the new pieces.

A MONUMENT TO G. W.

THE WASHINGTON MONUMENT UNVEILED IN PHILADELPHIA.

Subscription Started in 1811—The State Society of the Cincinnati Raised the Money—The Story of the Statue—How the Monument Appears.

The monument to the memory of the Father of his Country which the State Society of the Cincinnati of Pennsylvania has erected in Fairmount Park, Philadelphia, is the most important group of sculpture ever raised in America. The society, more than eighty-five years ago, projected it as a tribute from his comrades in arms. The almost insignificant sum at that time contributed has been so carefully handled that it has acquired the vast proportions of a quarter of a million of dollars, and it is now the proud privilege of the original Cincinnati to fulfil their trust, and to present this beautiful structure to their chief city. Its dedication, May 15 inst., was an event of national significance and importance.

The collection of subscriptions for this monument was commenced in 1811 by men who fought in the Continental army with Washington. On the Fourth of July of that year the Society of the Cincinnati, which still had in its membership men who had fought in the Revolution, met in the State House and adopted measures necessary to set on foot the erection of a monument which should fittingly commemorate the character and virtues of the Father of his Country.

WASHINGTON MONUMENT.

That committee contains none of the names of those who gave inception to the work. Generation after generation has succeeded to the noble task and to the hereditary honor of membership. No such monument was ever dreamed of by the sturdy, yet modest soldiers who prepared the original resolution, but the men of today are animated by no more love and reverence than were those who in the beginning laid the unpretentious foundation for the erection of this grand tribute to George Washington.

From an oblong platform 6 feet 6 inches high, of Swedish granite, and reached from four sides by thirteen steps, symbolocal of the thirteen original states, rises a pedestal bearing an equestrian statue in bronze of Gen. Washington. The Father of His Country is represented in the colonial uniform of the American army, a large military cloak being thrown artistically around his commanding figure. While dignified, the whole conception is full of animation. In his left hand Washington holds the reins of his horse, one of the animal's fore feet being raised in the act of moving.

At the four corners of the platform are fountains, served by allegorical figures of American Indians, representing four rivers, the Delaware, Hudson, Potomac, and Mississippi. On the sides each of these fountains is guarded by typical American animals, eight in all. At the front and back of the pedestal are two allegorical groups. That on the front represents America, seated, and holding in one hand a cornucopia, in the other a trident, and having at her feet chains just cast off. She is in the act of receiving from her victorious sons the trophies of their conquest. Below this group is an eagle supporting the arms of the United States. The group in the back represents America arousing her sons to a sense of their slavery. Below are the arms of Pennsylvania. On the sides of the pedestal are two bas-reliefs, one representing the march of the American army, the other a Western-bound emigrant train. On one side the pedestal bears the inscription "Sic Semper Tyrannis," and "Per Aspera ad Astra;" on the other, "Westward the Star of Empire Takes Its Way." Surrounding the upper portion of the pedestal is: "Erected by the State Society of the Cincinnati of Pennsylvania."

The equestrian statute, the figures and the bas-relief, as well as the numerous other ornamentations, are of bronze, while the platform, pedestal, &c., are of Swedish granite.

The entire height of the monument is 44 feet. The ground plan of the platform is 61 by 74 feet, and the pedestal is 17 by 30 feet. The monument as a whole presents a most pleasing and elegant appearance, and is not only an embellishment to the historic ground where it stands, but also a valuable addition to the artistic statuary of Philadelphia's city parks. Prof. Rudolph Siemering, the artist who designed the monument, is a celebrated sculptor of Berlin.

She: "Is old Closefist mean?"
He: "Why, he lives in the suburbs, and has made a complaint to the authorities to prevent cyclists from pumping the pure air of the place into pneumatic tires."

I think every man I see uses R·I·P·A·N·S.

Mr. Barry, our manager, takes one after every meal and so does his father and sister. The old gentleman has rheumatism if he don't take R·I·P·A·N·S. They use twelve a day in that house.

About half the people I know carry one of those 5-cent cartons all the time in their vest pockets.

I was in the Bowery Savings Bank to draw some money, and while I was waiting in the line a clerk came up to the paying teller and said: "Give me a Ripans!" The teller took a carton out of his pocket and handed it to the clerk, who took out one of the Tabules and handed the carton back. Then I watched him and saw him go to the water cooler and swallow the Tabule with some water; I saw him tip his head back.

It's just wonderful how everybody takes them.

A new style packet containing THE RIPANS TABULES in a paper carton (without glass) is now for sale at some drug stores—FOR FIVE CENTS. This low-priced sort is intended for the poor and the economical. One dozen of the five-cent cartons (60 tabules) can be had by mail by sending forty-eight cents to the RIPANS CHEMICAL COMPANY, No. 10 Spruce Street, New York—or a single carton (TEN TABULES) will be sent for five cents. RIPANS TABULES may also be had of grocers, general storekeepers, news agents and at liquor stores and barber shops.

THE SITUATION AT MANILA.

Agoncillo Denies That His Despatches Have Been Intercepted.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 28.—The report of the interception by our government of a cable dispatch alleged to have been sent by Agoncillo, the agent here of Aguinaldo, to the Filipinos at home, warning them that after the ratification of the treaty of Paris the president would take an aggressive stand, and that they must strike for their rights at once, if at all, is not denied in high quarters.

The talk about arresting Agoncillo, however, is probably premature.

The cabinet devoted much of its short session yesterday to discussing the Eagan case, and seemed generally agreed that to magnify the importance of the Filipino envoy would be inexpedient just now.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 28.—Agoncillo, the representative here of Aguinaldo, the Philippine insurgent leader, has authorized the following statement concerning a published report that the government had intercepted dispatches from him to Aguinaldo, in which he advised that the Filipinos would have to fight for their independence, and that now was the time to act:

"The statement is absolutely false, and is calculated to excite feeling and animosity in this country and to prejudice the Philippine cause. No such telegram has ever been sent by me, and for that reason no such telegram could have been intercepted. The falsity of the statement is shown by the fact that I have cabled my government to continue the same friendship which was born on the battlefield against Spain. The Philippine people have no wish and no purpose to fight the Americans, unless they are driven to it. Their only desire is to strengthen the bonds now existing."

Canals to Open Early.

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 28.—Colonel Partridge, superintendent of the state department of public works, announces that the canals will open for navigation this year at the earliest possible date.

He is making a special effort in this direction. Requests have been received from business and canal boat interests asking that the date of opening be earlier than last year. He believes that the canals will be ready for opening just as soon as the weather will permit.

The superintendent has directed Chief Inspector Tubbs to hurry the ordinary repairs with all possible speed. These include repairs to locks, culverts and waste weirs.

Colonel Partridge is giving the matter of appointments to the public works department much consideration, and stated yesterday that he would probably have several announcements to make early next week.

The Strike at Colon.

Colon, Colombia, January 28.—As a result of the strike of dock laborers and railway laborers here the railroad freight house has been transformed into a barracks, where the idle men and loafers of the city sleep in cars and are fed from the ships. The building is guarded by troops, and exit from it is impossible.

Cases of looting of non-strikers' houses have already occurred. Some of the striking laborers have sailed for Costa Rica, sooner than accept the old rate of wages.

Public sympathy, generally, is with the strikers. They are now more obstinate, having learned that thirty cents per hour is paid in New York for similar work.

The railroad company is very reluctant to pay on a gold basis, as its officials anticipate similar strikes with each rise in the rate of exchange.

The Treaty at Harrisburg.

Harrisburg, Pa., Jan. 28.—A resolution was reported from the federal relations committee yesterday requesting the Pennsylvania senators and congressmen to work for the ratification of the peace treaty.

An amendment was adopted by a vote of 76 to 25, requesting the Pennsylvania congressmen "to adhere to the principle laid down in the Declaration of Independence that governments derive their just powers from the consent of the governed."

Further consideration of the resolution was then postponed.

A concurrent resolution was adopted inviting President McKinley to visist Harrisburg during the present session of the legislature, at such time as the president may be pleased to appoint.

Taxation of Yale.

New Haven, Conn., Jan. 28.—A bill to tax colleges and churches in this state, allowing exemption of only $7,500, has been introduced in the legislature, and is evidently aimed at Yale College.

It is ascertained, however, that it is of private origin, and not in the nature of an appeal by this city to the legislature to nullify the decision of the supreme court in the Yale tax suit.

According to the attorneys for the city, a transfer of the contest to the legislature would have to be sanctioned by the New Haven common council.

Large Vessels for the Lakes.

Cleveland, O., Jan. 28.—The Bessemer Steamship Company has asked for bids on three vessels of the largest type—a steamer and two barges. The steamer is to be a duplicate of the Morse, the largest vessel on the great lakes, and the barges are to be of the eight thousand net ton type.

It is announced that the Flint and Pere Marquette Railway Company will call for bids in a few days for a duplicate of the big car ferry boat Pere Marquette.

The Philadelphia Nearly Ready.

San Diego, Cal., Jan. 28.—The cruiser Philadelphia is nearly coaled and it is probable that she will get away for Samoa to-day.

Failure of Belfast Bankers.

MOB AT PARIS COURT

Anti-Dreyfus Demonstration Over Hearing of Mme. Henry's Suit.

CASE ORDERED POSTPONED

Mme. Henry Wept in Court—Court Adjourned Because the Defendant Threatened to Take the Case to the Court of Cassation.

Paris, Jan. 28.—A party of Anarchists appeared at the approaches to the Palace of Justice, in which Mme. Henry's slander suit was being heard, yesterday afternoon, led by a man known by the name of Libertad, who walked with crutches and was bareheaded, despite the cold.

A band of anti-Semites arrived at the same time, and the combined crowd began to invade the Place Dauphine in the rear of the Palace of Justice.

The commissary of police ordered the square cleared, and as the police charged upon the crowd, the mob raised the old cries: "Long live the army!" and "Down with the Jews!"

A few, however, answered with the cry, "Down with the priests!"

The trial of the action brought by Mme. Henry, widow of Colonel Henry, against M. Joseph Reinach, for slandering her husband, was begun at the Seine assizes yesterday. M. Labori, counsel for M. Reinach, urged a postponement of the proceedings pending the conclusion of the inquiry of the court of cassation into the Dreyfus case.

A large number of witnesses was in court in readiness to testify. The officers who were summoned as witnesses all appeared in plain clothes. The case was called early in the afternoon, when M. Labori, on behalf of M. Reinach, addressed the court, submitting arguments in favor of postponing the trial until after the court of cassation had reached a decision in the Dreyfus inquiry. He declared that the action was merely the work of a political party driven to the last extremity, though it was ostensibly brought for the protection and vindication of the honor of a woman and her child.

At this point Mme. Henry wept. M. Labori expressed regret that his duty compelled him to allude to so painful a matter.

Continuing his argument, M. Labori protested against the subscription of money which had been raised for the purpose of enabling Mme. Henry to defray the expenses of her prosecution of M. Reinach.

The subscription, he declared, had been opened for the sake of glorifying the act of Henry, who had become a forger in order to keep an innocent man in prison.

He then demanded that the trial be postponed until the court of cassation had thrown light upon the Dreyfus affair. He declared that the criminal chamber of the court of cassation, despite the attacks which had been made upon it, had continued serenely to perform its work of justice.

In conclusion M. Labori reiterated his demand for an adjournment in the superior interest of justice.

The court, after listening to the arguments of Mme. Henry's counsel, in which he opposed an adjournment and made a violent attack upon M. Reinach, finally granted M. Labori's appeal for an adjournment in consequence of the latter's threat to appeal to the court of cassation.

London, Jan. 28.—A Paris dispatch to the Exchange Telegraph Company says that in consequence of the adjournment of the trial of the action of Mme. Henry against M. Reinach the case has collapsed.

Died as He Wished.

New York, Jan. 28.—Former Judge Henry W. Scott of this city, in speaking of former Attorney General Garland's death, recalled a conversation held in Washington with Mr. Garland in the United States supreme court two months ago.

"You have expounded many great constitutional questions in this tribunal," remarked Judge Scott. "You may yet die in harness."

"It has been over forty years since I argued my first case," said General Garland. "Nothing would please me better when my time comes to die, than to be stricken right here in this court room, in the midst of an argument. That would be the fitting climax to my career."

"Almost in the same spot where this conversation was held," said Judge Scott, "General Garland fell dead while arguing a case."

Convict Sues the State for $10,000.

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 28.—Frank Fleck of New York city filed a claim of ten thousand dollars' damages against the state yesterday for injuries received while working a machine in the industrial department of the Elmira Reformatory in 1895. Fleck was a convict in the reformatory at the time of the accident.

Burned to Death in Jail.

Port Jervis, Jan. 28.—Byron Freeman was burned to death in the village jail at Deposit Thursday. He had been locked up for intoxication and left alone in the jail.

It is supposed that he set fire to his clothing, while trying to light his pipe.

Chili-Argentina Boundary.

London, Jan. 28.—Lord Salisbury has appointed a triumvirate court to arbitrate the boundary dispute between the Argentine republic and Chili. The court will be presided over by a British supreme court judge, and will be assisted by the services of experts, a surveyor and a geographer.

Abyssinian Chief Gives In.

London, Jan. 28.—A Central News dispatch from Rome says that the Abyssinian Chief Ras Mangasha, governor of the province of Tigre, who has for some time past maintained a rebellious attitude toward King Menelek, has agreed to ask the king's pardon.

TERRIBLE STRUGGLE WITH A GHOST.

Strange Story of a Midnight Encounter at Lonely Crossroads.

Kingston, N. Y., Jan. 28.—Much excitement has been caused in Lefevre Falls, a village about fifteen miles from this city, by the alleged appearance of what many persons firmly believe is a ghost. Their belief in this strange visitor has just been strengthened by the story of John McGrath, who, the other night, had a personal encounter with the spirit and came home covered with bruises.

The man was returning from Bloomington, a small hamlet in Ulster county, at midnight, through a lonely piece of woodland, when he was stopped in the road by an apparition that stood directly in front of him.

"I could see at once," McGrath said, in telling his story, "that the face was that of old Nathan, a peddler, who hung himself to a tree at the cross roads a year ago, but as I knew that he was dead, I tried to laugh at my fears and hastened on.

"When I turned around and saw the uncanny object following me, I will confess my hair stood up straight, and I became so paralyzed with terror that I could not run. As I stood in the road trembling with fear the apparition approached and sprung at me.

"It seized me around the neck with its cold, clammy hands, and then, with its white, hideous face near my own, began to beat me unmercifully. Gaining a little courage, I fought back, but my fists, strike as hard as I would, seemed to hit nothing but air. Every blow of the ghost, however, left a mark on my body.

"I supposed I screamed, but I was so terrified I cannot remember. Anyhow the ghost, and I firmly believe my assailant was nothing else, kept on beating me until I lost consciousness. When I regained consciousness, about an hour later, I was lying in the middle of the road. I was terribly lame and sore, but managed to drag myself home."

McGrath is still in bed and nothing can make him change his story.

Old Nathan, as the peddler was called, was a well known character in the neighborhood, and was supposed to have saved a small fortune.

One morning his body was found swinging by the neck to the limb of a tree at a cross roads just outside the village. Since that time no less than a dozen persons who have been in lonely places late at night have been startled by the sight of what they declare was a ghost.

Plot to Kill the Sultan.

London, Jan. 28.—The Constantinople correspondent of the Times says:

A plot to assassinate the sultan has been denounced by a conspirator, but the police, by too precipitately arresting four of the plotters, enabled several others to escape.

Constantinople, Jan. 28.—Sultan Abdul Hamid made his annual visit to Stamboul by water to kiss the mantle of the prophet. The usual elaborate ceremonies were observed.

Throughout the week the police have been taking extraordinary precautions to secure his majesty's safety, and many arrests have been made.

Yesterday they visited all the drug stores and hermetically sealed all deposits of chlorate of potash. This was done to alleviate the sultan's fear of being attacked by explosives.

More Doukhobors at Halifax.

Halifax, Jan. 28.—The steamer Lake Superior, with the second contingent of Doukhobors, two thousand in number, going to the Canadian Northwest, arrived yesterday from Bartoum. The passengers are accompanied by Count Serge Tolstoi, son of the elder nobleman of that name. There were three deaths on the voyage. One of them was that of a child eight years old, who died from virulent smallpox. The captain of the ship reports no new cases, but the steamer is held in strict quarantine.

A stampede of workmen occurred at the quarantine station, Lawlor's island, when the news spread that the Lake Superior had smallpox on board. The Doukhobors will probably be here a month, unless the epidemic spreads.

Spanish Bank Order Revoked.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 28.—The war department's order of January 5 providing that the Spanish Bank of Havana shall collect the taxes in Cuba for the fiscal year ending June 30 next was revoked yesterday by Secretary Alger, and the bond was returned to Dr. Jover Antonio and by him accepted.

General Brooke at the same time was instructed to establish a system for the collection of taxes, introducing such machinery as in his judgment may be necessary for the purpose.

Big Copper and Zinc Firm.

Elizabeth, N. J., Jan. 28.—The Union Copper Mining Company, which was recently organized in Roselle, N. J., filed articles of incorporation yesterday with County Clerk Howard. The corporation is organized with a proposed capital of three million dollars, of which $2,500,000 is paid in.

The company will buy, sell and operate copper and zinc mines. The principal office will be in Roselle. The life of the company begins on February first.

The Nicaragua Canal.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 28.—The Nicaragua canal question was further considered yesterday by the House committee on commerce, but no action was taken and the subject went over until Tuesday.

Trade Agencies in Russia.

St. Petersburg, Jan. 28.—United States Consul General W. R. Holloway announces the establishment of trade agencies and permanent exhibitions of samples of American goods in the Baltic provinces and the southern part of Russia.

Value of a Child's Life.

It was not long ago that several New York papers worked themselves into a rage over a judicial decision that they considered outrageously peculiar to New Jersey. It was the somewhat famous decision of Justice Gummere to the effect that a parent can recover only nominal damages for the loss of a child's life through the agency of a street car or other corporation vehicle. The newspapers, as well as large number of other persons inspired through them, discussed the stand of Justice Gummere with emphatic language in opposition to it.

Now, however, a New York judge has given a decision in a similar case that is even more radically different from the popular view of such questions than Justice Gummere gave voice to. The parents of a five-year-old child, which was run over by an ice wagon, sued for $5,000 damages. Justice McAdam refused to let the case go to the jury, and granted a non-suit. He declared that "when a child is too young to appreciate and protect itself from attending dangers which beset it in thickly populated districts, the parents must have some discreet attendant in charge or trust to good fortune rather than to the law for the child's safety. This may seem hard," said the Justice, "but nevertheless it is the law as established in this State."

It will be seen that the New York justice goes even a step further than his New Jersey brother of the bench, and declares that parents have not even the right of action. In this State that redress is not denied them, but, of course, under Justice Gummere's ruling they get but little satisfaction and are likely to be compelled to pay large fees to their lawyers for prosecuting the case. The result is about the same in both cases.

A bill making the keeping of a crap game a felony received 49 affirmative to 30 negative votes in the Tennessee Legislature, but failed because the affirmative vote lacked one of being a constitutional majority. Some novel ideas were advanced during the debate. One member did not like to see white people engage in the game, but he thought it was the negro's inalienable right to "shoot craps," and he did not wish to lessen the colored brother's amusement. Another said he thought it would be just as sensible to declare progressive euchre a felony, and a third protested that under the proposed law the penitentiary accommodations would be insufficient.

A NEW PICTURE OF CHRIST.

M. Boyer d'Agen recently found in a shop in Rome a bronze medal containing a portrait of Christ which differs from all other portraits of the Savior. The medal contains in Hebrew characters the name "Jesus." It is thought by numismatists that the portrait's original is from the Apostles' time, but that the medal is of a later period.

The cent-a-word advertising department, which has been a conspicuous feature of the fifth page of The Daily Press for many years, has been changed to the eighth page, where it will be found regularly hereafter. The change of position was made necessary by the introduction of a regular two column advertisement which Edward White, the progressive drygoods man who appreciates the value of publicity as a promoter of business, has contracted for in The Daily Press.

The property owners along Amsterdam avenue in New York are opposing the laying of four street car tracks on that thoroughfare. How dare property owners thus assert themselves? Don't they know that city streets were not made for them, but for the poor railway capitalists to make a few honest dollars off from.

A company capitalized at $3 000,000 has been incorporated in the Union county clerk's office to "purchase and operate copper and zinc mines in different parts of the county." Now here is a chance for some of the deserted copper mines in this vicinity to be worked for fabulous wealth. They can be bought dirt cheap.

The Oregon Legislature feels that it has been insulted, and has appointed a committee to find and bring before the bar of the Legislature for reprimand the authors of two bills introduced, one for the protection of angleworms, and the other to create the office of musical director at the asylum for the insane.

WHAT THE SHEARS FIND

Editorial Comment From Other Papers of Interest in Plainfield.

The tramp question has aroused much discussion all over the county. There is a loud protest against opening the doors of the county jail and inviting the worthless fellows to a night's lodging. This is regarded as only encouraging idleness at the county's expense. If there is any other combination taking advantage of the situation as suggested by "A Freeholder" in this issue, that is equally reprehensible. It has this in its favor, however, that in the two months of November and December, this year, the lodging of tramps cost the county about $200 less than last year under the old system. The Freeholders ought to take hold of this question with a vigorous hand. There is no reason why the tramps could not be made useful in improving the roads of Bridgewater township, or the streets of Somerville and Raritan. The county could well afford to hire men to guard them. If they wanted to come under those conditions they could come and welcome.—Unionist Gazette.

THE HOOD REIGNS.

The American Girl Always Equal to an Emergency.

Behold the hood! The problem of the theatre hat seems to have been solved at last. The American girl is always equal to an emergency and gracefully adapts herself to every situation. The clamor against the view-obstructing Gainsboroughs and Dutch bonnets became so great that she must of necessity give heed to it.

Then the question arose. How could she go to the theatre and look pretty after she got there?

It was all very well for men to say that women must take off their hats and for the comic papers to fill their pages with funny pictures of the grotesque miseries of poor man behind one of these picture hats!

Had a man ever tried to remove one of those same objectionable head arrangements in a theatre, when each long pin disappeared as completely as though the fairies had spirited it away, and stray locks would become entangled with the hat frame or the flowers, and in consequence one's whole coiffure became irretrievably disarranged?

Then, after all this inconvenience, did any man ever have to sit through the performance of a play or opera and experience the anything but delicious sensation of knowing that one's coiffure was in disorder and yet not be able to determine the vexed question to one's satisfaction?

Well, this is only a hundredth part of what the American girl has been suffering ever since the edict was sent forth that "hats must come off in the theatre."

Being a creature of resources, she set her brains to work to evolve a way out of the difficulty, and it must be confessed that she has succeeded beyond expectations, and that the theatre girl never looked so pretty, fascinating and seductive as she does this winter.

She has adopted hoods ad infinitum—hoods for the theatre, hoods for the opera, hoods for dinners, for balls, for concerts, for sleighing and for skating. Each girl's ingenuity is taxed to the utmost to have more hoods, more fetching hoods than any of her dear friends.

Old costume books have been pored over, grandmothers' wardrobes and chests ransacked and from all this study and hunting the girls have emerged more fetching and pretty than they ever were before.

For the theatre and opera rich crimsons, cerise, blue, grays, and white are most in favor. The style and shape are at the discretion of each fair wearer. It yet remains for the American girl to ever find herself in such a tight place that she cannot find a way out of it and not reappear just as seductive as ever.

Women in Outdoor Work.

The number of women ranch owners who manage their ranches is increasing, and in California, Arizona and Florida women are going in for fruit culture, with great enthusiasm and very fair success. A number of girls are studying forestry, and horticultural colleges for women are springing up like mushrooms. Germany in particular is enthusiastic over horticulture as a profession for women.

A great number of American women of good social position cultivate flowers and fruit for the market. Violet culture, especially, seems to appeal to women; and some of the most successful violet farms in the country are managed by women whose names are in society's blue books.

Women are taking up general agriculture, as well as flower and fruit culture. A fine course in agriculture has recently been opened to women in Minneapolis, but Russia has a long lead in the matter of agriculture for women and graduates of the agriculture schools are sure of Civil positions.

Hints About Sleep.

A proper desire for sleep is only obtained by a due amount of exercise, both mental and physical, which must not be continued sufficiently long to produce prostration. It is also essential with adults that for some time before the hour for retiring the state of the circulation in the head should not have been excited by deep study, intense thought, or by tea, coffee, or other stimulants.

Too much attention cannot be paid to the proper ventilation of sleeping rooms. The sleeper who retires to rest in an apartment from which every effort has been made to exclude the outer air, rises with a dull headache and a feverish, unrefreshed sensation to go about the duties of the day.

Care should also be taken with regard to the quantity of bed-clothes indulged in, too much clothing having the effect of relaxing the body; and it is right, therefore, to have only sufficient to enable the individual to sleep, for it is better to wake with an inclination to draw the clothes round you than to feel oppressed by their weight and heat and a desire to throw them off.

Table Service for the Wealthy.

Every one knows the elegance of a modern table service. Silver baking dishes are included now in dishes for the table. All sorts of kitchen utensils find their way into the dining room, now that the chafing dish is in high favor; still a coffee mill is not a dining-room feature. They may be bought in solid silver for $175. What coffee might not be ground in a $175 coffee mill, and what pleasure might there not be in the grinding? Then if mamma in her elegant kitchen wishes to please the children she pops corn for them in a solid silver corn popper, with an ebony handle, and she cores the apples for her apple pudding with a solid silver apple corer that costs not less than $3.75. For mixing her cakes she uses the beautiful Russian lacquer bowls in many colors, but fired so many times that the colors cannot be removed by vinegar, oil, or hot liquids. The bowl will last for years, and is light and easy to handle.

A New Use for Oilcloth.

Oilcloth is the new material for papering ceilings, the term "paper" being used at present in a very elastic sense, signifying anything that can be put on walls or ceiling. The advantage of an oilcloth ceiling is readily discernable, as dust, like good actions, is sure to rise, and if one's home is illuminated by gas or lamps there is only the recourse to the unsightly chandelier protectors to keep the ceiling from getting smudged. The oilcloth can be washed frequently, and be kept, by the aid of a damp cloth, as good as new for infinite spaces of time or until one moves to a newer apartment.

The task of putting on the oilcloth requires an expert, as the joining is not the easiest thing to do. If you think so, try it. The patterns of oilcloths seem particularly well adapted for ceilings, with their scroll and line effects, which do not conflict with the patterns of the wall paper or its monochromatic effect.—New York Herald.

A Dainty Dessert.

A pretty dessert that will especially please the children is called a Russian cake. Two cakes, chocolate and sponge, are baked in flat, oblong pans. When cold they are sliced into fingers, which are dipped quickly into a thick syrup flavored with vanilla or lemon. The fingers are then built up in a fancy shape. A favorite one is to pile them up in a square, filling the square with charlotte russe. The blockhouse is then covered with the fingers, an icing being put on the top. Iced squares of sponge cake are used for chimneys. The charlotte russe filling should be made the day before and the whole structure and contents thoroughly chilled before serving.

FOR BOYS AND GIRLS.

A SPARROW'S PRACTICAL JOKE.

How He Desired a Companion to Get a Sticky Bath of Ink and Mucilage.

I think it not often recorded that birds in general are given to perpetrating practical jokes, but I chanced to witness a little episode which would seem to prove that some of the genus have a deal more fun and frolic in their composition than is commonly supposed.

It transpired one morning that, in a burst of absent-mindedness, I dipped my mucilage brush into my ink bottle, and my pen into the mucilage jar, thereby ruining the contents of both. Preparatory to having both bottles washed and refilled I poured the worthless mucilage and ink together in a small tin pan, which was sitting on my window ledge. Presently an investigating sparrow chanced along, and, mistaking the tin pan for a bath, doused head and tail into the mixture. Evidently the dip was not an enjoyable one, for the bird lost no time in getting out, stationing himself, inky and drippy, on the ledge in the sun to dry. But drying was just what he should not have done under the circumstances. Pretty soon the mucilage began to harden, and before the bird knew what was happening he was incased from tip to tail in an inky gum coat. What to do the little fellow knew not, and it was quite amusing to see his frantic but fruitless efforts to extricate himself from his predicament. After watching his attempts for some time, I at last took pity upon his helplessness and lifted him across the room and put him into a full basin of water, where he soon washed himself free of his embarrassment.

After his bath, while the little fellow sat in the window preening himself in the sun, there chanced along another sparrow, also out upon a tour of inspection, whereupon the two set up a lively chattering and chirping with many dabs in the direction of the pan.

"No. 1 is warning his friend of the danger that lies therein," I thought, and immediately thereafter was startled by seeing sparrow No. 2 dive into the pan headforemost. No sooner had this happened than No. 1, with a chirp and a chatter, flew to the other side of the street, where, from a convenient housetop, he watched his friend's struggles with the predicament that he himself had just passed through.

If that was not playing a practical joke, it was very much like it, and, at all events, bird No. 2 understood it to be one, for after I had treated him to a bath, he made after No. 1 post haste, and the last I saw of them they were fighting it out on the roof in good fashion.—Nashville Correspondent Philadelphia Times.

Monkeys Rendered of Use.

The newest service rendered of monkeys to mankind was illustrated in London. The school inspectors noted with suspicion that a great many families reported "no children," and in order to ascertain the real number of children in the district resorted to an ingenious scheme. Two monkeys were gaily dressed, put in a wagon accompanied by a brass band, and were driven through the streets of the district. Crowds of children followed the monkeys, and when the wagon was stopped in a park, the school officers distributed candies to the youngsters while they took their names and addresses. Two hundred stray boys and girls were rounded up by this method.—Golden Days.

Rosamond's Love.

Occasionally Rosamond, who is now just three years old, is naughty.

She was so the other day, and her mamma, to bring her to a proper realization of her conduct and what it might lead to, said:

"Rosamond, mamma cannot love her little girl if she is so naughty."

"Very well, mamma," answered the little maiden demurely, "then I suppose I will have to love myself."

The Way It Is in Japan.

When a young prince of Japan wishes to learn the mysteries of chirography, young maidens bring paper, others make the ink and prepare the paint-brush. The master expresses admiration by gesture and face, for no words must be spoken by him to the prince, his mouth even being bandaged that his breath may not blow upon the face of the prince. The teacher must move about in the quietest manner, and give commendation only.

To See Him Swaller Some More.

At a popular table d'hote restaurant in Boston the other evening, as a gentleman was lighting his cigar with a teaspoonful of burning brandy, there came a knock at the door, and, on it being opened, in walked two very ragged children, a boy and a girl. "Wot you want?" gruffly asked the waiter. "Please, sir," said the little girl, "we see the gent swallerin fire through th' window, and we'd like to see him swaller some more, if we ain't in no one's way."

The Speed of the Camel.

The speed of the camel when on a journey of considerable length rarely exceeds three miles an hour, and the swiftest dromedaries are rarely known to go faster than a ten-mile gait, but this can be kept up for twenty hours in the day, and for six or seven days at a time.—From Answers.

Thoughtful.

A small boy of four was riding on a rocking horse with a companion. He was seated rather uncomfortably on the horse's neck. After a reflective pause he said: "I think if one of us gets off I could ride much better."

Mainz. Beim Ausgraben im Rhein fand ein Kasteller Sandgräber 44 Goldstücke aus dem Anfang des 13. Jahrhunderts. Der Mann lieferte seinen Fund auf dem hiesigen Museum ab und erhielt dort vorläufig den Goldwerth mit 12 Mark für das Stück ausbezahlt. Die Münzen sind die gleichen, wie vor einigen Jahren in der Bregenheimer Gemarkung gefunden wurden.—Beim Jahresschluß betrug die Bevölkerungsziffer der Stadt Mainz nach den polizeilichen Feststellungen rund 81,000 Seelen.

München. Die Regierung hat die Benutzung des Fahrrades im Feuerwehrdienst unter gewissen vom Landesfeuerwehrausschuß aufgestellten Cautelen mit dem Vorbehalte genehmigt, daß die Landesfeuerwehrkasse nicht etwa übermäßig durch Unglücksfälle in Folge Benutzung des Fahrrades belastet werde. Ergebe sich das Letztere, so müßten Aenderungen in den Bedingungen der Benutzung des Fahrrades eintreten.—Da der Andrang in der öffentlichen Speisehalle im Hofbergraben so groß ist, daß der Bedarf nicht gedeckt werden kann, beabsichtigt das Komite, im Centrum der Stadt eine zweite solche Anstalt zu errichten.

Aschaffenburg. Ein braver Speffarter ist der bisherige Vorstand des Kriegervereins zu Grünmorsbach. Bei der Neuwahl ging er zwar seiner Vorstandsstelle verlustig, um aber dem Vereine auch ferner nützlich zu sein, nahm er die Stelle des Vereinsdieners an.

Nürnberg. Mit Neujahr wurden 12 Vorortgemeinden und ein Theil einer 13. in das Stadtgebiet eingemeindet. Die Einwohnerzahl beträgt nunmehr rund 280,000, während nach den Ergebnissen der Fortschreibung zuletzt 195,000 Seelen gezählt wurden. Bei der letzten Volkszählung im Jahre 1895 nahm Nürnberg die 13. Stelle unter den deutschen Städten ein, jetzt wird es an die neunte vorrücken.

Platting. In große Lebensgefahr gerieth der Gastwirth und Pferdehändler Lang. In der Nähe der Isarbrücke scheute sein Pferd und rannte direkt über die Straßenböschung in das Mühlwasser der Isar. Ein junger Mann rettete sich durch Abspringen vom Wagen, Lang und das Gefährt geriethen in das tiefe Wasser. Das Pferd ertrank, Lang rettete sich mit Hilfe seines Begleiters, der überdies noch einige zum Glück unbedeutende Verletzungen davontrug.

CRANKS' COLUMN.

Suggestions that Emanate from Pens of Bicycle Riders.

A branch of the work of the League of American Wheelmen in which every cyclist takes an interest is the erection of guide signs. If this is pushed systematically, says an observing admirer of the league, it will do as much toward strengthening the already powerful organization as any other one thing that can be thought of.

Those who have toured in a strange country will know well how to appreciate serviceable signs, showing the way and the distance. Nothing is more vexing to a tourist than to find that he has gone miles out of his way. Signboards, properly placed, make this less likely to happen. Signs to be put in position on Long Island are made of heavy sheet iron, enameled. The direction is indicated by an arrow, and after each name will be figures showing the distance.

Built in 1792, the Lancaster Pike, running out of Philadelphia, was the first hard road laid down in the United States. It is famous among riders of the wheel as one of the most favorable of the many fine routes in the vicinity of the Quaker City, and will be shown to the visiting cyclists at the National race tournament, to be held in Philadelphia early in August, on a special run. An exceptionally large party of pedalers is looked for on this trip, as the fame of the Lancaster Pike has spread throughout the land.

The early morning spin out into the suburbs is not what it is cracked up to be, unless you are trained to it. A stiff ride before breakfast is almost inevitably followed by a feeling of staleness, which will hang on throughout the day, and even a long ride immeditely after an early breakfast produces a similar effect in the cases of many riders. By beginning easy and gradually hardening oneself to it, early riding may be practiced with good instead of bad results.

A convict recently discharged from the Ohio penitentiary is reported to have invented an automatic bicycle. The weight of the rider furnishes the propelling power, and after the rider is once mounted the wheel will go itself. The inventor says that the only trouble he has as yet discovered about the machine is to stop it, the application of brakes having no effect upon it. This suggests several queries. Did he ever ride on this wonderful wheel, and, if so, how did he stop it? Did he run into a wall or a load of hay? The story sounds like a revival of the perpetual motion humbug, and is only another effort to get something from nothing.

"If the lower side of the bicycle chain sags," says the expert, "and the upper part is taut, it shows that the front sprocket and the cranks are pulling the wheel, and the latter, therefore, must run harder than the former. If the upper part of the chain sags and the lower part is taut, the reverse is the case, and shows the trouble to be in the crank bearings, which should be examined for bad cones, cups, balls or a bad adjustment. Frequently it happens that the chain used is not running even—that is, it does not run on a level. If the chain is in good working order it should be perfectly level at any point between the two sprockets."

The most remarkable bicycle school in the world is in Paris. The building was originally used for the military panoramas of the celebrated painters Detaille and De Neuville, representing the battles of Champigny and Rezonville. The lower floors have been transformed into various waiting, reading and dressing rooms, while private rooms have been provided where learners can escape the eyes of the curious while they are acquiring the art of controlling the machine. A spiral pathway extends from the main floor to a point near the apex of the roof, divided into two paths. The ascent is very gradual, about two and a half in 100, the total height being 36 feet. The length of the course is over 1,000 yards. A high screen accompanies the track on each side, and it has been painted so as to produce the illusion of rural scenery for the journey. Spacious accommodation for spectators is also provided.

BONNER'S QUEER ADVERTISING.

Whole Pages of the Herald and Tribune Used to Exploit the Ledger.

The conversation drifted to advertising matters, and I asked Mr. Bonner to tell me the secret of his success in advertising, writes Frank G. Carpenter in the Chicago Times-Herald.

"I can hardly remember," said the founder of the New York Ledger; "when I was not studying the advantages of different advertising features. When I was a boy the New York Herald was very much criticised by the other newspapers of the country. I saw that the more the Herald was talked about the more the people bought it, and when I took the Ledger I saw that I must get the paper talked about. I must not only have a good paper, but the people must know it. I would not borrow, but I spent all my surplus in advertising. One time I spent $2,000 for a single advertisement in the New York Herald; at another I offered the Tribune $3,000 for one insertion in the daily, weekly and triweekly. I paid during one week $27,000 for advertising, and in one year $150,000. These sums in those days were as big as ten times the same amounts now, and many of my friends thought I was going crazy. At one time I paid $25,000 to the papers for publishing installments of a certain story which ended with the words, 'continued next week in the New York Ledger.' I did this once in the Herald, publishing two instalments, so that the readers thought they were going to get the whole story in the Herald, and then at the close of the second installment stated that they must look for its continuation in the Ledger. All of this rapidly increased my circulation.

"One of the secrets of good advertising is to have your advertisements unlike those of any other man. If all advertisements in a paper are displayed, this is equal to no display. My advertisements were always original, they attracted attention, and the publishers of the papers who were averse to a display objected to them. Once the elder Bennett sent word that I must use fewer capitals. I answered that I would not use any, and repeated one sentence announcing a new story over and over again to the extent of several columns without a break. The letters were continued out to the edge of the column line without regard to the finishing of the words, and the next day I had several columns of solid type in the Herald. The advertisement was about the most striking the Herald had ever had, and after that Mr. Bennett told me that I could do as I pleased. At one time the Tribune refused to give me a page in the weekly. Mr. Bennett heard of this and sent word that the Herald would always give me all the space I wanted. I replied that I would take the whole paper on the next Saturday. Mr. Bennett said all right, and he published an additional sheet, giving me a page opposite each page of reading matter. I could give you fifty other instances of advertisements which attracted attention, but this is enough. One of the great secrets of success, I believe, is to first have a good thing and then to advertise it so that the people cannot help knowing that you have it."

PATTI AT FIFTY-SIX

A WONDERFUL WOMAN'S FOUNTAIN OF PERPETUAL YOUTH.

Still Fresh and Attractive With a Clear and Sound Voice—Her Latest Love—How Nicolini Won His Way—The First Match With DeCaux.

That wonderful woman, Adelina Patti must have found the long-sought fountain of youth. At 56 she is still fresh and attractive, her voice is clear and sound. The story runs that she met Baron Cedarstrom, her third love, at Pau last year where, 'tis she met Jocelyn Persse, an Irishman, to whom she was reported at one time to be engaged. The Baron is described as about 35 years old, of commanding figure, and fine appearance. Of course, he has a musical education, and he possesses a fine baritone voice. He has a small fortune, but Patti has a far bigger one. He was entertained by Patti at her Welsh castle, Craig-y-Nos, last summer.

Patti's last husband, Ernesto Nicolini died in January, 1898. A year or two after her debut, in 1859, she was engaged to the late Max Strakosch, but this affair did not last long.

The diva, then riding on the top crest of success, seems to have passed the next few years fancy free. About 1863 or 1867 she met the Marquis de Caux, of an honored French family. As they thought well of each other, a marriage was arranged by the Empress Eugenie. The ceremony took place in the summer of 1868, and they began married life most happily. In this fortunate state they lived for several years, according to the observation of others, without a cloud upon the domestic horizon.

Then Signor Nicolini appeared upon the scene. They first met in 1871. The wooing and winning of the diva by Nicolini forms the greatest romantic episode of her life, and is considered by many the most incomprehensible. Words can hardly express the aversion in which Patti held the singer. Nicolini, according to all accounts, seems to have been of rather ordinary musical ability. He appeared to imitate in every possible way the great Mario, though in voice he fell far short of his ideal. This rather servile copying in dress, manner and so on, may have had much to do with Patti's feelings. For, when young, she had heard Mario and Grisi, and that Nicolini should attempt to duplicate Mario in minor details may have been the original cause of her aversion. Nicolini, however, who had a wife and children, followed Patti all over Europe. When he knew that she was to appear in a certain city he would secure an engagement for that city, and if possible, in the same theatre. So successful was Nicolini that after a while she found him singing Romeo to her Juliet in Gounod's opera. She could hardly bear him, and again and again would have refused to sing with him, except for business reasons. Such fervent lovemaking as came out in the scene, though one-sided, had not been witnessed before on the stage by that generation, at least.

And it all met the hearty approval of the Marquis. Nicolini was received at the home of the Marquis and Marquise as a guest. Signora Nicolini, however, did not like the turn of affairs, and though they seemed to be a devoted couple, many were the outbreaks and many the times when she reproached her huspand with being a "veritable Don Juan." When Nicolini had effected a reconciliation with his wife, he usually celebrated. Nicolini even took the Marquis into his confidence. He went to Patti's husband one day, and asked how to get rid of a young woman whom he knew in St. Petersburg, and who had followed him in his tour. This came to Patti's ears, and she contemplated informing Nicolini's wife. She did not carry this into effect, however, and soon after Nicolini found a way to send the girl back.

ADELINA PATTI.

About this time or a little after, Nicolini seemed to be not so disagreeable to Patti. Anonymous stories and bits of information were sent to the Marquis, to which he paid no heed for a long time. Finally, however, though he would not appear to make use of the points lavished upon him, a coolness developed between himself and his frequent guest, which increased until he no longer invited Nicolin to his house.

One day in Moscow there fell into the hands of the Marquis a letter of Nicolini's, which was addressed to Patti's chambermaid. The Marquis would not open the letter, though he could not fail to guess pretty accurately its contents. He demanded that the opera of "Romeo and Juliet" be stricken from the list to be presented in Moscow. The director assented, but owing probably to the representations of the interested artists, he allowed their names to be announced in "Traviata." Enraged at this, the Marquis would not allow his wife to appear at all, but was appeased on the promise that if she would only sing, Nicolini should not appear. This promise, however, was broken.

A few weeks later the Marquis and Marquise separated. But it was a long time before a divorce could be obtained. Finally when the French divorce laws were passed in 1884 they were legally put asunder. In the meantime the Nicolinis were also divorced. All being ready, the diva married Nicolini in June, 1886. As they couldn't marry in their own church (the Catholic) without special dispensation, and as that special dispensation could not be had, they were united in a little Protestant church, near Patti's Welsh castle.

For a long time before the marriage Patti suffered in the estimation of many people, but in the end, she regained all her prestige and the affair never has been held up against her. In fact, all agreed to forget it, and it was recalled only by the death of Nicolini.

This rearrangement of the trio proved as happy as the original marriage of Patti and the Marquis was for a time. Certainly Nicolini played the lover-like husband to perfection. He took the greatest care of his wife, watched over her voice, would not let her exert herself unduly, and even prepared the tempting but harmless little dishes after the theatre.

And when Nicolini fell ill of cancer it was the incomparable Patti who watched over him carefully and faithfully, giving up her engagements that she might be by his bedside.

A SINGLE TRACK RAILWAY.

It Is Ten Miles Long and Runs Successfully in Ireland.

Little is heard at present about the "bicycle railway" in this country, and it may not be generally known that a single rail road is in practical operation in Ireland.

The Listowel and Ballybunion Railway sounds like the invention of some mad humorist; but such a place as Ballybunion really exists.

It is a very popular seaside resort in the southwest of Ireland. The distance between this point and the other terminus at Listowel is ten miles, and there is one intermediate station—that of Lisselton. The system on which this railway is worked is called the Lartigue single rail elevated railway and was the invention of a French engineer.

BICYCLE RAILWAY.

This single rail line, it should be explained at once, is not a single track railway, but actually has only one rail for trains to run on. This rail is supported on iron trestle work at the height of three feet three inches from the ground, and the locomotive and carriages are actually balanced on it.

There is nothing in Europe to compare with the extraordinary trestle bridges which carry American railways over the deep gullies and precipitous creeks found in many parts of the United States. They are of rough timber construction, sometimes rising to a height of 150 feet, and form a most complicated maze of timbers.

Mary Leiter's New Home.

Viceroy and Lady Curzon, she who was Mary Leiter of Chicago, have started for their new home in India. They will spend next summer in Simla, a Himalayan town on the top of a hill, where monkeys run wild and the slopes are covered with deodars and rhododendrons. It is the refuge spot from the heat of Calcutta, to which the entire English government moves at the end of spring, and where it stays until the beginning of the fall—safe from scorching winds and plagues and nights of killing temperature. It has a new palace for the viceroy and £500,000 has been spent in recent years by the foreign office in London to put up buildings for the use of the departments and officials in transacting six months of Indian business from the region of the Punjab.

The distance from Calcutta to Simla is 1,174 miles. It is a most trying journey, although it passes through interesting country. Cawnpore, Lucknow and Delhi, towns memorable because of the mutiny, all of which are situated so low that the summer heat is almost unendurable.

The vice regal palace is beautiful, and, situated at a great height, is indeed a "castle in the air." Simla's fascination is growing, and it is rapidly becoming one of the very fixed institutions of England's work in the great black empire.

"James" shouted the conductor, as the trolleycar stopped at the street bearing that name. A man signalled him, the car stopped, and the man alighted. A half-minut later the car neared another cross-street. "William," announced the conductor. Another man got out. The Irishman's eyes grew visibly larger. "Alexander," shouted the conductor. The third man left the car. When it had started on the Irishman arose and approached the conductor. "Oi want to git out at Avnoo B," he said. "Me forrsht name is Michael."—Youth's Companion.

THE COURAGE OF A COWBOY.

Swings Himself and Horse Across a Chasm By a Rope.

"Speaking of the dare-devil characteristics of Western cowboys," said an old plainsman, "I recall an adventure that might have proved fatal to myself and a man named Henry, but for the great presence of mind displayed in an emergency by my cool-headed companion. The incident happened in Montana three years ago last spring. We were travelling along a narrow trail on the border of the Grande Ronde River, when we suddenly came to a landslide that was about twenty-five feet across and left no trail in the smooth, precipitous rock. The trail was so narrow that our horses could not turn back, and, realizing that it would be folly to expect the animals to jump the chasm, it looked as though we were trapped. But directly above the twenty-five foot break in the trail there was a huge rock which was split in the centre. Henry saw the crack in the rock, and having a strong riata seventy feet long on his saddle he coiled it up, steadied himself in his saddle, swung the rope over his head and then hurled it high in the air. Being an expert in the use of the riata, it went true to the mark, and was soon firmly fixed in the crevice of the rock.

"While I was wondering what he was going to do with the rope, he took in the slack and wound it around the horn of his saddle, which was very strong and supplied with double cinches. Then he urged his horse to the edge of the precipice.

"The faithful beast stood firm. He would not step over, but Henry again drew up the slack and pulled with all his might. Inch by inch he drew the straining horse forward till his feet slipped and he swung over the yawning chasm. For a moment, I held my breath and closed my eyes, expecting to hear the slender rope snap and its burden disappear into the raging water below.

"When I did open my eyes he had swung across the gap, and, dismounting, he backed up the trail, and tugged at the reins to aid the horse in gaining his feet. He pulled hard and the animal lunged up into the trail, with the chasm far behind.

"Safe on the other side, Henry urged me to make the perilous trip in the same way as he had done. For some time I couldn't muster up the necessary courage, but at last, when I realized that there was no other way of continuing the journey, I consented to swing myself across the chasm. After landing on the other side Henry returned for my horse, and having swung the beast safely across the gap, we rode away and left the rope dangling for the use of the next wayfarer who chanced to come that way."—Chicago Inter Ocean.

Lunacy Developed in an Instant.

"Some years ago," said a lawyer, "I defended a fellow for murder in a little Southern town, and the worst witness we had against us was an old German who was a stackbuilder by trade. A stack, by the way, is merely another name for a big chimney. The old fellow was perfectly honest, and gave his evidence in such a clear, straightforward manner that I felt my client was doomed unless I could think of some way to break him down. While I was cudgelling my brains a friend whispered to me to ask him how high he could build a stack. 'What do you mean?' I asked in surprise. 'Never mind,' said my friend. 'Just slip in that question and see.' So at the tail end of the cross-examination I paused, as if struck by an afterthought, and said: 'You are a stackbuilder, I believe?' 'Yes, sir,' replied the witness. 'Well, sir,' I continued, 'about how high can you build——' I never got any further. A swift, inscrutable change flashed over the German's face, and he rose excitedly from his chair. 'As high as der sky!' he roared. 'So high dose angels come around it like birds!' In five seconds he was raving.

Pine Timber Waste.

An abundance of the finest cork pine that grew in Michigan was lumbered from part of Lapeer County, in those interesting old pioneer days when the shanty boys were numerous and hard times never known. Already nearly a score of years have intervened since the passing of the pine; to-day there still remains in the wake of the stately forests in many sections, acres of stumps, those unmistakable and stubborn evidences of the harvests that is past. In those days of abundance of timbered wealth the waste of the woodsmen was by no means an insignificant item, as subsequent years attest. Many farm building, fences, etc., have been erected from this second crop, which has proven by no means an unremunerative one. In more recent years the yards of the few saw mills that still remain are principally supplied with hardwood timber, and the time is near at hand when even the remnants from the pine cullings will not be in evidence.—Detroit Journal.

He's a Teetotaler.

He tried everything he could hear of, winding up at a Keeley institute, but the drink habit could not be eradicated. One day he said he would try an original experiment on himself. He would take a large bottle with him for a day, and whenever he wanted a drink would pour it into the bottle instead of into his gullet. He denied himself nothing, but went the same old rounds, a glass of rye here, a glass of Bourbon there, beer yonder, gin somewhere else, cocktails everywhere. When the day was done the bottle contained a mess that looked so unpalatable and emitted so foul an odor the man got frightened and swore off for life.—New York Press.

CYCLING COMMENT.

The Columbia agency of 405 Park avenue will be opened January 30th where they will take orders, store and repair wheels. Stop and examine the new models.

The bicycle show at the Madison Square Garden, New York, this week is attracting much attention from cyclists all over this section. F. L. C. Martin, of the F. L. C. Martin Cycle Company, is in attendance at the show every day and can be found at the Cleveland. W. H. Rogers, the North avenue bicycle dealer, is a frequent visitor. He makes the Spalding booth his headquarters while there. George A. Rockfellow has visited the Columbia exhibit. James A. Stafford, of A. M. Griffin's, has also been to see the Wolfe-American line of wheels.

A BIRTHDAY DANCE.

A charming dance was given at "Sacmore," the spacious home of Mr. and Mrs. S. A. Cruikshank on Belvidere avenue, last evening, in honor of their daughter, Miss Leila Moore Cruikshank, and a number of her friends from the Castle School, Tarrytown. It was the occasion of Miss Cruikshank's birthday.

Mrs. and Miss Cruikshank were assisted in receiving by Miss Alexander, of Atlanta, Ga., and Miss Price, of Texas. There were sixty guests present, including the schoolmates of Miss Cruikshank from the Castle and friends from Plainfield and New York. The parlors were handsomely decorated with American Beauty roses and smilax. An elaborate supper was served late in the evening under the direction of Gustave Dahn, of the Waldorf-Astoria.

OUTCOME OF FAMILY FEUD.

High Board Fence Built on Vine Street This Morning.

A board fence, eighteen feet high, now extends the entire length of the boundary line between the two houses, Nos. 23 and 25 on Vine street. The fence is the final result of a neighborhood quarrel that sprang up last August between the wives of C. W. Krausse, of 23 Vine street, and William C. Campbell, of 25 Vine street.

Krausse declared his intention of building a high board fence to entirely separate the families. The posts were placed in position. Then the Campbells moved to Connecticut.

Mrs. Louisa Rieck, of 27 Vine street, is the owner of the house occupied by Campbell. She was very indignant at Krausse for driving away her tenant as she claimed. Mrs. Rieck has just succeeded in getting another tenant to take the house.

New Drug Store.

Story of a Slave.

To be bound hand and foot for years by the chains of disease is the worst form of slavery. George D. Williams, of Manchester, Mich., tells how such a slave was made free. He says: "My wife has been so helpless for five years that she could not turn over in bed alone. After using two bottles of Electric Bitters, she is wonderfully improved and able to do her own work." This supreme remedy for female diseases quickly cures nervousness, sleeplessness, melancholy, headache, backache, fainting and dizzy spells. This miracle working medicine is a godsend to weak, sickly, run down people. Every bottle guaranteed. Only 50 cents. Sold by L. W. Randolph, Druggist.

The boys got in up to their knees, but Dora was further out than they, and sank until only her head was above the water. RAY CARROLL WON THE INDOOR CONTEST.

Completed at Y. M. C. A. Gymnasium Saturday Night.

ONLY SEVEN FINISHED.

CARROLL FINISHED FIRST IN MOST OF THE EVENTS.

He Also Broke a Number of Records—The Running High Jump and Putting the Shot Held Saturday Night—Carroll and Morgan Winners—Green's Great Work in Potato Race.

The indoor athletic contest among the members of the local Y. M. C. A., was concluded Saturday evening when the last two events were contested in the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium. Raymond M. Carroll won the championship by a big margain. Berry Egan and Eric Moraller, the two of the contestants who were pushing him the closest, dropped out and did not complete the ten events. William Townsend came in for second place and a silver medal, Carroll winning the gold one offered.

The two events regularly scheduled for Saturday evening were the running high jump and putting the shot. Out of the twelve local athletes who originally started, only seven appeared to complete the events. A small but enthusiastic audience was present in the visitors' gallery.

In the running high jump Carroll came out ahead. Before he gave up he cleared the bar at 5 feet, 2 inches, and could have undoubtedly gone higher. William Morgan was second with 4 feet, 8 inches; William Townsend third with 4 feet, 4 inches. J. H. Green, Jr., Walter Dreier, Walter Sampson and Herbert Brokaw were also present and took part.

In putting the shot the first honors went to William Morgan, whose put was 32 feet, 9 inches. Carroll was second with 32 feet, 6½ inches. Townsend finished third with 31 feet, 3 inches.

Ray Carroll had two events to make up, three standing broad jumps and the running high kick, and won first honors in each. A. B. Meredith was high man in the three broad jumps with a jump of 25 feet, 9 inches. Carroll made 26 feet, 10 inches. In the high kick, the apparatus was not high enough to allow Carroll to do his best and a temporary arrangement had to be substituted. His kick was 8 feet, 3 inches, 2 inches better than the association record made last year by F. O. Bristol. Bristol also held the record in the three broad jumps, 29 feet 6 inches.

Sampson and Green made up the potato race and the fence vault. Great things were expected of Green in the potato race and he did very well. He injured his ankle in the fence vault or else he would have made an even better showing. He ran the required distance in 1 minute, 47 2-5 seconds, which was only a second and a fifth slower than the local association record and a second and a two-fifth slower than the State record.

SOCIETY WOMEN WERE OUT.

Mrs. George A. Strong Gave a Delightful Tea Saturday Afternoon.

A delightful tea was given Saturday afternoon by Mrs. George A. Strong, of Central avenue, and was largely attended by Plainfield society folks. The ladies receiving with Mrs. Strong were Mrs. E. B. Clark, Mrs. W. R. Richards and Mrs. Isaac Miller. The ladies at the table in the dining room were Mrs. Harmon and Mrs. Huntington, while the young ladies assisting were the Misses Patterson, VanBoskerck, Halloway, Clark, Miller, Moore, Case and Strong.

The beautiful home was charmingly decorated for the event and the use of chice roses and greens produced and admiring effect. The affair was marked by the entire absence of formality and the hospitality of the hostess and her assistants was a noticeable feature throughout.

Helping the Baptist Ministers

The collection for the aid of the Baptist ministers' home was taken up yesterday morning in the Park Avenue Baptist church. Rev. Dr. Pogson, who held evangelistic services there early in the month, is connected with that home, and it was upon condition that the church would take up an extra collection this year for the home that he gave his services.

Borough's Fine Record

There is hardly enough court business in the borough these days to pay for maintaining a court. The condition of the borough seems to be up to the standard.

MUSICALE TO BE GIVEN FOR BENEFIT OF THE CHILDREN'S HOME.

The Event Will Take Place at the Residence of Charles W. McCutchen Next Monday Evening—Fine Artists to Play.

The Children's Home, one of Plainfield's best institutions, is to be benefitted by a musical entertainment given in its behalf at the residence of Charles W. McCutchen on the evening of February 6th.

The committee of arrangements consists of Mrs. Martin I. Cooley, Mrs. C. W. McCutchen, Miss Elizabeth VanBoskerck, Mrs. Peck, Mrs. Marion S. Ackerman and Miss Lloyd. They have succeeded in securing the services of the following artists: Mrs. Edith Develin, of New York, and Mrs. Levia Schrickher, and duets by Mrs. Schrickher and her daughter, Mrs. Winkelman, Chas. Mali, 'cello. The vocal part of the entertainment will be given by Miss Alice Gregory, of New York, soprano; N. H. Swayne, president of the University Glee Club, of New York, bass, and Heinrich Meyn whose recitals at Carnegie Lyceum, in connection with Townsend H. Fellows, have been so enjoyed by lovers of music this winter. Weber will send from New York one of his best pianos, without charge for the occasion.

The cast is unusually talented, and the programme selected for the occasion promises a variety of music of a very high order of excellence.

The patronesses will consist of many of Plainfield's society ladies, and neither labor nor expense will be spared to make the affair a success.

Tickets can be secured of either of the members of the committee, or of the board of governors of the Children's Home, or of the patronesses.

ITALIAN WAS CORNERED AND HE SHOT OPPONENT.

WESTFIELD HACKMAN THE VICTIM.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Westfield, January 30.—Timothy McCarty, a hackman, was shot through the shoulder last night by an Italian who became involved in a fight with McCarty, John Tobin and Patrick Conners in the tunnel under the Central Railroad tracks at the Westfield station. About 11 o'clock McCarty and his friends were passing through the tunnel when they were accosted by an Italian, whom they did not know and who asked for a light from a cigarette that Tobin was smoking.

Tobin alleges that the Italian grabbed the cigarette and then the two men became involved in a fight. Tobin was getting the worst of the encounter when he called for help. McCarty ran to assist him and the Italian, it is alleged, pulled a revolver and shot McCarty in the shoulder.

FRIGHTENED AT A TROLLEY CAR.

C. F. Stout Had Thrilling Experience on West Front Street Yesterday Morning—Damage Slight.

One of the horses used by Laing & Stout, the Sunday newspaper dealers, became frightened at a passing trolley car yesterday morning, threw the junior member of the firm out on the sidewalk and caused all sorts of trouble before his excitement was subdued. Chauncey F. Stout was delivering papers on West Front street, beyond Grant avenue when the accident occurred.

A car came down Rocap's hill at full speed. The horse, which was from Robert's stable, is only afraid when standing. Stout was just getting out of the runabout when the horse made a dash at the sidewalk, cramped the wheel and threw Stout heavily on the sidewalk. Stout jumped up and, while the horse was rearing and plunging, seized him by the bridle. He finally threw the animal and sat on his head until some passersby came to his rescue. The horse was then unharnessed.

The harness was broken in several places and one shaft was snapped. Both Stout and the horse escaped serious injury. When the horse was allowed to get up, he began to plunge again and pulled the bridle off. Stout grabbed him by mane and nose and hung fast until a strap could be put about the animal's neck.

The commander assented and the body reached Plainfield yesterday.

MAYOR ON WAR PATH.

MR. WILSON HAS A SPIRITED TALK WITH GUSTAV SUTTERLIN.

It is Alleged that Illegal Practices Were Going on About Bottling Works—Sutterlin Promised to Do Better.

Mayor Wilson, of the borough, has been on the war path and has again succeeded in bringing to terms a violator of the laws. This time it was Gustav Sutterlin, the beer bottler on Greenbrook road. His Honor has been securing evidence for sometime past that there has been illegal practices going on at this place, that crowds were assembling at the establishment and were able to buy liquors on the premises and drink it there.

Yesterday morning at 10:30 o'clock Mr. Sutterlin, at the request of Mayor Wilson, appeared at the latter's home and with uplifted hand gave a promise that he would not violate the law any more. His Honor gave the offender of the law a good talking to and informed him that if the practice continued he would make his business to see that the full penalty of the law was exercised on him. Mr. Sutterlin solemnly promised to do the right thing in the future

THREATS OF A CRUSADE MADE ELIZABETH DRY.

SALOON MEN ACTED CAUTIOUSLY.

A Few of Those on the Inside Were Able to Wet Their Whistles by Giving the Password.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Elizabeth, Jan. 30—Elizabeth was a dry town yesterday to strangers. The threatened crusade of the Anti-Saloon League and the churches against Sunday selling had the effect of alarming the saloon keepers, and the Liquor Dealers' Union sent out a warning Saturday night to its members to admit no persons to their places on Sunday unless they were regular patrons.

As a consequence, pickets were on the watch at the various saloons to detect the approach of "spotters" who, it was expected, would be sent out by the crusaders to catch violators of the law. Special passwords given out Saturday night were necessary in order to get in many of the places, even though the applicant was known.

The crusaders who are agitating the closing of saloons on Sunday will hold a meeting this week, at which reports will be made of the dealers who were caught doing business yesterday and efforts made to have them indicted.

The saloon keepers have themselves largely to blame for the crusade against them by the law and order element, as the way in which they openly defied the law has been most glaring and offensive to the community during the last six months.

A RUNNING HORSE.

The Steed Does a Shirt Dance for the Benefit of Churchgoers.

Yesterday forenoon on West Front street, opposite Randolph's drug store, a horse and wagon owned by Philip J. R. VanWyck, of Stelle avenue, figured prominently in an exciting accident. The rig was in charge of the coachman, Mr. Stewart, and the horse, a fractious one, did some high kicking. While the hind legs were in the air they descended astride the shafts and then there was trouble. The horse toppled over and at the same time kept on kicking.

Presently a large crowd gathered and Mr. Stewart had plenty of help in straightening out the difficulty. The horse was not injured, neither was the wagon damaged. After the animal was placed on his feet Mr. Stewart took him home and secured another horse before he started for church to bring Mr. VanWyck and family home. It is said that the horse is celebrated for his kicking propensities.

FORTY MEN IN CHASE.

EXCITING BURGLAR ALARM PREVAILED AT SOMERVILLE.

Two Men Attempt to Rob a Grocery Store, and Wrathy Citizens Become Bent on Annihilating Them With Clubs.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Somerville, Jan. 30—A posse of forty citizens, headed by two policemen, engaged in an exciting burglar chase at midnight. Simon Apgar, a trainman on the Jersey Central Railroad, discovered two thieves at work shortly before midnight at Losey & Maxwell's wholesale grocery store, near the Central Railroad station, one block from the Swift beef house, where Policeman Crow was shot.

Apgar informed Policeman Henderson. The alarm was quickly given, and a posse, armed with shotguns, revolvers and clubs, anxious to avenge the shooting of Crow, followed the policeman. An attempt was made to surround the building on all sides, but in the excitement a portion of the posse went wild and came near shooting some of their number who were approaching from an opposite direction.

As the left flank of the posse approached the building two men darted from a dark doorway, ran toward the railroad and escaped. They had failed to gain an entrance.

Manning L. Crow, assistant Chief of Police, who was shot at the Swift beef house by robbers last week, is at his home in a critical condition. His condition last night was more serious than at any time since the shooting. His right lung, in which the bullet lodged, has ceased to perform its functions, and he now has to breathe by artificial means. His physicians think there is no chance of his recovery.

WANT TO REPEAL THE LAW THAT MULCTS THEM.

AGAINST THE COUNTY BOULEVARD.

Westfield Property Owners Urge Union County Legislative Representatives by Petition.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Cranford, Jan. 30.—Two petitions are being circulated among property owners along Westfield avenue, one to the Board of Freeholders to go before the Legislature and secure to the property owners the right of trial by jury in condemnation proceedings. The other petition is addressed to Senator Joseph Cross and Assemblymen George A. Squire, Roger F. Murray and Robert G. Houston, praying to have the law repealed under which the commission condemned the property along Westfield avenue, and try and have enacted a law giving to property holders the right of trial by jury in all condemnation proceedings and giving them the right of appeal from the awards made by the commissioners.

Each petition contains a copy of a supplementary bill drafted by Judge P. H. Gilhooly, which the property owners wish to have enacted. So far not one property holder along the avenue in question has hesitated to sign one or the other petition.

ARMY NURSE RELATES HARDSHIPS OF WAR.

Dr. Main Described His Experiences in Cuba.

HE WAS AT SAN JUAN HILL.

OFFERED HIS SERVICES WHEN THE FIRST CALL CAME.

Though a Non-Combatant, He Was in Close Proximity to the Thickest of the Fighting Between the Americans and the Spaniards—Risked His Life to Carry Water to the Soldiers in the Trenches.

Daniel C. Main, son of Rev. A. E. Main, pastor of the Seventh Day Baptist church, spent seven months last summer in Cuba in the service of the United States Government as a member of the Hospital Corps. He related some of his experiences last night at a men's meeting in his father's church. His story of the short war between Spain and this country was an interesting one, told as it was by one who had been in the very midst of the struggle, although not a combatant himself.

Mr. Main said that his enlistment in his country's service was not the result of any sudden burst of patriotism. As far back as 1895, he said, members of the Cuban Junta in New York went through the hospitals there enlisting the sympathies of the nurses in their cause. Mr. Main said that he would have enlisted then for Cuba but that something prevented him and held him back until the opportunity had passed.

But as soon as the Maine was sunk in Havana harbor, and the call for volunteers was sent out by President McKinley, he hastened to Philadelphia and with many young men, and, older ones, too, whom he knew, enlisted. He was sworn in April 27th, and May 3d was in Tampa, Fla. The next morning the men were assigned to the different companies and he and most of his friends widely separated. The next morning after his arrival he was transferred to the artilley, where he had less work to do, but poor food.

It was not until June 26th that he received his orders to sail for Cuba and Mr. Main took some time to tell incidents connected with that short voyage from Tampa to the Cuban island. Mr. Main was at the battle of San Juan Hill, in his capacity as nurse, and worked hard, with the doctors and other nurses, to relieve what suffering they could among the men.

Some of the stories of bravery and suffering were very pathetic, and showed with what loyalty every man who went to war entered into the spirit of it. Mr. Main did not only care for the suffering in the hospital tents, but at this famous battle ran out with a number of canteens of water, up the side of the hill, to the men lying in the trenches, who were almost dying from thirst.

Dr. M. S. Simpson happened to be in the audience, and after Mr. Main had finished, he was invited to make a few remarks regarding his experience on the Badger. The Doctor had been to Cuba long before the war broke out, so the country Mr. Main described was old and familiar to him he said. Dr. Simpson spoke words of praise for the New Jersey boys who were in Cuba or on the war vessels in the harbors, and also spoke highly of the bravery of the Spanish soldiers and sailors.

The total number of points scored by each contestant who completed the ten events were as follows: Raymond Carroll, 720½; William Townsend, 592; William Morgan, 495; J. H. Green, Jr., 422; Herbert Brokaw, 390; Walter Sampson, 317; Walter Dreier, 288.

Street Car Jumped the Track.

Last evening as Car No. 12, of the main line of the Plainfield Street Railway Company, was passing along on Watchung avenue, near Fourth street, the wheels made a slip and jumped the track. The car was well-filled with passengers and all received a severe shaking up. However, no one was injured. It required about a half hour to get the car back on the track, and several other cars were used to accomplish the feat.

Singers Increasing the Plant.

State Officers to be Here.

The thirty-first anniversary of Howell Division, Sons of Temperance, will be held tonight. State officers will be present, and a short programme will rennered.

LET US ARM YOU!

It's quite necessary, because while Uncle Sam is settling scores with the Spaniards you're bound to have a little brush at home at the same time, and there's nothing like being ready for emergencies. Until you can sign a perpetual truce with sun, wind and storm, your house and other buildings will need to be fortified with paint, and ours are like a 20-inch chilled steel armor.

PAYMENT OF CUBANS

SOLDIERS REFUSE TO WORK

Proposition for Our Government to Advance Funds on Security of Customs—Great Exitement Prevails in the Island—Americans Enforcing Obedience.

Havana, Jan. 30.—Senor Federico Mora, the civil governor of Havana, Saturday declared that the question of the payment of the Cuban army was of much greater importance than the Washington government seems to realize.

He said that if the Cubans were to collect the customs of the island, which are their property, their first action would be to meet Cuba's sacred obligations to the army by the payment in full of the soldiers. But the customs administration being in the hands of the Americans, the Cubans make a simple business proposition to tthe United States government that it shall advance money to pay the troops, holding the customs as security.

If the Americans were not present, Senor Mora further said, Cuba could easily obtain the necessary loan. The distribution of this money to the army is essential to permit the country to proceed with the work of agriculture, which must form the foundation of its reconstruction. The army contains many men who consider that Cuba is in a position to demand the full payment of the army by the United States, and assert that other action on the part of the American government would be worse tyranny than was exercised under Spanish sovereignty.

Senor Mora considers the underestimation of the importance of this matter unfortunate, and his views are held by a majority of the Cubans. The heat of the discussion is daily increasing, and the newspapers of the island are full of arguments in favor of the payment of the army.

General Snyder reports that five or six hundred members of the Cuban army are encamped near Sancti Spiritus, loafing about and pilfering and begging food. General Snyder sent word to them that if they would come to Sancti Spiritus and help the Americans to clean the town they would receive pay and rations, but the offer was refused, the Cubans replying that they were soldiers, not scavengers.

A prominent Spaniard, long a resident of Cuba, and all of whose interests are here, declares that if the Americans to-morrow demanded the disarmament of the Cuban army without pay, a storm of passionate protests would follow, but the army would obey, possibly a few of them becoming bandits and taking to the hills. He also says that the most salutary steps taken by the Americans since their arrival in the island have been those of enforcing obedience to and respect for their authority. A policy of too great consideration in the American relations with the Cubans produces the impression that the Americans fear them.

The recent strikes in the country on plantations and railways are said to be due to the fact that the Havana police and other Cuban servants of the government are paid too much. This breeds discontent among the laborers, who, consequently, demand more than the farmers can afford to pay.

Carnegie Offers to Give $100,000.

Harrisburg, Pa., Jan. 30.—Through the liberality of Andrew Carnegie, the State College is likely to have a splendid library building.

Mr. Carnegie offers to donate one hundred thousand dollars for the edifice, provided the state will appropriate ten thousand dollars annually for the maintenance of the library and museum to be connected with it.

There is now a library of more than fourteen thousand volumes in the college. The college trustees, at their annual meeting here Thursday night, appointed a committee to present a memorial to the legislature setting forth Mr. Carnegie's offer and describing the necessity for such a building. An act has been drafted for the acceptance of the offer, and it will be introduced some time this week in the senate.

The State College trustees have been informed that President McKinley will attend the commencement exercises next June provided more important matters do not interfere.

Deutsche Bank's Big Purchase.

Berlin, Jan. 30.—The Deutsche Bank has purchased 75,000,000 marks of imperial consols from the German government and 125,000,000 marks of Prussian consols from the Prussion government, each bearing three per cent. interest.

The government's sales of the consols will obviate the necessity of raising further loans during the present year. The consols purchased by the Deutsche Bank will shortly be issued at prices approved by the Imperial and Prussian finance ministers.

Passed Immense Icebergs.

St. Johns, N. F., January 30.—The British steamer Ulunda reports immense icebergs two hundred miles to the southeast of St. Johns, directly in the track of Atlantic shipping, and forming a serious danger to passing steamers.

Reports from along the coast indicate that the Arctic ice floe is travelling south rapidly and a blockade of the eastern front of the island is impending.

Expansion Urged on Pastors.

Boston, Mass., Jan. 30.—The Union Evangelical League of this city has issued a circular which has been sent to the clergymen of all the leading churches in New England and New York, urging them to support the president and to exert their influence in creating sentiment in favor of keeping the Philippines. The circular says:

"If the treaty is not ratified the United States ceases to be a great Christian influence in the east for God, and woe be unto the professing Christian who knowingly obstructs that influence."

PHILIPPINE COMMISSIONERS.

They Are Expected to Start Soon on Their Mission to Manila.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 30.—The special Philippine commission, which is to examine carefully into the affairs in the new Pacific possessions, leaves Vancouver for Manila to-day. At the head of this commission are two most versatile and learned Americans, Colonel Charles Denby and Professor J. G. Schurman. The selection of the former was due to his wonderful knowledge of affairs in the far east, for he spent years in official capacities in China, and is a diplomat of rare attainments. He is said to be thoroughly conversant with many of the languages of the far east, as well as with the customs of the people there.

PROF. J. G. SCHURMAN.

Professor Schurman, the president of Cornell University, is a scholar of rare attainments and will probably recommend some feasible plan for an early settlement of the troubles in the Philippines.

Iloilo Natives May Surrender.

Manila, Jan. 30.—According to advices just received from Iloilo, capital of the island of Panay, at the election held on January 17 Senor Ramon Melliza was chosen president of the so-called Visayan Federation for a term of two years, his predecessor, General Lopez, being appointed commander-in-chief of the forces of the revolutionary government.

Senor Melliza is kindly disposed to the Americans, and it is hoped that the difficulty between the natives and the United States authorities will be settled amicably.

Business was being resumed there when the dispatches in question were sent, and sugar was entering from the island of Negros. Ships were loading hemp. The sugar crop is far below the average, and shows an estimated deficiency of about nine thousand tons, valued at $74,250. Although matured, the crop was not being harvested owing to the lack of labor, but with the subsidence of the excitement the local authorities were persuading the natives to return to the provinces.

Six native commissioners headed by Senor Ramon Avencena, a lawyer, arrived yesterday from Iloilo by the United States transport St. Paul. They have come to consult with Aguinaldo.

A number of native soldiers who had been transported, were landed on the 25th of January in the island of Panay, about 25 miles north of Iloilo.

Woodruff for Yale.

New Haven, Conn., Jan. 30.—Several clerical members of the Yale corporation have been surprised during the past week to receive letters from a well known Yale graduate in New York advancing the claims of Lieutenant Governor Timothy L. Woodruff for president of Yale.

The authorities decline to make public the writer's name, but describe him as a "successful business man." They say, however, that he is perfectly serious in advocating Mr. Woodruff's candidacy, favoring him as an energetic young man of affairs who would unquestionably satisfy the public demand and that the next president of Yale should be chosen outside the Congregational ministry of Connecticut.

Lieutenant Governor Woodruff was graduated from Yale in 1879, and he received the honorary degree of M. A. in 1889.

Clark Elected in Montana.

Helena, Mont., Jan. 30.—The eighteenth senatorial ballot on Saturday resulted in the election of the Butte Democratic candidate, William A. Clark, who received 54 of the 93 votes cast.

Twelve of sixteen Republicans voted for Clark.

William A. Clark is sixty years of age, a native of Connelisville, Pa. He has a plantation of thirty-two thousand acres in Mexico devoted to growing coffee, tea and tobacco and rubber. His net income for 1898 was not far from ten million dollars.

Death Caused by Football.

Springfield, Ohio, Jan. 30.—Charles Ort, son of the Rev. Dr. S. A. Ort, president of the Wittenberg College, died yesterday from spinal meningitis. The disease was caused by an injury which the young man received in a football game some time ago.

Owing to Ort's death it is probable that the faculty will prohibit any games being played at the college or by the students.

Was 114 Years Old.

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 30.—The vital statistics department of the state board of health has received a death certificate of a woman who was one hundred and fourteen years of age at the time of her demise.

The name of the deceased is Margaret Fallen, and she died at Ledyard, Cayuga county. She was born in Ireland and came to ths country forty-four years ago.

Free Fight in a Paris Theatre.

Paris, Jan. 30.—During the representation of "The King of Rome" at the New Theatre on Friday evening the Bonapartists made a demonstration by waving the tricolor crowned with the imperial eagle, and shouting "Vive l'Empereur!"

Counter cries were raised and a free fight ensued, in which several persons were severely bruised. No arrests were made.

EAGAN FOUND GUILTY

Sentenced to Dismissal With Recommendation for Mercy.

M'KINLEY MAY COMMUTE

Believed in Washington That the President Will Mitigate the Sentence—Verdict Forwarded to the Secretary of War.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 30.—General Eagan, commissary general of subsistence, has been found guilty of the charges of conduct unbecoming an officer and a gentleman and of conduct to the prejudice of good order and discipline and of the specifications thereto, and has been sentenced to dismissal from the United States army, but with a recommendation from the court for the exercise of executive clemency.

Only President McKinley stands between General Eagan, commissary general, and dismissal from the military service of the United States.

Without delay the court signed its verdict of dismissal Saturday and Lieutenant Colonel Davis, judge advocate, delivered the record and findings to the secretary of war. The court then adjourned sine die and Lieutenant Colonel Davis left for West Point.

In view of the order convening the court, requiring it to try General Eagan, "and such other persons as may be brought before it," there were some who thought that the administration expected that there would be developments during the trial which would enable it to bring General Miles before the court.

But it is explained at the department that the order was in the usual form, and that even if the administration had any charges to prefer against General Miles, it could not bring him before the Eagan court because of its final adjournment.

Upon receipt of the record and finding Secretary Alger transmitted them to Judge Advocate General Lieber, and that official, with his assistant, Major Morrison, is now engaged in making a brief of the evidence and reviewing the record to see that it is in proper form.

The army regulations require that the case "shall be forwarded through the commanding general of the army for such remarks and recommendations as he may see fit to make." General Miles expects that the regulation will be waived in this case, but, even if it is not, he will simply indorse the papers "respectfully forwarded to the secretary of war," and this will end his connection with the matter.

It is reported that the president, in view of the testimony brought out during the trial, will, as has been done before, order a medical board to determine whether General Eagan was responsible for the statements he made, and if the board should so recommend, retire him. In any event it seems to be the general impression that the president will mitigate the sentence.

Before disposing of the Eagan case it is thought that the president will act on that of Captain Carter of the Corps of Engineers. The record and finding of the court martial that tried Captain Carter are now before the attorney general, who is consulting with Colonel Barr, of the judge advocate general's department relative to it. It is understood that action in Carter's case will shortly be taken.

Swindled in Eleven Countries.

London, Jan. 30.—The Paris police have arrested a new variety of bank swindler, whose victims are scattered throughout Europe. He is a Greek of the name of Etienne Apostoulos, and was accustomed to figure as a French Jew of the name of Jacques Levy. He has scooped in a million francs by means of ingenious forged coupons since October.

Many minor banks on the continent and in England received instructions from Jacques Levy at a Paris address to pay sums varying from five hundred to one thousand francs to a person stated to be visiting in their locality. The letter contained coupons generally of the Egyptian unified debt to cover the payment. The person named was never found and the bank would then write and ask Levy what to do with the coupons. He always replied to sell the coupons and send the amount by check.

Levy thus cashed valueless paper for hard cash, but the other day a Berlin bank, struck by the peculiar nature of the business, asked its Paris representatives to inquire into it.

They found that the coupons were forgeries. Levy was arrested. He was astonished, he said, because he studied the French code and found that it did not include frauds committed outside of France. This proved true, but he was held because eleven foreign countries demanded his extradition.

The Topeka Coming Home in Tow.

San Juan, Porto Rico, Jan. 30.—The United States cruiser Topeka, which arrived here ten days ago under orders to take coal before continuing her cruise in South American waters, left this harbor Saturday morning for the Norfolk navy yard.

She was towed out of the harbor and the collier Peoria picked her up, undertaking to tow her during the remainder of her journey.

Orders came several days ago for the Topeka to put to sea at once and continue her cruise, but the chief engineer reported to the commander that both boilers were in bad condition and it would be unsafe for the cruiser to sail.

A board of survey appointed to make an examination, condemned both of the Topeka's boilers.

Fire in a Theater.

Seneca Falls, N. Y., Jan. 30.—During the performance of a wargraph entertainment in Johnson's Opera House on Saturday night the machine took fire and was completely destroyed.

In an instant the hall was filled with flames and smoke and a panic ensued. There was a wild rush for the doors, and women and children were trampled under foot. No lives were lost, but many persons were injured, none seriously.

CATARRH OF STOMACH.

A Pleasant, Simple, but Safe and Effectual Cure for It.

Cartarrh of the stomach has long been considered the next thing to incurable. The usual symptoms are a full or bloating sensation after eating, accompained sometimes with sour or watery risings, a formation of gases, causing pressure on heart and lungs and difficult breathing; headaches, fickle appetite, nervousness and general played out, languid feeling.

There is often a foul taste in the mouth, coated tongue and if the interior of the stomach could be seen it would show a slimy, inflamed condition.

The cure of this common and obstinate trouble is found in a treatment which causes the food to be readily, thoroughly digested before it has time to ferment and irritate the delicate mucous surfaces of the stomach. To secure a prompt and healthy digestion is the one necessary thing to do and when normal digestion is secured the catarrhal condition will have disappeared.

According to Dr. Harlanson the safest and best treatment is to use after each meal a tablet, composed of Diatase, Aseptic Pepsin, a little Nux, Golden Seal and fruit acids. These tablets can now be found at all drug stores under the name of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, and not being a patent medicine, can be used with perfect safety and assurance that healthy appetite and thorough digestion will follow their regular use after meals.

Mr. N. J. Boober, of 2710 Dearborn St., Chicago, Ill., writes: "Catarrh is a local condition resulting from a neglected cold in the head, whereby the lining membrane of the nose becomes inflammed and the poisonous discharge therefrom passing backward into the throat reaches the stomach, thus producing catarrh of the stomach. Medical authorities prescribed for me for three years for catarrh of the stomach without cure, but today I am the happiest of men after using only one box of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets. I cannot find appropriate words to express my good feeling. I have found flesh, appetite and sound rest from their use."

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets is the safest preparation as well as the simplest and most convenient remedy for any form of indigestion, catarrh of the stomach, biliousness, sour stomach, heartburn and bloating after meals.

Send for a little book mailed free, on stomach troubles, by addressing Stuart Co., Marshall, Mich. The tablets can be found at all drug stores.

For years I have suffered with what I supposed to be dyspepsia and what has always been called so by physicians who have treated me. It is peculiar, inasmuch as it comes on periodically every year about October and lasts for two or three months in spite of all the medicines I take and then goes away, apparently having worn itself out. The symptoms are a sense of distress and heaviness in the chest amounting to agony at times, and while not exactly a pain, is more distressing even than pain, as all the time I suffer so my spirits become depressed and my appetite is poor or capricious, and even when I feel like eating the dread of the agony it will cause keeps me from it. During the spells I usually suffer also from constipation and flatulence. This year the attack came on earlier than usual (about the middle of July), and feeling that I could not stand the combination of heat and dyspepsia I looked around for something that might relieve me. A copy of a pamphlet about Ripans Tabules happening to be brought to my notice, I thought I would try them, and after taking two 5-cent boxes I find my symptoms much relieved, and while I still suffer somewhat at times the distress is neither so constant nor so acute, and I have no doubt that in a few days I shall have entirely recovered. I find the "tabule" form much more agreeable to take than any liquid and can heartily recommend them to any who suffer from any form of indigestion or dyspepsia. I am twenty-nine years of age and have been troubled with the symptoms above described for at least the years at intervals. I am a stenographer and typewriter by profession, and my trouble is doubtless aggravated by the sedentary life I am compelled to lead.

WANTED—A case of bad health that R-I-P-A-N-S will not benefit. Send five cents to Ripans Chemical Co., 10 Spruce Street, New York, for 10 samples and 1,000 testimonials. AMERICAN AID FOR AGONCILLO.

Said to be Receiving Financial Support in This Country.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 30.--Agoncillo's standing and operations continue the subject of official discussion. There are severe criticisms of the senators who have been encouraging this adventurer by counsels in the preparation of communications to the state department. But it is upon the conduct of those who are furnishing Aguinaldo's representative with more substantial means to create trouble that the severest condemnation falls. Discussion with one of the highest officials in the government on this subject brings out the following views:

"The headquarters of the conspiracies against the authority of the United States in the Philippines are not only in Hong Kong and Berlin, but in this country as well," said this official, and with an emphasis which seemed to bespeak knowledge. "If we should feel compelled to take Agoncillo into custody," he said, "for efforts to incite Aguinaldo and his followers to an attack upon General Otis, it would be a serious embarrassment to several distinguished gentlemen who claim to be leaders in American politics and philanthropy.

"These men, we believe, are giving moral and financial support to the pretender from the Philippines, who alleges the existence of a republic. If Agoncillo is a diplomatic representative of a power he should be sent out of this country for making public his diplomatic correspondence. If the United States owns the Philippines by the cession of Spain, a question on which there can be no doubt when the treaty is ratified, Aguinaldo and Agoncillo are seditious persons, inciting rebellion. If the Philippines belong to Spain and we are still in a state of war, Agoncillo is a spy and could be so treated. In any one of these suppositions the gentlemen known to be American citizens and holding office under this government, are acting outside the law in conferring with him and giving moral and material support to his cause."

THE LULL IN CHINESE AFFAIRS.

It Does Not Indicate an Improved Situation.

London, Jan. 30.--Little has been heard recently of international rivalries in China, but this does not indicate that the situation has substantially improved. There is good reason to believe that Lord Salisbury regards acute trouble in the spring as certain unless diplomacy should meantime find some means of averting it. He, therefore, is playing a double game just now, his main object being to arrive at a friendly understanding with Russia, and he seems fairly sanguine. He is also endeavoring to insure a powerful coalition against Russia in case she develops her aggressive policy to an unbearable extent between now and May. Here he has not received much tangible encouragement. Ambassador Pauncefote having received nothing but generalities in response to his cautious inquiries as to the extent to which America would go for the protection of American interests in the far East.

Italy, it is understood, has intimated that she will not act without her partners in the tripple alliance. Austria does not regard her interests as sufficiently great to warrant her doing anything against Russia, and the German emperor as good as declared that he would await events. France is regarded as so surely Russian that the French government has not been approached.

The pretence that Wei Hai Wei balances Port Arthur is no longer made. The London war office budget for the coming session will contain a special appropriation for defensive and offensive works at Wei Hai Wei, because it is part of the ministerial policy to make believe that the place is worth keeping, but if the war department had its way Wei Hai Wei would soon be abandoned for one of the several places which the experts have recommended. One of these, Chusan, has repeatedly been annexed by rumor, but it is almost certain that this year will see the union jack waving there.

Kills Himself in Prison.

Newark, N. J., Jan. 30.--Frank McZane, colored, a prisoner in the Essex county penitentiary, in Caldwell, committed suicide Saturday by hanging himself. He had been ill and was in the hospital ward. He used bandages which had been about his head in ending his life. He tore them off and made a rope out of them and then hanged himself to a cell door. McZane was serving a sentence of three months for larceny.

Cut Prices in Glassware.

Pittsburg, Pa., Jan. 30.--The bottom is being knocked out of prices on pressed glassware, and prices on all staple goods are being cut, in some instances as much as ten, fifteen and even twenty-five per cent.

Many firms have signified their intention of shutting down their works rather than to try to meet the ruinous competition. The price cutting is attributed to the failure to form a combine a few weeks ago.

Elections in Hayti.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 30.--Minister Powell reports from Port au Prince that the election for members of the Chamber of Deputies passed off quietly and resulted in the election of government candidates, so that the government has an absolute majority in both chambers.

This, it is thought, will insure the stability of the present government.

A Populist Leader Dead.

Fort Worth, Tex., Jan. 30.--Evan Jones, one of the most prominent figures in the Populist party, died Friday night at his home.

Mr. Jones was on the national Populist ticket with General Weaver and was also a congressional candidate on the Populist ticket two years ago.

Troy, N. Y., Jan. 30.--Robert Balfour was found guilty of manslaughter in the first degree on Saturday. The jury had been out nearly 20 hours.

Balfour was indicted for murder in the first degree in having caused the death of Henry White at Valley Falls, October 15, 1898.

SETBACK FOR REVISION

A BLOW FOR DREYFUSITES

Lively Fight Expected in the Chambers When the Bill Comes Up for a Vote—Will be presented To-day and Will Probably Pass.

Paris, Jan. 30.--A semi-official note issued on Sunday says that at an extraordinary meeting the cabinet decided that the minister of justice, M. Lebret, will submit to the chamber of deputies to-day a bill providing that cases of trial revisions are to be brought before the united sections of the court of cassation. Whenever the criminal section having pronounced upon the admissibility of an application for the revision of a previous judgment, it shall proceed with a preliminary inquiry conducted by a delegation consisting of more than one-third of all the members of the court.

In the preamble of the bill the government reciting the conclusions of M. Mazau, the first president of the court of cassation on the charges brought by M. Quesnay de Beaurepaire, the president of the civil section of that court at the time of his resignation, says: "From the facts adduced by M. Mazau, it would not be wise to entrust the judgment of the Dreyfus affair to the criminal section alone."

A lively discussion of the bill is expected to take place in the Chamber of Deputies, though the measure will probably be finally voted. The facts adduced in M. Mazau's report, it is added, are not sufficient to lead to disciplinary measures against the criminal court magistrates, though they are possibly sufficient to give doubts as to their impartiality in the public mind.

The decision of the government is most unfavorable to the revisionists and is a serious reflection upon the criminal court, though its ultimate effect, if the united courts of cassation should favor a revision of the Dreyfus trial, would undoubtedly leave the anti-revisionists no ground for further agitation.

In the meanwhile the government's decision justifies the charges of M. Quesnay de Beaurepaire.

In the lobbies of the Chamber of Deputies it is believed that the government's bill will not lead to the resignation of any member of the criminal section of the court of cassation. Even if it did, it would not change the situation. The Dreyfus revision inquiry would proceed. When it is terminated it will be submitted to the combined court of cassation, in the event of the bill being passed.

It is understood that the government will propose that the bill be submitted to a special committee of the Chamber to which M. Mazau's report will be communicated.

The actual words of the conclusion of M. Mazau's report are as follows: "Without suspecting the honor of the criminal section of the court of cassation, which remains intact, it appears wise not to leave it to bear alone the responsibility for the definitive judgment which has to be pronounced."

Chamberlain Quotes Dewey.

London, Jan. 30.--Mr. Joseph Chamberlain, secretary of state for the colonies, in a long speech delivered at the dinner of the Birmingham Jewellers and Silversmiths' Association Saturday evening, made a most rigorous attack upon the pessimistic ideas entertained by those who professed to believe in England's decline, and boasted of her achievements during the past year.

Speaking of the imperialistic policy, he quoted Admiral Dewey as saying that England's imperialistic policy was one of the mightiest factors in civilization.

Continuing, Mr. Chamberlain expressed his great satisfaction at having the sympathy of the colonies in that policy, and called attention to the fact that the United States were entering the lists and sharing the tasks that might have proved too much for England alone.

Doukhobors Are Detained.

Halifax, Jan. 30.--A message from the quarantine station Saturday announced that the work of examining the two thousand Doukhobors, who arrived Friday on the Lake Superior, was proceeding favorably.

Further evidence of smallpox has been obtained, and the detention of the Doukhobors at this port is assured. The disease was not confined to the child buried at sea, and other children are suffering from it. As fast as a suspicious case is discovered the patient is isolated. All the immigrants will be vaccinated.

Crispi on Universal Peace.

London, Jan. 30.--A Central News dispatch from Rome says that ex-Premier Crispi, in an interview on the subject of the proposed international conference in the interest of universal peace, expressed himself as follows:

"The conference will decide nothing. The sole possible result will be that the powers may align themselves in the formation of an international arbitration tribunal. I hope that I am wrong, but I think a general war is more probable than a general disarmament."

Vitality of an Old French Custom.

London, Jan. 30.--French returns show that thirty million visiting cards passed through the postoffice the first week in January, a notable proof of the survival of old-fashioned French politeness.

Fashionable society has tried for some seasons to kill the custom, but the people cling to it more fondly than ever.

Colon Strikers' Threats.

Colon, Colombia, Jan. 30.--The strike of the dock laborers is extending. The laborers in the railroad machine shop and the switchmen were driven from their work by the strikers on Saturday and the town is placarded with threats to destroy the shop by fire.

Street riots are frequent and the general situation is hourly becoming more serious.

IOWANS RECALLED FROM ILOILO.

Regiment to be Relieved While the Transport Pennsylvania is Repaired.

Manila, Philippine Islands, Jan. 30.—Major General Otis has recalled the Fifty-first Iowa from Iloilo, so that the transport Pennsylvania may be repaired and the regiment be relieved, as it has been on board of that vessel most of the time since she left Honolulu.

The Eighteenth infantry and the Sixth artillery will remain at Iloilo indefinitely.

Says There is Rivalry.

Barcelona, Jan. 30.--The Manila correspondent of the Diario says he has discovered that the relations between Major General Otis and Rear Admiral Dewey are quite strained owing to the profound rivalry which exists between the land and sea forces of the United States in the island.

"The administrative morality of the Americans," says the correspondent, "is below par. The gambling hells of Manila are taxed $1,200 each and the police are highwaymen who make arbitrary arrests and then demand from ten to twenty dollars for the release of their prisoners.

The correspondent further declares that the Americans have monopolized all the trade and swamped the markets with their products, rendering European competition impossible. As an instance of this he alleges that Californian wines are sold in Manila as genuine Bordeaux.

President Encouraging Lads.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 30.—The executive committee of the American Boys' Association, the object of which is to build a first class battleship for the American navy, is in Washington consulting various officials.

The boys Saturday had a conference with the members of the naval committees of Congress, and the president received them.

Mr. McKinley assured them of his deepest interest in their project and wished them every success.

One of the principal purposes of their visit to Washington was to ascertain if the law relative to the naming of the ships of the navy will permit the proposed vessel to be christened the American Boy, and also to ascertain if their contribution could be legally accepted by the government.

They were informed that neither of these points was an obstacle.

A Shortage in His Accounts.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 30.—Clarence Arthur Hardy, cashier of the Riggs House, has disappeared, leaving a shortage in his accounts. About two hundred dollars is known to be missing, but the loss to the hotel is probably greater.

Hardy was a clerk in the treasury department up to a year ago, and was later employed on the work connected with the last bond issue. He claimed to have come from "Texas, Omaha, Chicago and all points west."

The police have been told that he was a ticket of leave man from Joliet state prison in Illinois, to which he was sentenced for defrauding the Chicago Inter-Ocean.

French-German Alliance Urged.

Berlin, Jan. 30.--The Cologne Gazette forcibly advocates a rapprochement between France and Germany in an article which concludes by saying:

An honest peace with France would not only ameliorate our relations with Russia, but materially assist Austria and Italy, thus strengthening the continental powers against the competition of the maritime powers. This would have the effect of largely realizing Count Goluchowski's idea in advocating a close union of the continental powers as their most important policy.

Payne Succeeds Dingley.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 30.—President McKinley Saturday evening announced the appointment of Representative Sereno E. Payne of New York on the joint high commission to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Representative Nelson A. Dingley. Mr. Payne also succeeded Mr. Dingley as chairman of the ways and means committee of the house.

Congressman Wagner's Packet Picked.

Norristown, Pa., Jan. 30.—Congressman I. P. Wagner of the Seventh district, who arrived in Washington Saturday, after a six weeks' trip to San Francisco and the western states, had his pocket picked while riding in a Pullman car between Phoenix, Ariz., and Hot Springs, Ark. The purse taken contained $30 in cash and some valuable papers.

Speaker Nixon Dangerously Ill.

Jamestown, N. Y., Jan. 30.--The Hon. S. Fred Nixon, speaker of the assembly, is at his home in Westfield a very sick man. Pneumonia, which was feared when he started home from Albany on Friday, has developed in the right lung. Dr. Park of Buffalo reached Westfield Saturday afternoon but could give little encouragement.

Ireland's Visit to the Pope.

Rome, Jan. 30.--It is asserted in Vatican circles that the pope will hear the views of Archbishop Ireland upon the questions of Americanism in Cuba and the Philippines.

The day of the pope's reception of the archbishop, however, has not been fixed.

Philadelphia Ready to Sail.

San Diego, Cal., Jan. 30.--Admiral Kautz has notified the navy department that the Philadelphia is ready to sail for Samoa. He has been instructed to sail as soon as Chief Engineer Bates arrives from Havana. Bates is expected here to-day.

D case's Big Land Case.

St. Paul, Minn., Jan. 30.--Judge Lochren Saturday filed a decision involving the right of the Northern Pacific railroad to about one million acres of land in northern Minnesota and Wisconsin. Judge Locsren decides in favor of the company.

Care of Tramps in Somerset.

The question of what to do with the tramps still asserts itself in the various counties of New Jersey, and none more so than in old Somerset. In her neighboring bailiwick, Middlesex, the genus hobo has been legislated against to the extent of making his capture by the constabulary of the county equivalent to his introduction to a monster stone pile, which he is expected to work upon with a maul as long as his commitment extends. But in Somerset things are run in a different way, and the tramp has open sesame to the county jail for a night's lodging at any time, with the privilege of leaving the next morning—and if he doesn't choose to depart, as many would fain do, he is likely to be kicked out anyway. Incidentally, Sheriff Schoonmaker receives twenty-five cents from the taxpayers of the county for the care of Mr. Tramp. Now here comes the rub. A large number of the Somerset county residents term this condition of affairs, which has been authorized by the Board of Freeholders, a gross outrage upon the taxpaying public, and they are urging that the order be repealed in the name of economy. The persons arrayed against the plan, however, have no monopoly of the use of the word economy to prove their argument, for, in fact, the gentlemen who stand in favor of the present arrangement say that it is in line with public saving.

According to a member of the Board of Freeholders who writes to the Somerville Unionist-Gazette, the step was taken to break up a combination organized among justices and constables for their mutual profit and the county's improverishment. It is alleged by this Freeholder that the tramps were arrested by a constable, taken before a justice of the peace and committed to jail under the disorderly act at a cost of $1.45 to the county for each tramp, not to mention the expense of board at the jail. The Freeholders concluded that the would be cheaper to let the wanders arrest and commit themselves and save the county $1.20 on each one.

Punish the Fakirs.

State Superintendent of Schools Baxter, of this city, has just unearthed a rather stupendous attempt on the part of a number of Jersey City school census takers to get rich by padding the rolls to the tune of over 16,000 names in three wards of that city. After the enterprising census takers had gone over the territory the police followed, and their investigations revealed the fact that the census takers had placed children of various ages and capacities on vacant lots and the like. They took the trouble to fill in names of parents and guardians of the bogus children, with the sex of the child, whether vaccinated or not, and considerable other information.

In the First ward the police failed to find 7,886 of the children enumerated by the regularly appointed census takers; in the Third ward 6,066 were missing, and in the Sixth ward 2,728.

For each name placed upon the list the census taker receives five cents, so that the amount received for the bogus work would be somewhat more than $800. The State, however, appropriates $5 for each scholar, so the cost to the State, if the fraud had not been detected, would have been over $80,000.

If the padded census rolls had gone through Superintenent Baxter's hands without discovery it is plainly evident that it would cost the State a pretty penny, and that makes the faking census takers guilty of nothing more nor less than sheer robbery.

The census takers should be made to suffer for the attempt to deceive the State and secure money to which they were not entitled to any more than a man who breaks into a bank vault with a set of burglar tools and a package of dynamite is entitled to the spoils he may secure.

The Attorney-General has given an opinion that is of considerable interest to those interested in loan associations with respect to the use of the internal revenue stamp. It is to the effect that any papers or instruments otherwise taxable executed by a building and loan association loaning money only to its own shareholders, or any such papers or instruments made or executed by the shareholders to the association in dealing with the association, and within the limits of its legitimate operations, are exempt from the stamp-tax, with the exception of checks or drafts given by the association or by the shareholders thereof.

A resolution introduced in the Arkansas Legislature declaring that thereafter it would be considered a reproach upon the dignity of the house for member to ask leave of absence for another on the ground of sickness, when in fact the absent member was intoxicated, was regarded as a reflection on the House, and was rejected. Subsequently the resolution was expunged from the record. Arkansas legislators must find the truth bitter.

The Robert Davis Association, of Jersey City, which has just made $30,000 from a fair held for its benefit, has arranged a theatre party for the 400 young ladies who assisted the members of the association at the event. We suppose, of course, that the affable Bob will be on hand to chaperone the young women, for he is one of the most Chesterfieldian gentlemen of Jersey City.

Somerville seems to be overrun with burglars of the desperate kind. It's a risky thing for a burglar to work in Somerville now. He is not liable to reap a fortune by his stealthy practices, and there is a large-sized chance of having his skin perforated with bullets fired by indignant citizens who are not pleased with having their repose disturbed by such as he.

Elizabeth is in the midst of a crusade aiming to close the saloons Sundays, and only the faithful patrons of the gin mills were able to work the latch on the sidedoor yesterday. However, a large business was done in original packages Saturday night.

It has come to be quite the proper thing to charge bribery in every State Legislature where there is a Senatorial contest. John Kean ought to be thankful, as doubtless he is, that he was "in it" all alone on the Republican side in New Jersey.

Governor Voorhees announces that he will not make any appointments till after the first of March. That means more agony for the gentlemen who are so willing to sacrifice all their private ambitions to serve the dear public.

A seat in the New York Stock Exchange sold for $38,000 Saturday. Many a man has bought a seat in the same place and found that he was only fitted for the dunce's stool.

The Legislature convenes tonight. We suppose that Assemblyman Murray has several bills up his sleeve to introduce.

If appearances count for anything the cider joints of Plainfield are doing business in the same old way on Sundays.

WHAT THE SHEARS FIND

Editorial Comment From Other Papers of Interest in Plainfield.

There seems to be no doubt that the Lehigh Valley Railroad Company is planning to extend a branch from its main line at South Plainfield to the city of Plainfield. Perhaps the project was revived by the knowledge that a company was forming to run a trolley line from Plainfield to Metuchen. We hope both the enterprises will be in successful operation before the year is out. Judging from the present railroad service between South Plainfield and Perth Amboy, the trolley cars would get the bulk of the passenger traffic.—Metuchen Recorder.

The pupils who took part were entertained over Sunday by different families in the town. In the evening on Sunday a number of these blind young people furnished music at the Presbyterian church.

MUSTERING OUT THE THIRD.

War Officials Order the Discharges to Take Place at Athens.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Washington, Jan. 30—Dissension has broken out in the Third Regiment, New Jersey Volunteers, stationed at Athens, Ga. The men from Elizabeth are anxious to be mustered out at Athens, while the men of Company D are averse to such a course and say that to go home without their arms will be akin to disgrace. In some way the impression got afoot in some companies that Congressman Howell was doing his utmost to have the men mustered out at home. Thereupon they telegraphed Congressman Fowler to offset his influence and have the regiment mustered out at Athens. It seems that the mustering out of the men at the camp where the regiment is now stationed will give each man more money than if they go home first. The constituents of Congressman Fowler want the increased allowance of cash and care nothing about how it may seem to the public at large to go home without their arms.

Upon inquiry at the War Department it was learned that the officials of the department had already issued orders for the regiment to be mustered out at Athens, and this will be done February 4th.

The Tribune Almanac.

The Tribune Almanac was first published in 1838 under another name. It has appeared every year except one, since that date, continuously confirming and enhancing its original claim to the confidence of the country. In recent years its size has been extended to meet the requirements of a growing population, with a greater complexity of interests, and now contains a much more varied assortment of topics. By rigid compression and expert arrangement, it yet remains compact and portable, while extraordinarily comprehensive. We observe that the 1899 number contains the Constitution of New York; the Charter of the Greater New York; a complete history of the War with Spain, including the Treaty of the Joint Commission in Paris; and the Monetary Systems of the world; full returns of the elections in the several States and Territories; electoral and popular vote for each President since the election of George Washington; the War Revenue Bill; a complete summary of Acts passed to date by the present Congress; History of the Annexation of Hawaii; and many miscellaneous topics. Send 25 cents either to this paper or to the New York Tribune and you will receive a Tribune Almanac for 1899.

THE WOMAN'S WORLD

True Source of Content.

There is no greater foe to a woman's happiness than restlessness. This does not of necessity mean actual physical unrest, but the mental quality of discontent with oneself, one's surroundings, one's own actions, is the quality that makes days dark and spirits depressed. The self-satisfied poise, while not one to be commended in its attitude toward the world at large, is infinitely more comforting to its possessor than that eagerness to be or have something else than what we are not or do not possess.

The artistic temperament is never really satisfied. True genius is possessed of a spirit of infinite despair over failure to achieve such greatness as genius knows to be possible. Mediocrity is never satisfying to such, but, alas! if it could be how much happier the whole world would be! To find content do not look in the cities. Expect it not in the household where the wife is socially ambitious or the husband has a political bee in his bonnet. Content, that sure and certain, happy and restful feeling of repletion, comes only to those who are satisfied with just enough to give them food and shelter, with a tiny margin for doctors' bills and a luxury now and then.

The attire of others has no special significance—certainly it inspires no envy. The handsomer furnishings, the greater income mean nothing. Contentment banishes all through the advancement. The smooth, unruffled brow is the hallmark of the inward placidity. A woman thus endowed does not have to fear wrinkles. Time has no terrors for her. Sleep, sweet and reposeful, with never a thought of bills to be met on the morrow, aids her in the possession of her perpetual youth that her socially ambitious sister longs to possess, but cannot guess the secret of its being. It is all very well to talk about the cultivation of repose, but it is the product of a mind tranquil, as well as a body at rest, and to obtain it the words ambition and worry must be eliminated from the lexicon of life.—Philadelphia Times.

Pure Candies Not Hurtful.

To the average child there are two delights so great that the sophisticated man or woman of the world can hardly comprehend the bliss they cause. One is to eat ice cream; the other, to eat candy. One woman confesses that when she was a small girl, and was told that heaven was a place of absolute bliss, she instantly decided in her own mind that in that place there would be gallon freezers of ice cream always standing open, and that the trees would bear on their branches, and drop upon the ground below, thousands of candies.

It is a pity that an article whose wise use gives so much pleasure and works so little harm as does good candy should have been abused until it has become an evil. Some parents feel that to keep their children in health they must forbid them to eat candy at any time, while other parents permit it to be devoured in such quantities that their ignorance can be their only excuse for the sin of allowing such indulgence. Dentists and physicians unite in the opinion that pure candy, eaten in proper quantities and at proper times, can do a well child no harm. Good candy may be now procured from many dealers, the purity of whose bonbons has justly won for them reputation. Let the mother buy these candies and portion them out to her little ones, a few at a time, and always right after a substantial meal. —Harper's Bazar.

Simple Aids to Beauty.

Sleep on a very low pillow or none at all. Sleeping on a flat bed will help to give straight, firmly-poised shoulders.

Walk from one to three miles every day in broad-soled shoes and loose clothing, leaving cares at home. You may find them when you return, or they will have fled entirely.

Walk with the limbs swinging from the hips, like a pendulum, and to do this keep the weight of the body forward on the balls of the feet. This is the secret of a graceful stage carriage.

Take a morning sponge bath with as much regularity as you eat your dinner.

Do not retire in a bedroom in which the gas has been burning for hours. Put out the light, throw open the windows as wide as possible and get pure oxygen before retiring. Then leave the window so that there is circulation of good air all night long.

Regular hours for sleeping and for eating are the best means of keeping perfect health. A dentist, on looking at a girl's teeth, found no cavities to fill. She asked in surprise: "How is that?" He replied that she had probably been sleeping regularly, eight hours a night, and jokingly added that there is a science in "teeth-reading" quite as real as palmistry.—Philadelphia Press.

Frequent Use of the Napkin.

"Children," says a physician, "should be taught the use of a napkin to wipe the mouth frequently while eating, for hygienic as well as tidy reasons. Cold sores, common with some children, are often the result of careless eating more than anything else. A trained nurse understands well the necessity of keeping the corners of a patient's mouth clean while feeding—children ought to be taught how and why they should do likewise."

well as cloth is covered with rows of it for gown trimming and hats as well. Something very novel is the use of castor-colored velvet cut in waved bands, covered with stitching, trimming a brown cloth gown. These edge the overdress, which is longer at the back than in front, where it rounds up a trifle at one side and fastens, the bands continuing up the side. A point in cutting these new overdresses is that the back shall be bias, literally plain over the hips, and the fullness which naturally falls in on bias gives the needed width at the bottom. Underskirts are cut in the same way, bias in the back, which lessens the trouble of fitting the hips very much. Bands of velvet edge the underskirt in this particular instance; and another odd feature of this brown gown is a yoke and collar of pale blue velvet also covered with stitching.

Tucks from one inch to four inches wide appear in some of the new cloth gowns, around the bottom of the skirt. There will be four or five of the narrow ones with spaces between, and three of the wider lapping a little over one another. A gown with three skirts, or, rather, the effect of three, is another new model. They round up in front, the top one being very narrow, of course, and are edged all around with rows of stitching, fur or embroidery. A new shade of red which is very much worn in Paris resembles the tint of pomegranate seeds, and a costume of cloth in this color is made with a princess tunic, fastened at one side and edged all around with a chenille fringe of the same color. The underskirt is of velvet to match.

A TIMELY HINT.

Guests Who Are Not Ready to Appear at Breakfast.

A girl who visits New York frequently stops while in the city with her grandmother. The grandmother is an old-fashioned housekeeper, and one thing upon which she lays emphasis in her household affairs is regularity. The meals are always on time and she likes the members of her family to be ready promptly. It is something of a trial to her that her granddaughter should sometimes after a theatre party or other festivity sleep over breakfast time. The granddaughter knows this, and she makes a great effort to be up in time, and make up her sleep if she needs to in the afternoon. The other evening she had been out very late, and grandmamma sympathized. "The child mustn't try to get up this morning," she said to herself, and dressing more hurriedly than usual she hurried to her granddaughter's room.

"Alice," she called softly, as she knocked on the door. There was no answer and she went in. "Alice," she said again, speaking a little louder, but there was no answer. "Alice," she said a third time, and at last there was a sleepy response. "Alice, dear," she said, "don't think of getting up this morning. You were out so very late last night you need the sleep." All this time she was stroking the ruffled head on the pillow, and by the time she had finished speaking its owner was wide awake, but not quite conscious of what had been said. "Oh, yes, grandma," she answered, "I will get right up," and she did, for she had been so thoroughly wakened that she could not go to sleep again.—New York Times.

Circus for a Dime.

If you want a regular circus in the back yard next summer invest a dime in a package of mixed gourd seeds and plant by a picket fence. Train them along, and if you pour dish water around the roots every day the first surprise will come in seeing the things grow, perhaps shutting out an ugly back yard next door, and also being a pretty back ground for marigolds, asters or zinnias planted in the front. Some sunny morning take a view of your fence, covered with prettily shaded leaves and the nest eggs gourds so white hanging all over it, mixed with the large yellow flowers, and however, "blue," you will take a more cheerful view of things. Furthermore, the vine has something for every member of the family. Grandma can darn her stockings on a small gourd; mother can use them for nest eggs; the artistic daughter can carve pretty boxes and cups, and paint pictures on the hard smooth surface; the little girls can make a whole yard of animals out of the small ones, using matches or toothpicks for legs; the boy can make a curiosity for his cabinet by putting a bottle over the bud; it will expand and fill the space, and the other boys will wonder how such a thing could be put into such small quarters.—Chicago Journal.

OUR YOUTHS' COLUMN.

Benjamin West, the Artist.

He has made a likeness of little Sally! exclaimed his astonished and delighted mother, and she kissed him with much fondness and satisfaction. "My mother's kiss," he said, afterwards, "made me a painter." And, indeed, he immediately proceeded to say on the spot, that he believed he could make a picture of the flowers she had in her hand.

Little Benjamin West, son of Quaker West, was only six years old when this incident occurred. He had done nothing to indicate the bent of his genius until that day in June, when one of his sisters, who had married and had a little daughter, came with her infant child to pass some days at her father's. While the mother and daughter were gathering flowers in the garden, Benjamin was left to guard the sleeping infant in the cradle. The child happened to smile, which charmed the boy. With the instinct of genius, the lad, who, at this time, his biographer declares, "had never seen an engraving or a picture," and certainly had never seen anyone use a brush, seized a pen from the table and, with the red and black inks, endeavored to delineate a portrait.

And so this boy, who wanted four months of being seven years old—for he was born on the tenth of October, 1738, six years after Washington—drew not only his first picture, but the first he ever saw. When his mother and his sister came in, he tried to conceal his work; he was afraid they would be angry, but the mother examined the picture attentively for some time, and then burst forth with the exclamation that it was the picture of the slumbering babe, and lavished kisses instead of frowns upon him.

Benjamin, at school, kept on drawing with pen and ink; and the Indians, who at times came to the hospitable mansion, were amused by his sketches of birds and flowers. They taught him his first lesson in mixing paints, giving him the yellow and red ochers which they used; his brother added a piece of indigo. The Indians taught him archery, also. Needing hair brushes, he seized upon puss again and again, until his father thought the cat's dilapidated appearance was due to disease.

A gentleman—Mr. Pennington—visiting his father, noticed the drawings about the room. On his return to Philadelphia, he sent to the boy of eight a box of paints and pencils, with pieces of prepared canvas and six beautiful engravings—the first pictures he had ever seen but his own. Next day, in the garret, from dawn to noon, from noon till eve—school forgotten, dinner swallowed in haste—young Benjamin painted subjects from those engravings. The schoolmaster sought the truant, and his garret studio was discovered, and his picture viewed. That picture, which his mother feared to have him spoil by another touch, was seen by West in the same room sixty-seven years later, side by side with his sublime painting, "Christ Rejected." He then declared that there were inventive touchs in his juvenile essay which, with all his acquired knowledge and experience, he had never surpassed.

A, B, C's in China.

It is not improbable that of all their studies, the almond-eyed youngsters of China find writing the most enjoyable. They use a small brush instead of a pen, and daub on the ink with a lavishness dear to the juvenile heart. They write one letter over another till the page is as black as a cooking stove, and the copybooks become so wet that it is necessary to hang them over the fence to dry.

There are no public schools in China, or, indeed, school houses of any kind. But the boys and girls of the flowery land repair to the houses of their teachers to pursue their studies. They do not sit upon the floor, as is commonly supposed, for although they have no school furniture, such as is used in this country, they are provided with common chairs, upon which they sit while studying. During recitations they stand around their teacher.

Long before reaching the school room, visitors may hear the pupils vociferously shouting their lessons and making a din which is, to say the least, confusion to one unaccustomed to this method of study. But when one realizes what an arduous task it is to learn one's A, B, C's in China, it is no longer a matter of surprise that studying aloud is permitted. Think of committing to memory 214 elementary characters! (These characters take the place of our alphabet, for the Chinese language has no alphabet like ours.) That is what the Chinese boys and girls must do; and that is only the beginning of trouble, for these characters are grouped together to form words, of which there are more than 50,000 in the Mongolian language. Moreover, some of these words have forty different meanings, the significance of a word varying with its inflection. Another peculiarity of the Chinese written language is that the beginning of the book corresponds to the end of one of ours, so that the pupil appears to us to begin at the end of the last line on the last page, and to be reading backward.—St. Louis Globe Democrat.

Mother—Johnny, stop using such dreadful language.

Three of Them Now Ready for Business—A Mechanism Which Rejects Light Coins—Letters Transferred to the Postman's Bag Without His Touching Them.

The latest development of the slot machine is an invention designed to make every person his own registered-letter clerk and to facilitate the forwarding of registered mail. The use of three machines has been sanctioned by the Postmaster-General, and under his orders they are to have a six-weeks' trial in New York. What may happen after that is conjecture merely, but the assumption of the inventor of the machine is that if its work is satisfactory, it will be adopted as a regular adjunct to the Post Office system.

While the machines are being put to their special test an agent of the Post Office is to be in constant attendance at each. He will explain the working of the machine to the public and see that no one tampers with the mail.

The charge for registering a letter is 8 cents in addition to the regular letter postage. The machine makes the same charge, assuming that a single 2-cent stamp is sufficient for the regular postage. Under the law a letter prepaid by one 2-cent stamp must be forwarded and any extra postage collected at the other end.

To work the machine you drop a silver United States dime into a spout at the upper right hand side. A square iron cover flies up automatically and reveals a roll of white paper. Opposite certain lines you write the name and address of the person to whom your letter is to be sent and your own name and address. At the right hand upper end of the machine is a small lever. You press this back and the letter slot in front opens and into this you drop your letter. Then you seize the handle of a big crank at the right and force it back until a bell rings. As you do this the iron cover closes and locks over the writing tablet. Now you draw forward the big lever until a bell rings. As you do this a duplicate of your writing, on a separate slip of paper, is slipped out of the machine at the left hand side and upon this paper is imprinted also the Post Office date marks, the serial number of the letter and the signature of the Postmaster. This is your receipt. Your original writing remains in the box until the letters are removed, and then it goes with them. At the same time that your receipt is printed the letter is dated.

The next thing is to get the letter to the Post Office without giving the letter carrier a chance to tamper with either the letters or the originals of the receipts. The box has a hopper bottom so constructed that it can be opened only when the mail bag is attached to it. The mail bag can't be opened, either, except in conjunction with the hopper or at the Post Office. The strip on which are written the names and addresses drops into the bag with the letters.

The dimes fall into a brass cylinder in the order in which they are dropped into the machine, and the postman, if he finds a bad one, can tell at once, by running the mover in order, which letter it belongs to. Such a letter will be held and its sender notified to pay the postage in good coin and get his bad coin back.

Aside from this, the machine is constructed to throw out bad coins, if they are under weight. When the coin first drops into the slot it goes into a delicate balance where it is weighed. If it is too much worn to be current the scale rejects it, and instead of passing into the machine and starting the posting operations, the coin drops out of a hole in the front of the machine and falls on the floor.

The inventor says he has spent three years in perfecting the machine.—New York Sun.

FOODS PRESERVED IN TIN.

Exhorbitant Prices Demanded When First Introduced in France.

The process of preserving foods in tin is of older origin than may be supposed. It was in 1841 that John Colin of Nancy, France, began the business which is now of magnitude. In 1841 a quart of turtle soup in tin put up by Colin cost $3.75; a small box of sardines, $1.25; an entire truffled salmon, $15; a beef tongue, $2; a Toulouse duck truffled, $9. Vegetables were proportionately dear. Colin carried his system much farther than is attempted at the present day. He sold in tin an entire sucking pig, for which he charged $12.50; an entire turkey for $7.50, six pounds of roast lamb for $4.25, an entire pheasant for $12.50. He had also preserved butter in tin, for which he asked 75 cents a pound.—New York Sun.

CHICAGO'S FEMALE WARING

Mrs. A. Emogene Paul's Work in Cleaning the Western City's Streets.

Mrs. A. Emogene Paul is the Hercules in petticoats who has undertaken the task of cleaning the streets of Chicago. It is the first time in the history of municipal government that a woman has been chosen for such a commission. Mrs. Paul took the contract because in the list of Civil Service eligibles her name was at the top, and Mayor Harrison reasoned that it was not far wrong to have a woman as head sweeper, anyway. He presented his plan to her. It was exactly what she wanted to do, and exactly what she thought she could do. She therefore rolled up her sleeves, tucked up her skirts, and one day startled the town by appearing on its busiest street at the head of the broom brigade.

MRS. PAUL.

There is no one in Chicago who does not think Mrs. Paul will accomplish what she has set out to do. The town has confidence in her, despite the fact that for twenty years men have failed to keep even the crosswalks passable, or the alleys better than the byways of an Indian shamble. Mrs. Paul is not a "new woman." She is plain business from the bottom of her feet to the top of her head. Her chin is pointed and her head tips back over two square shoulders. She is built like a woman who always knows her own mind. She wears a policeman's star under her jacket, and she has never hesitated to step into the middle of the road and ask the officer on the beat to stop a scavenger who was sprinkling old bustles and cans from his overloaded cart. Many a baker, making bread with rats in a basement, has been driven from business by her persistent nagging as an agent of the Health Department. She has cleaned out scores of unworthy buildings. It has never been recorded that she feared anybody, or hesitated to demand the enforcement of any ordinance calculated to keep the town clean.

This unique Commissioner of Streets is a New York woman. She was born in a little village in Monroe County, near Rochester. Her parents had plenty of money, and more. They concluded to try the West while Mrs. Paul was a young girl. They went first to Rockford, Ill., and were prosperous. Mrs. Paul—the only girl in the family—went to the seminary at Canandaigua, where she was graduated with honors, and went back to Rockford to live the peaceful life of a bright country girl on a big farm.

She was married in due course, and it was all sunshine for a long time. Then the clouds piled up with one great sweep. She lost her husband, her father, her four brothers—all in a few months. Her son followed the others. This left her without kin on earth, save her mother. She therefore decided to give her life and her energies to the good of the race in general, the poor in particular.

Mrs. Paul says she is forty-eight years old. Men who know her best will believe her. It is not wise for a weak man not to believe her. She would argue him off the earth. She rides around the main thoroughfares in an old buggy, provided by the Mayor. She has no theories on cleaning the streets other than the general proposition that "the only way to do it is to do it, and then keep it done." She meets her big gang of men each morning and night at the dump grounds. The man who has skipped a pile with his wagon gets his time and an order for his pay at once. The sweeper who has forgotten his crossing finds his head cut off. She finds the trouble with two-thirds of the men sent to her is the prevalent idea that it is a "snap" to work for the city. She will have none of this.

She—And do you love me as much as you did when we were first married?

He—Oh, more. You have become one of my habits by this time, so to speak.—Indianapolis Journal.

A PARIS SUGGESTION.

ASSOCIATE JUSTICE FIELD.

His Family a Notable One in the History of the Country.

Justice Stephen J. Field, came of New England Revolutionary stock on both sides, and was the son of David Dudley Field, a Congregational clergyman. His brothers included Cyrus W. Field, the promoter of the submarine cable; David Dudley Field, the distinguished constitutional lawyer; Henry M. Field, a well-known divine and author; Matthew W. Field, an authority in engineering; Jonathan Field, who was President of the Massachusetts Senate, and Timothy Field, a lieutenant in the United States Navy. Few families anywhere have been so conspicuous for ability. Stephen J. Field was born in Haddam, Conn., November 4, 1816, and is, therefore, 81 years old. When a child he was taken to Asia Minor by his brother-in-law, Rev. Joshua Brewer, and there learned modern Greek, Italian and French. Upon his return he entered Williams College and was graduated in 1837 with the highest honors. He was admitted to the Bar in 1841, having studied law in the office of his brother, David Dudley.

JUSTICE FIELD.

After another trip to Europe Stephen caught the gold fever in 1849 and went to San Francisco by way of Panama, arriving at the Golden Gate with $10 in his pocket. In three months he had made $25,000 by a deal in real estate options, and in 1850 he was elected to his first office, that of Alcalde, or Mayor, of Marysville. His life was frequently threatened by swaggering politicians and other bullies, and once he narrowly escaped assassination at the hands of Judge Terry. In 1857 Mr. Field was elected Judge of the Supreme Court of California and afterwards became Chief Justice. For his services as a War Democrat and his intimate knowledge of practice and procedure in Western cases, Judge Field was appointed to the Federal Supreme Bench in 1863 by President Lincoln. On the first day of December he served as Associate Justice thirty-four years, six months and ten days. He has achieved the distinction of serving longer on the Supreme Bench than any of his predecessors, the next in point of service being Chief Justice Marshall, who died in office in 1835, after a service of thirty-four years, five months and six days. As Justice Field says in his letter to his colleagues, announcing formally his retirement, he has written the decisions in 1042 cases, of which 365 were prepared while he was on the Bench in California and 37 are decisions in the Circuit Court.

Debarred by his position from entering actively in politics, Justice Field was, nevertheless, an attentive spectator. In 1876 he was one of the Democratic representatives on the Electoral Commission. In the Democratic National Convention of 1880 he received 65½ votes for the Presidential nomination.

Justice Field is noted for his knowledge of the law, his profound scholarship and his absolute fearlessness. He possesses a strong individuality and has the courage of his convictions. He has written a sketch of his experiences in California, which is as interesting as a romance. While his health has suffered from his advanced age his intellect is still keen, and, it is possible, he may while away the tedium of his retirement by writing his recollections of the Supreme Court, particularly with respect to the great issues which it dealt with during the war and reconstruction periods.

FRENCH AMBASSADOR PUNISHED.

For Marrying an American Girl Without Papa Government's Consent.

Mme. Jules Patenotre, wife of the French ambassador who has just been ordered to Madrid and deprived of his post at Washington, all because he married an American, was Miss Eleanor Elverson of Philadelphia. Her brilliant husband married her without asking the consent of his government, and now he must be punished for his rashness by being sent to Madrid. There may be some diplomats who would prefer some European capitals to Washington, but Madrid is a rather stiff sort of a place and the American embassy is a bigger prize than a Spanish mission. Mme. Patenotre is the daughter of rich parents. She was educated abroad and speaks French and German with perfect fluency. Prior to her marriage with M. Patenotre she was seen but seldom in society, and people were all the more surprised to see her step into the place of a grand dame and find herself perfectly at home. She has never made a mistake and has not a single enemy. She has the priceless faculty of never forgetting a face or a name, and as she welcomes her guests she has for each some little remark that is so purely personal as to make the person addressed feel that he is doubly welcome. Mme. Patenotre dresses gorgeously and has beautiful diamonds. Her removal to Europe will be more in the nature of a home going than of a visit to a strange place.

A LOCK OF NAPOLEON'S HAIR.

Kept in a Dark Room Forty Years That the Light May Not Injure It.

A unique souvenir of the great Napoleon is kept in the family of his old nurse and attendant, being now in the possession of Professor Bagley, of Abilene, Kan. He is a native of the island of St. Helena, and his mother was one of the intimates of the guardians of Napoleon. When the Emperor lay dying his old nurse stole to his side and clipped from his head a lock of hair. Part of the lock she gave to Mr. Bagley's mother and she gave it to her son.

It is kept in a bottle and is black and gray, with a trace of brown. For forty years the bottle has been kept in a dark room, that the hair may not be injured by the light. There are about forty strands in all. The relic is held at a great value by the possessor. He has also some cloth from the coffin, a medal given by Napoleon and some other minor souvenirs from the island of St. Helena.

The only other portion of the body of Napoleon known to be on this continent is a single hair that Richard Watson Gilder once owned. He kept it in his watch case. When the watch was repaired he forgot to tell the jeweller of the precious contents. When he went to get it he asked: "Did you find anything in the case?"

"Yes," replied the workman, "there was a hair in there, but it is all right now—I blew it out."

"You blew out a piece of Napoleon Bonaparte," said the editor of the Century—New York Journal.

The Czar Spoke English.

Maj. Alfred Mordecai once had an interview with the Czar of Russia, of a somewhat informal and conversational nature, in the course of which he used the address "Monsieur" in speaking to the Emperor, having carried the interview forward, so far, in French, says the Jewish Messenger. Turning to Gen. McClellan, who stood near by, Maj. Mordecai suddenly exclaimed with a mighty and deep Carolinian oath: 'Ma! I called the fellow mister.' The Czar thereupon smiled, bowed, and said with a civility that entered the Major's bones like ice: "I speak English quite well enough, sir, to continue our interview in that language, if you prefer it!"

Onions as a Germ Destroyer.

The wonderful faculty which onions possess of absorbing disease germs ought to be written in letters of gold before the eyes of every householder. Merely hanging in a net, onions will purify an apartment. Especially in cases of small pox and diphtheria they have great power. A dish of raw onions sliced and set in the sick room will draw away the disease. As their odor gives out they should be burned and replaced by fresh ones. For its great medicinal and useful properties the onion merits more particular study.

LINCOLN'S TOMB.

ITS PRESENT CONDITION A DISGRACE TO ILLINOIS.

The Money to Build the Monument Contributed by the People, and the Trust Given In Charge of the City of Springfield—A Sorry Spectacle.

Lincoln's tomb is a monument of disgrace to Illinois. A spirit of tasteful pride is fast making Springfield one of the most beautiful of State capitals. The magnificent building which houses the government was in the days of approaching completion described as a palace in a cornfield. Since then the city surrounding has been improved to worthiness of the setting. With paved streets, well shaded, a look of general thrift in the business center and long vistas of pretty homes in well-kept grounds, it now corresponds to a noble Capitol which has no superior in massive symmetry and in convenient adaptation to its purposes, and is exceeded in liberal expenditure by only one other building of the kind, that at Albany. Springfield is an honor to the State. But in strange contrast to all else that commands admiration is the condition of the tomb. Illinois assumed a sacred trust when the question of the disposition of the remains of the martyred President was settled. That trust has not been kept. A correspondent of the St. Louis Globe-Democrat, writing from Springfield, says that the friends of Lincoln feel the neglect keenly. They are anxious to see public sentiment aroused and the Legislature reminded of its duty. There is neither defense nor explanation of the neglect. When the custodian opens the grated doors and takes the visitors into first the crypt and then the memorial chamber, his introductory words are regretful. In the crypt the plaster has fallen from the arched roof, and, more than that, gaping crevices have opened in the brick masonry. A little more of this inattention and the roof will cave down upon the floor under which, covered by concrete, are the caskets of President and Mrs. Lincoln.

On the other side of the burial crypt the memorial room is in scarcely better condition. With every rain the water comes through the vaulted roof. It has blackened and stained ceiling and walls. It has made a great blotch of the once bright colors of the coat of arms. Prevailing dampness has mildewed and rusted the none too numerous relics. In this chamber are kept the surveying instruments Lincoln as a young man used, the gun which failed to save the life of his grandfather in Kenutcky when an Indian crept upon him at work on his farm, the great book in which every child in the public schools of Philadelphia wrote his or her name attached to the expression of sorrow at the time of death. The stone tablet which the Romans sent from the walls of the Eternal City to commemorate emancipation, likening the act of Lincoln to that of one of the early Emperors who freed the slaves, is in the chamber. The bronze bust of William the Silent, who also died by assassination, has a place. The walls are covered with the memorials forwarded from all parts of the country. For such a collection of historical value the State is not manifesting sufficient care to keep the rain out.

The tomb cost $270,000. This money the most of it, was raised by voluntary contributions. Large sums came from the troops in the field, single companies contributing several hundred dollars. It is little enough that Illinois should maintain the granite pile in a state of tolerable repair. On the outside the cement has dropped from between the courses, and many of the blocks are out of line. Even the approaching walk is cracked and broken and uneven.

One might suppose that with such a number of visitors to the tomb there would be no difficulty in reaching it. Yet the car line by which the mile and more of distance from the business center is made does not run to the place, but stops in a park where refreshments stands, a dancing pavilion and the usual inducements to local patronage are conspicuous. From the end of the track a cinder path winds down the hill. There a dusty road is crossed. A gate admits to the cemetery. By a walk up the valley past the stone vault where the body was at first deposited, the way is over the slope where more people stood on that day when the nation mourned than have ever been gathered in the Illinois capital city since. The tomb, square and squat, a hollow stone tower rising from the center, is on the crest of a gentle slope with a reservation of nine or ten acres of sward and trees about it. On one side stands a neat stone house, the abode of the custodian. The grounds are well kept. The site is beautiful. Only the condition of the tomb prompts the feeling of regret. Lincoln belonged to the nation. His resting place should have been the nation's care, if his State can be so forgetful.

The two men team bowling tournament will conclude on Ulrich's alleys on the evening of February 8th.

Special arrangements will be made at the Park Club this evening to accommodate the members and their families who may wish to witness the match between the bowling team of the Park Club and the team from the Roselle Casino. The attendance at the preceding games has been steadily increasing, so a large and enthusiastic crowd is expected tonight.

A two-men team bowling tournament will open on the alleys of the Plainfield Catholic Club this evening. There are seven teams entered and each is absolutely sure of winning, so considerable interest is taken in the practical manifestation of who is right. Each team will roll three games with each other team, making eighteen games for each team to roll in all. There will be four or five games rolled every evening until the tournament is completed.

The Parks will be represented in their match with the Roselle Casinos this evening by their strongest team. Captain Fred C. Ball will be on hand as usual. He is rolling well this year and stands high in the individual average list. "Doc" Thiers is the veteran of the team always to be counted on. His son, William J. R. Thiers, has inherited "Doc's" ability and will also roll. George Worth is one of the Park's old standbys. He's back in Plainfield again and has resumed his position on the Park Club team. Mr. Hibbard is the only new man on the team. He has, however, already, proved in the previous games of the season, that he is perfectly qualified to stand with a championship team.

The long-expected series of games between the Park Club and the Roselle Casinos in the Central Journal Bowling League will be rolled this evening on the Park Club alleys. On these three games will largely depend the Parks chances to be first in the League. Roselle is now first, but by not such a large margin but that persistent work can reduce it. The Parks stand second in line. If the Parks can't win on their own alleys from Roselle then it is hardly possible that they can win the tournament. Victory for the Parks will reduce the Roselle's lead and prove that the Parks are the better after all. This is the first year for some time that the Parks have managed to stay so near the top at this season, and it is to be hoped that they will hold the pace they have been setting and win out the first honors in the league. It's nearly time that Plainfield had them.

MAYOR WILL TRY MORAL SUASION ON KRAUSSE.

COMPLAINTS ABOUT HIGH FENCE.

Vine Street Neighbors Declare it a Public Nuisance and Ask His Honor to Intercede.

Mayor Wilson, of North Plainfield, is in receipt of several letters from residents of Vine street who are indignant over the action of C. W. Krausse, of 25 Vine street, in building an eighteen feet high board fence between his house and that owned by Mrs. Louisa Rieck next door.

The structure is an unsightly one, and the neighbors assert that it is a public nuisance. They have written Mayor Wilson to intercede in their behalf and endeavor to prevail upon Krausse to remove it immediately.

Mayor Wilson called at Kausse's house after attending church yesterday noon and proposed to use moral suasion with him, as the Mayor realizes that Krausse has a legal right to keep the fence standing if he so wills, but he failed to find Krausse at home. The Mayor was compelled to go out of town today, but tomorrow he will pay a visit to Krausse and endeavor to prevail upon him to tear down the unsightly fence, which is claimed to deteriorate the value of land in that vicinity.

BASKET BALL.

Manager George Fuller, of the Plainfield Y. M. C. A. basket ball team, announces a game in the local gymnasium for this evening. The visiting team will be the Olympic basket ball team of Brooklyn. The game gins at 8:15 o'clock. Owing to the recent changes which will only allow a limited number of spectators to witness the game from the visitors gallery, the visitors are advised to come early so as to be sure of a seat.

Borough Board of Education Award Contract for Seats.

The regular monthly meeting of the North Plainfield Board of Education was held Saturday night instead of tonight for the accommodation of one or two members. The regular monthly budget of bills was ordered paid together with the contracts on the new school building.

The contract was awarded the Grand Rapids Furniture Co., of Grand Rapids, Michigan, for furnishing and seating the new school. There were were bids from three or four other furniture companies, but the committee decided upon the Grand Rapids Co. The total cost of furnishing the new building will probably not be over $650.

Thirteen applicants for the position of janitor to the new school were present and were examined by the board. A decision will be arrived at and one employed at the next meeting.

Medical Skill of No Avail.

She came to Plainfield to receive the proper treatment for her troubles, but the best of medical skill was baffled in efforts to restore health. The deceased is survived by one son, who is married and is engaged in the milk business. The funeral services will be held Wednesday afternoon next at 2 o'clock from the house, No. 529 West Front street.

An attempt was made Saturday evening to enter the bicycle house in the rear of the residence of Mr. DuBois, of Putnam avenue. Several wheels were stored there. At Music Hall tonight, the Stetson "Uncle Tom's Cabin" company appear in the play of that name, made famous the world over by the plaudits of innumerable thousands of theatre goers and the endorsement of press, public and lights of the literary world in general. No play ever presented to the American public caused greater sensation or acheived such great marked success, and the Stetson company is said to be the very best organization that has performed same. It has the endorsement of Mrs. Harriett Beecher Stowe, the authoress of the story and the celebrated Robert G. Ingersoll says of it: "One cannot help but wonder why it is that 'Uncle Tom's Cabin' by the Stetson company always proves a drawing card, and yet there is nothing very wonderful about it, when once the plot and presentation of this realistic drama is taken into consideration. We have read 'Uncle Tom's Cabin' as many as twenty times, and always with obsorbing interest and so, too, we have seen it presented on the stage forty times, and it seems as if we enjoy the last better than any previous rendition." There are some plays like "Uncle Tom" and "Rip VanWinkle" that will never wear out. There is about the plot of "Uncle Tom's Cabin" a combination of drama, comedy, wit, humor and pathos, all blended so naturally and realistic—that the audience lives through it all, become part of the players on the stage and have their sympathies aroused to a degree that makes them feel as if they were witnessing a real drama of every day life. There will be a free concert in front of Music Hall tonight.

The announcement that Viola Allen will end her long New York run in "The Christian" at the Garden Theatre Saturday evening, March 4th., and go to the Boston Museum for a spring engagement March 6th, greatly stimulated her already phenomenal advance sale of seats, which may now be secured up to the end of her time in New York. The people of New York and vicinity have but four weeks more in which to see this talented young actress as "Glory Quayle" in "The Christian." She will never again appear in this character in New York. Her route next season will include practically but seven of the larger cities of the country. The scenario of the new piece which she will produce in New York in the fall of 1900 has been accepted by Liebler & Company, her managers. The author requires a year to complete the play, which will be a novelty both in story, incidents and scenes.

PLAINFIELD WON AT HOCKEY.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Elizabeth, January 30.—An exciting hockey game was played on a pond at East Elizabeth, Saturday afternoon, between seven men teams from the Plainfield A. A. and the Elizabeth Club. Plainfield was short two men and their places were filled by local players. Plainfield finally won by a score of 6 goals to 0

The play was rough and hard, several players being laid out. A rubber "puck" was used. The score stood 2 to 0 in favor of Plainfield at the end of the first half. The second half was particularly marked for the rough playing in which Plainfield managed to come out ahead.

KEPT MARRIAGE A SECRET.

A New Jersey Volunteer and Miss Carrie Hamilton Wedded in October.

News has just reached the friends of the young couple that Edward F. Williams and Miss Carrie Hamilton are man and wife, and have been married since Oct. 12th, 1898. They live in Somerville and the bridegroom is a member of the Third New Jersey regiment, now in camp at Athens, Ga.

While the regiment was stationed at Pompton Lakes in October, Williams received a furlough. On the night of October 12th he and Miss Hamilton, to whom he had been paying attention for some time, went to New Brunswick by trolley and proceeded to the parsonage of St. James' Methodist church.

Tip, the Bootblack, Gets His Liberty.

"Tip" Thompson, the colored bootblack, who was sentenced about two years ago to serve a term in State's Prison for attempting to kill his wife, has completed his sentence and is now in Plainfield again. He will probably locate here permanently.

GROOM LOST THE KEY.

Egbert Scribner Had a Peculiar Mishap After Being Married.

Miss Sarah Taynor, of Stelle place and Egbert Scribner, of 144 Duer street, accompanied by Mr. Scribner's son, A. Scribner and wife, as witnesses, called at the home of Rev. George Hauser, of Duer street, last evening, and were united in the bonds of matrimony. The ceremony was a simple one and was very impressive. After the wedding the couple adjourned to the home of the groom, where an informal reception was held.

An unfortunate circumstance in connection with the affair was that fact that after the groom had rewarded the minister for his services, he lost his pocketbook centaining money and the key to the trunk which contained many belongings of the bride and groom. It was found necessary to break the trunk open by forcible means, for the owners could not wait to seach for the key. Mr. and Mrs. Scribner will reside at 144 Duer street, where everything has been laid prepared for their comfort.

DUAL CONTEST IN ATHLETICS ARRANGED.

Plainfield and New Brunswick Y. M. C. A's. Schedule.

TO BE HELD IN THIT CITY.

THERE WILL BE FIVE EVENTS TO BE CONTESTED.

Each Association Will be Represented by a Team of Three Men—Probable Candidates Named—Gymnastic Contest to Follow at New Brunswick—Banner With Names of Winning Team to go to Victors.

A dual indoor athletic contest between the members of the Plainfield and New Brunswick Y. M. C. A.'s is one of the scheduled happenings for the month of February at the local Y. M. C. A. gymnasium. While such a contest has been under consideration for some time, definite arrangements were completed yesterday by the physicial directors of the two associations at an informal meeting held at the office of C. E. A. Heywood, the local physical director.

The date of the contest is still uncertain but it will be held sometime during the middle of February at Plainfield. It is to be followed later in March by a dual gymnastic contest at New Brunswick.

There will be five events, two to be selected by each association and the other to be agreed upon. Plainfield has selected the running high jump and the standing broad jump, and New Brunswick putting the shot and the hop, step and jump. The other event will probably be the running high kick. Each association will be represented by a team of three men all of whom will enter each event. Points will be scored according to the schedule given in the Association Athletic League Handbook.

Regarding the two dual contests, it was agreed that the home association will take all the gate receipts and pay the expenses of the visiting team while the two associations will share the cost of the banner which will be awarded the winning team. The names of the members of the victorious team will be placed on the banner.

Plainfield's team of three will be chosen from among the following: George Proctor Smith, William Townsend, Eric Moraller, Walter L. Long, Raymond M. Carroll, Berry Egan and F. O. Bristol. As soon as the date of the first contest is settled, the candidates will begin practicing the events selected and will get in good condition for the contest. The New Brunswick Association has the advantage of being able to draw from some of the best athletes in Rutgers College. Two of their three men will probably be from the college.

The dual gymnastic contest will be held at the New Brunswick gymnasium. The details have not yet been fixed and will largely depend on the success of the first contest.

PRIZES ON EXHIBITION.

Daily Press Premiums to be Shown in Woodhull & Martin's Window.

The prizes to be awarded in The Daily Press subscription contest will be placed on exhibition tomorrow in the central show-window of Woodhull & Martin's big store in the Babcock building, West Front street. There will be the diplomas from the two schools, the Plainfield Business College and the Gregg School of Stenography, and the Webster's International Dictionary.

The contest still progresses with very gratifying results. The young people entered are working hard, and every day adds to the number of new subscribers brought in. The contest is less than half through as yet, and there are lots of chances of changes to be made in the order of contestants.

Their Fifth Anniversary.

Lucetta Council, No. 28, D. of L., is preparing for the celebration of their fifth anniversary, April 12th. A committee consisting of B. W. Hand, N. H. Guttman and W. W. Stratton has been appointed and have the matter in charge.

The exercises will consist of a short programme, after which there will be dancing. National and State officers are expected to be there. Two prizes are offered, a gold watch and chain, and a camera, which will be contested for.

To Try Right of Property.

Three months ago Wallace Coriell swore out an attachment against Charles Lines for a bill he owed him for $40. When the constable went to sell the goods, Mrs. Caroline Chapot claimed the goods, so Thursday afternoon a jury will be called by Justice Mosher to try the right of property. The goods consist of a wagon, a few lampe etc.

O'KEEFE'S EXPERIENCE READS LIKE ROMANCE

How Miss Helen Gould Became Interested in a Soldier.

VISITED HIM PERSONALLY.

THE HEIRESS CARRIED OUT DYING WISHES TO THE LETTER.

His Forlorn Manner Attracted Miss Gould's Representative as She was Passing Along Seventh Avenue One Day—The Sick Soldier Sent to Miss Gould's Home on the Hudson to Recover His Health.

In connection with the death of John O'Keefe, a private in the 201st N. Y. Vols., whose interment took place in this city yesterday, there is a touching story. All honor is due Miss Helen M. Gould, whose kindly acts and at times personal attention made the last days of Private O'Keefe as comfortable as possible. He was cared for just as much as any soldier of higher rank.

The story of this soldier is, indeed, a pathetic one. It was early in November last that Private O'Keefe stood at the corner of Third avenue and Fifteenth street one day. He was then cold and suffering with troubles contracted at Camp Mead. As he stood on the corner he was approached by Mrs. Robert Sullivan, who is the representative of Miss Helen M. Gould in her work among the soldiers.

Mrs. Sullivan addressed the young man and inquired if he was ill or was in need of anything. By a glance Mrs. Sullivan noticed that the soldier was suffering, and she at once took him to Camp Walroth, which place was opened sometime ago by Mrs. Walroth, of Fifteenth street, New York. The soldier was then placed under the charge of Dr. Gallant and his wife, who attend to the soldiers brought there. He seemed to improve at Camp Walrcth and on Thanksgiving Day he partook of a hearty dinner with the other soldiers. After that he began to grow weaker, and at the request of Miss Gould he was transferred to her home at Nyack on the Hudson, where every wish was granted in the hopes that he might recover. Mr. O'Keefe did not appear to be one desiring charity, and often said that he wanted work and was anxious to do something. In view of this fact Mrs. Sullivan personally interviewed Mr. Swan, of the Manhattan Street Railway Company, and secured a place for him on the surface railway, which place he was to take as soon as he got well.

While Mr. O'Keefe was at Nyack he was failing gradually, until it was deemed best to remove him to the Presbyterian Hospital in New York. It was there that he spent his last days and died. He was a person of rare patience and his last days exemplified to a large degree a beautiful character and disposition. While at the hospital he was personally visited by Miss Gould and frequently she sent him flowers.

Towards the last arrangements had been made to move the patient to the Home for Consumptives in Brooklyn, and when Mr. O'Keefe was spoken to about the change he suggested that they wait a few days so that he could go in a carriage, as he had a particular dread of ambulances. The request was granted, but the attending physician, Dr. Fisher, informed those in charge that the patient was too ill to be moved and that he would not live long. In a few days he grew rapidly worse, until the end came last Saturday morning. When the nurse left him Friday night she left medicine for him to take, but he was unable to take it. The last words he spoke was to the nurse that went on duty Saturday morning. He asked her to apologize to the night nurse for him because he had been unable to take his medicine.

After Mr. O'Keefe's death Miss Gould instructed her assistant, Mrs. Sullivan, who is Miss Gould's sole representative in the work of the Woman's War Relief Committee work, to see that all expense of burial was provided for. This was done, and Miss Gould stood the expense. Mr. O'Keefe's dying request was that the G. A. R. Post, of this city, bury him, and this was done yesterday.

Mrs. Sullivan, accompanied by Mrs. Dr. Porter, of New York, came to Plainfield yesterday afternoon and attended the services. Mrs. Sullivan brought with her a large and beautiful bunch of roses from Miss Gould, which were laid on the casket, and a beautiful silk American flag, the gift of Mrs. Dr. Porter, was also laid on the casket. The remains were at A. M. Runyon's undertaking parlors until 3 o'clock where friends were able Music Furnished by Waldorf-Astoria Musicians—Programme Was Made Up of Waltzes and Two Steps—The Gentlemen Who Formed the Committee That Was in Charge—The Subscribers.

The second subscription dance given by the society people of Plainfield this year took place in the Casino of the Union County Country Club last night. There were about 175 subscribers to the dance and a great number of those were present. The dance was one of the leading social functions of the season.

The Casino was void of any elaborate decorations, but presented a comfortable and homelike appearance with its settees placed here and there, fancy sofa pillows thrown down carelessly in this corner or that, and its cozy little nooks formed by the grouping of palms. Over the electric light globes was wound red gauze, and a dim light was thrown over the scene, giving everything and everybody a reddish cast.

Wack, of the Waldorf Astoria, of New York, furnished the music for dancing, which was kept up until a late hour. No set dances were danced, nothing but waltzes and two steps. The musicians were seated on the stage and that left a larger space for dancing. The supper was in charge of Steward Stutter, of the Union County Country Club. The committee in charge of the dance consisted of Edward T. Wilson, Dr. Frank C. Ard, Francis A. Cokefair, Clifford W. McGee, Thomas R. VanBoskerck and O. G. Waring.

Among the subscribers to the dance, many of whom were present, were Mr. and Mrs. Charles Brooks, Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Kaufman, Mr. and Mrs. E. T. VanBuren, Mr. and Mrs. M. S. Ackerman, Mr. and Mrs. L. PRESIDENT ELLIOTT'S VIEWS.

He Does Not See Any Wrong in Sunday Driving or Bicycle Riding.

Dr. Lewis has returned from Boston, where he attended the annual meeting of the "New England Sabbath Protective League" Sunday evening last. The Boston papers report that President Elliott, of Harvard University, surprised the members of the league by saying that "He rejoices to see people riding on bicycles or driving for pleasure on Sunday." He advised the league not to interfere with such pleasure seeking on Sunday as he does not deem it wrong to do this. The papers interpret President Elliott's position as a blow at the league, which supports a more puritanical type of Sunday observance. His position gives great weight to his words.

—All of the looms for the establishment of the local silk mill have arrived and the work of setting them up is progressing favorably.

WEDS A BROOKLYN GIRL.

The Bride is Miss Ida Core—Ceremony Performed at the Home of the Bride's Parents—Couple to Go South.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Brooklyn, January 31.—A very quiet wedding will take place this afternoon at 4 o'clock, when Miss Ida Core, daughter of Francis R. Core, of 55 Felix avenue, this city, will be united in marriage to Frederick Sandford, of Plainfield, at the bride's home. The ceremony will be performed by Rev. Charles W. Homer, rector of St. James P. E. church, and will be witnessed by Mrs. Charles Sandford and Percy Sandford, mother and brother of the groom, of Plainfield; Mr. and Mrs. Metcalf, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Wetreau, Francis R. Core and Frank Core, of Brooklyn. The two latter are the father and brother of the bride.

An informal reception will follow the wedding after which Mr. and Mrs. Sandford will leave for North Caorlina and Florida, where they will spend the winter. On their return they will go to Maine, where they will spend next summer. They have not yet decided just where they will permanently reside.

The bride is one of the most popular young women of the City of Churches.

FOLLOWED A SHORT CUT AND FELL INTO CISTERN.

BAD PLIGHT OF SCOTCH PLAINS BOY.

He was Rescued After Being Imprisoned for Sometime in Four Feet of Cold Water.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Scotch Plains, Jan. 31—Harry, the young son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Brown, of Westfield avenue, met with an accident yesterday that might have proved fatal. It has been the custom for years for the young people to go skating on Hoppell's pond and as Monday was good skating weather a number of the young folks journeyed to the pond for an afternoon's sport. Among them was Harry, who kept skating until nearly 6 o'clock.

Then taking off his skates he prepared to go home, and took a short cut through Mr. Happell's yard. While walking along in the dark he stepped into a large cistern, the cover having be left off Harry plunged into about four feet of cold icy water. No one had seen the accident, but the boy's shouts finally aroused the family who at first were unable to locate the sound, when it was found to proceed from the cistern. A rope was let down and the boy was drawn up nearly dead with the cold. Last night Harry had experienced no further ill effects from his unvoluntary bath, and it is hoped he will not.

FATAL HEMORRHAGES.

Colored Man Found in an Unconscious Condition in a Barn.

Peter Scudder, colored, aged 45 years, an employee of TenEyck & Harris, coal dealers on Clinton avenue, was taken ill last week Friday with inward hemorrhages and died at his home, 528 West Third street Sunday afternoon. Dr. Clawson was called to treat Scudder, but medical skill was of no avail.

Scudder, when taken ill, went in a barn on the premises where he was working and was found sometime later in an unconscious condition. He was taken care of and after a while he regained consciousness. A report became prevalent that he had frozen to death, but this is not so. The funeral services will be held from the late house tomorrow.

AGAINST THE MORMON.

Local Endeavorers Do Not Want Roberts Seated in Congress.

An executive meeting of the Plainfield local union of Christian Endeavor was held last night at the home of the president, Miss F. G Hawkins, of La Granne avenue. Reports were received from the presidents of the various local societies, and a letter has been forwarded from the president of the local union to Congressman Fowler, protesting against the seating of Congressman-elect Roberts, of Utah.

The president was given power to appoint a committee to arrange for the annual meeting of the union in March. Before that meeting is held, however, a public conference will be held which will be of interest to Plainfield Endeavorers. The executive meeting closed with a social hour and refreshments.

Constantly Enlarging.

Woodhull & Martin state in their advertisement of today that they are enlarging and improving their carpet department. PARKS TAKE THREE FROM THE ROSELLE'S.

Race In Central Journal Bowling League Grows Close.

ROSELLE STILL IN LEAD.

BUT THE PARK CLUB MADE A BIG JUMP LAST NIGHT.

Games Were Rolled on the Park Club Alleys Before a Large Crowd—Parks Rolled Over 600 in Every Game—The Roselle's Powerful Hoodoo—Her Scores Were Remarkably Poor—The Scores.

Alas for the far-famed prowess of the Roselle Casino bowlers. It wasn't of any account when they ran up against the delightful little hoodoo that the Park Clubites had ready for them last evening. The team from Roselle, leaders in the Central Journal League, came to the Park Club alleys last night, rolled three games and lost them all by margins ranging from 48 to 180 pins. It was a veritable Waterloo for the Roselle boys.

Now the addition of three games to the "won" column of the Parks and three to the "lost" column of Roselle doesn't make any change in the order of the clubs in the League but it does wipe out Roselle's big lead and leaves the situation so that another series of three games may change the order.

It was conceded that with three victories from Roselle, the Park's chances for an intimate first in the League were very rosy. So it was that the games of last evening were watched with particul interest, not in Plainfield and Roselle alone but by the other towns represented in the League.

The Roselle team came up with the intention of carrying all before them. They had their regular team that has been doing such great work and were prepared to make the best showing possible. Now it is confidently told about the club that Former Mayor B. Arrowsmith Hegeman, Jr., president of the club was so anxious that the Parks should win that he returned to Plainfield early last night and hunted out the old hoodoo that he had used so successfully against the Bachelors of the club. This he turned loose on the the visitors.

Whether it was the hoodoo or not it cannot be stated with accuracy. It was evident from the start that something ailed the Roselles. There were splits innumerable, and when they did have a chance to hit the pins they failed many times. It was only by the narrowest margain that they managed to get 700 in the first game. The Parks, meantime, went on alone and amused each other by upsetting the pins in great form. The Parks were only 107 pins ahead at the end.

Next game was even worse. Shangle actually failed to score an even 100. The Parks were sailing on ahead with strikes and spares galore. The finish caused the visitors to blush with shame.

The last game saw some excitement. The visitors picked up and actually started out to overhaul the Parks. The latter were only eleven pins ahead at one time, but they braced up and finished in fine form, "Doc" Thiers winding up with three strikes.

At the close of the game, the admirers of George Worth presented him with a handsome bouquet of flowers. He was immediately hoisted up on a chair and from his lofty position bowed and smiled his thanks.

The scores were as follows:

ELABORATE PLANS FOR THE HOSPITAL.

Modern Structures Proposed for Community Sick Rooms.

BOARD OF GOVERNORS ACT.

THEY WILL DEFINITELY DECIDE ABOUT IT NEXT MONTH.

Plans for a Magnificent Institution Drawn by Architect Barlowe and Presented to the Governors Last Night — Descriptions of the Proposed Changes — First Cost $25,000.

The terrible disaster on the Lehigh Valley Railroad at West Dunellen and the subsequent transportation of its many victims to the Muhlenberg Hospital has brought prominently before the people of Plainfield the great need of an increase in the facilities at the hospital. Thanks to excellent management, the hospital authorities have been able to answer all demands made on them at this crisis. The fact still remains and is now plainly in evidence that the work of the hospital has outgrown its present accommodations and an addition is urgently needed.

The interested members of the Board of Governors of the hospital long ago realized the situation and seen that the time would soon come when it would be necessary to enlarge the present accommodations. A year ago a committee, of which Former Mayor Charles J. Fisk was made chairman, was appointed to consider the subject and ascertain just what alterations and additions would be necessary to bring the hospital to the required position. Plans were submitted and the matter duly considered when it was deemed expedient to postpone the subject owing to the outbreak of the war with Spain. With the close of the war, the opening of a season of prosperity, and a sensational disaster right at the very doors of those interested, the committee thought this a favorable opportunity to bring the matter before the Board of Governors for action.

The regular monthly meeting of the Board was held at the Public Library last evening when the committee report was presented by its chairman, Former Mayor Fish.

Before taking any definite action on the subject it was decided by the Board to make an appeal to the community for the means to put up the new buildings. The committee undertook to report at the next monthly meeting regarding the prospect of raising the money. Definite action will then be taken as to the beginning of the work.

The plans, which were submitted by the committee, were quite elaborate and highly approved by expert judgment. They involve an ultimate expenditure of a considerable amount, looking toward the continual growth of the city and the necessity of adequate hospital accommodations. It is the purpose of the Board that the work should be undertaken in a way to utilize the present plant and not interfere with the working of the present hospital.

The most essential part of the new plant will be built first, and after a scheme which admits of indefinite growth as may be required. The building will go forward in a way to meet the necessities of the situation.

The final and completed scheme provides a central administration building, flanked on either side by and connected with a service building and its related wards, one wing being for men and the opposite one for women, connected throughout by corridors into one system. The wings for men and women are alike in arrangement, each consisting of a service building and its connected twin ward building.

The first idea in planning the wards is to place them in the freest play of sun and air possible on the site. The wards are to be simply large, sunny, airy rooms, containing no plumbing, heating or other practical fixture and with high curved ceilings. They are to be built on arches, open, except in winter, over concreted surface beneath and to be separated by a quiet lobby from all traffic and the necessary noises of the service building adjoining, just across the main corridor.

In the basement of the service building, there is to be a kitchen and pantry and the heating, disinfecting and clothes storage rooms. On the first floor, or ward level, there is to be an examination room to be used also for dressing and for minor operations. Opposite will be the baths and toilets and beyond the linen and drug rooms, a special or children's ward of three beds and a dining room for convales-

MR. MURRAY'S VOICE HEARD ONCE AGAIN.

Plainfield Assemblyman Speaks For Contractor's Protection.

HIS MOTION WAS DEFEATED

IT SOUGHT TO CHANGE A BILL FATHERED BY MR MUNGLE.

The Measure Prohibits Any But Citizens of the United States From Being Employed on Public Works in the State—State Claims the Honor of Planting First Flag on the Cuban Soil.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Trenton, Jan. 31—The Legislature did not weary itself with public business last night, but after pushing along a bill or two and receiving a few more, took a recess till this morning. In the House the bill prohibiting the employment of any but citizens of the United States upon public works came up on second reading, and Mr. Murray, of Plainfield, offered an amendent to exempt contractors from the provisions of the act. Mr. Mungle, the father of the measure, opposed the motion, and it was defeated on a viva voce vote. The committee to which the bill was referred after its introduction struck out the provision that only citizens of New Jersey should be employed on the public works. Mr. Mungle consented to this action, and with this alteration alone the bill passed second reading and will probably come up on final passage tomorrow.

The following resolution offered by Leader McKee was adopted: "Whereas, this House of Assembly is honered by having among its employes Herbert Matts, late seaman on board the United States auxiliary cruiser Badger, who served his country with honor during the recent hostilities with Spain, having valiantly been the leader of a party of New Jersey sailors to land at Piedras, on the north coast of Cuba, and having put the garrison to flight, hoisted the Stars and Stripes over the fortification, thereby winning for New Jersey the distinction of being of the first to plant the American flag, the emblem of liberty, on Cuban soil; therefore, resolved, that this House of Assembly hereby express its pride and pleasure in having Mr. Matts among its employes and extends to him and the people of New Jersey its congratulations."

The Senate adopted an Assembly concurrent resolution providing for an investigation into the present system of engrossing bills, with a view of abolishing it.

A bill providing for the licensing of expert accountants practicing in the State was introduced by Mr. Ketcham. It creates a board of three examiners to examine accountants, the first examiners to be Isaac A. Lewis, of Paterson; Richard F. Stevens and Frank M. Scott, of Newark, or such other "qualified public accountants, residents of and practicing in the State, as the Governor may select."

Game bills were in evidence at last night's session. One, introduced by Senator Hutchinson, makes the open season for hare, rabbits, quail, woodcock and ruffed grouse between November 10 and December 10; for gray snipe during March, April and September, and for squirrels during September and from November 10 to December 10. Another bill, by Mr. Stokes, makes it unlawful for three years to take any ring-necked pheasant, and for five years to take any wild deer.

Senator Hutchinson introduced a bill which, if enacted into law, will give the members of the Boards of Freeholders in Mercer, Camden, Monmouth, Union and Passaic counties $300 a year instead of $150, as at present. It fixes the pay of the Director at $500. This is all the compensation the members are to receive.

It Was Not Sutterlin Before the Mayor.

Mayor Wilson desires The Daily Press to state that it was not Gustav Sutterlin who appeared before him last Sunday morning regarding violation of the laws at the bottling establishment on Greenbrook road, but another man who has been running Mr. Sutterlin's place for sometime.

His Honor Took a Tumble.

Early this morning while Mayor Rockfellow was passing in front of the Coward building on Park avenue his feet slipped on a pair of iron doors, causing His Honor to take a tumble. The fall did not result in any injuries.

Boy "Preacher" Tonight.

Lawrence Denis, the boy "preacher," will appear in the Filmore Baptist church on Sycamore street this evening. This is the boy that created so much comment in Yew York and various New Jersey towns.

LET US ARM YOU!

It's quite necessary, because while Uncle Sam is settling scores with the Spaniards you're bound to have a little brush at home at the same time, and there's nothing like being ready for emergencies. Until you can sign a perpetual truce with sun, wind and storm, your house and other buildings will need to be fortified with paint, and ours are like a 20-inch chilled steel armor.

MORE PROTESTS FILED

Agoncillo Argues Exhaustively Against Ratification.

THIS IS NOT AN ULTIMATUM

Filipino Says Insurrection Still Existed When Our War With Spain Was Declared—His Countrymen Want Complete Independence.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 31.--Sixto Lopez, secretary to Agoncillo, the Philippine representative, called at the state department yesterday afternoon and left with the chief clerk another communication addressed to the secretary of state, protesting against the attitude of our government toward the Filipino "republic."

The terms of the protest do not go as far as an ultimatum. The same fate awaits this communication as that which befel its predecessor—it will be diplomatically ignored.

Accompanying the communication is a long memorial, addressed to the Senate, containing a comprehensive argument in opposition to the ratification of the treaty, and which the envoy asks the president to send to that body. The letter of transmittal contains more than the mere request, but Agoncillo feels that he is bound by courtesy not to make it public until an opportunity is had by the state department officials to make a reply.

The memorial to the Senate is a long document, both historical and argumentative in character, and says this government has no jurisdiction, natural or acquired, through any of its agencies, to adjudicate in any manner upon the rights of the Philippine country and its people. He refers to "the historical fact that a large number of my countrymen have never been subdued by Spanish power; that the remainder, because of their adhesion to the cause of liberty, have been in almost constant insurrection against the government of Spain; these conflicts existing continuously with greater or less fury for the last hundred years."

The impression, he continues, has been created in America that at the time of the declaration of war between America and Spain the Philippine revolution no longer existed. He quotes from communications from Consul General Williams at Manila and Mr. Pratt, as a result of which Agoncillo says that "without additional authority it must be evident to your honorable body that an extensive revolution existed in the Philippine islands at the time of the declaration of war by America against Spain."

The purpose of the Filipinos in conducting this revolution was, it is asserted, to obtain the complete independence of their country, and in this effort they received the encouragement of the United States and were never informed that the obtaining and preservation of such independence would be regarded as a hostile act by America, and they never believed that their struggle in such a cause would lead to enormous aggregations of American armies and navies at their doors.

Return of the 69th Regiment.

New York, Jan. 31.--The Sixty-ninth regiment, United States volunteers, returning from duty in southern army camps, arrived in this city yesterday afternoon.

The first section of the train reached the West Shore Railroad station in Weehawken at about 3.30 o'clock in the afternoon. The soldiers were enthusiastically received by a large crowd of friends and by representatives of the National Irish Society.

The other two sections of the train arrived at 4 and 4.05 o'clock respectively.

The entire regiment then formed in line at the station and proceeded to the foot of Franklin street by ferry boat.

From Franklin street along the line of march, a thickening crowd lined the streets. This crowd swelled out into a huge mass at the city Hall Park, in which, as early as nine o'clock, the police were almost lost to sight. It was in the park that the feature of the parade, the review by the mayor and heads of departments and invited guests occurred and the crowd came early to get a good place.

All along the line of march, which was an extended one, the regiment was greeted by great crowds. Broadway was quite a bower of the national colors and all the conspicuous places were decorated for the occasion.

A reception was given at the armory last night, and later in the week the Irish Society will entertain its members who are also members of the regiment.

The final mustering out of the regiment took place to-day under the supervision of General Randolph.

He Had Too Many Doctors.

Denver, Col., Jan. 31.--The Rev. Myron W. Reed, pastor of the Broadway Tabernacle here, and a noted divine, died early yesterday morning, after a long illness, brought on by an attack of the grip.

Physicians of two schools, with hypnotists and Christian Scientists, have been quarreling over his sick bed for weeks, and it is a matter of doubt who was treating him or whether he had proper care.

He was prominent in secret societies and at one time was commander of the G. A. R., Department of Colorado and Wyoming.

Spanish Soldiers Homeward Bound.

Madrid, Jan. 31.--The steamship Ems has arrived at Ponta Delgado, Azores, en route for Spain, with 1,989 Spanish soldiers from Cienfuegos on board. Three men died on the voyage and twenty-nine others are seriously ill. The Ems will proceed for Cartagena.

Large Fire in Chicago.

Chicago, Jan. 31.--The mahogany yards of J. C. Rayner, Morgan and Fulton streets, and the box factory owned by F. J. Austin were burned early yesterday morning, causing a loss of $325,000.

MARINES ON GUARD IN PEKIN.

Protecting United States Legation There and the Consulate at Tien Tsin.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 31.--The navy department learned yesterday that eighteen United States marines were guarding the United States legation in Pekin, and that twenty-seven marines were guarding the United States consulate and American missionary interests in Tien-Tsin.

While the department has no definite information on the subject, it supposes that these detachments were landed from the Boston. It was supposed at the time the Boston went to Taku, at the mouth of the Pei-Ho river, on which Pekin is situated, that marines would be sent there.

Authority had been granted to Admiral Dewey to direct the captain of the Boston to send his marine detachment to Pekin and other places if the admiral believed it wise to do so. At that time, more than a month ago, there was great danger of a revolutionary outbreak in Pekin, and this government, like the British, German and others, was apprehensive of an attack on foreigners.

The Boston remained at the mouth of the Pei-Ho until several weeks ago, and then returned to Manila. The gunboat Petrel, which had proceeded up the Pti-Ho to Tien-Tsin was withdrawn also.

Admiral Dewey has never notified the department that United States marines were left in Pekin, and the information that the department received yesterday came in a roundabout unofficial way.

A telegram of inquiry was sent to Admiral Dewey. The marines will not be withdrawn unless all danger of an insurrection among the Chinese has passed away.

For World's Championship.

New York, Jan. 31.--The greatest sporting events of the winter were the world's fancy skating championship contests, which closed in Vienna yesterday, and in which for the first time in years an American amateur champion was entered. This is Irving Brokaw of New York, a graduate of Princeton, and perhaps the most graceful skater this country has ever known. The men against whom he tested his skill in the tournament are the cleverest amateurs in the world. Denmark and Sweden, Russia, Great Britain, France and Germany were represented by men who have skated from childhood, and the winner of the first prize may well be proud of his title.

The Eagan Court-Martial.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 31.--The record of the court martial in the case of Commissary General Eagan has been placed in the hands of Judge Advocate General Lieber for review.

Secretary Alger discussed the matter with the president yesterday, and the papers came to the judge advocate general through the routine channel. General Lieber could not say how long it will take him to complete the review. When he has concluded with the papers he will send them to the adjutant general.

Colonel Weston, who has been designated to act as commissary general, is reported to be still ill in New York, and the reports do not indicate when he may be expected here.

A Baronet's Fate.

London, Jan. 31.--In the probate division of the high court of justice yesterday Lady Sarah Curtis applied for leave to presume that the death of her husband, Sir Arthur Colin Curtis, third baronet of that name, occurred near Quesnelle, Mud river, British Columbia, while he was on the way to the Klondike.

Evidence was given that he left his party's camp on June 10, 1898, after a disagreement, and has not been seen since.

The judge thought the application was early, in view of Sir Arthur's demise being so recent, but he granted leave on a precedent being cited. The estate is valued at sixteen thousand pounds.

W. D. Bynum a Candidate.

He was formerly a Democratic representative, but identified himself with the gold standard opposition to the Bryan platform.

Representative Overstreet of Indianapolis went to the White House yesterday in Mr. Bynum's behalf, and other Indiana congressmen are urging his appointment.

Destructive Fire in Pittsburg.

Pittsburg, Pa., Jan. 31.--The six-story building at Nos. 918 and 920 Penn avenue, occupied by the New York Biscuit Company, and the La Grosse Art Glass Company, was damaged by fire yesterday to the extent of 75,000.

Several firemen were injured by falling glass, but all will recover. The origin of the fire is a mystery.

Lady Curtis Legally a Widow.

London, Jan. 31.--Justice Barnes of the probate, divorce and admiralty division of the high court of justice, has granted to Lady Curtis an order presuming the death of her husband, Sir Arthur Colin Curtis, who joined a Klondike mining party and disappeared from Mud river on the 10th of June last.

DEBATE ON PHILIPPINES

Bacon's Resolution Taken Up in the Senate.

CARTER MAKES A PROTEST

Anti-Expansion Resolutions Imply Disbelief in National Honor—An Army of 50,000 Men to be Increased to 100,000 at the President's Discretion.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 31.--In the Senate yesterday the resolution offered by Mr. Mason, Republican of Illinois last Saturday, and which then went over, was taken up and a substitute for it was offered and agreed to.

It recites newspaper statements as to the illness and death of soldiers in the Philippine islands, and directs the secretary of war to furnish a statement as to the percentage of sickness and death, and as to when the unhealthy season begins in the archipelago.

"I will not formally object to the resolution, said Mr. Hawley, Republican of Connecticut, "although I have no respect for it."

Mr. Allison, Republican of Iowa, the chairman of the committee on appropriations, then moved to hand up the Indian appropriation bill.

Mr. Jones, Democrat of Arkansas, called attention to the agreement to take a vote on the treaty next Monday, and suggested that the intervening time should not be occupied by appropriation bills to the exclusion of the various resolutions pending as collateral to and connected with the treaty. The newspapers, he remarked, said that those resolutions would not be considered, as the majority would not permit their consideration. He hoped he said that such was not the case.

Mr. Allison disclaimed all intention of interfering with proper discussion and proper action on any matter incidental to the treaty.

After further discussion of the question Mr. Allison said:

"As I understand it, there is no purpose on either side of the chamber to interfere with the proper discussion of the four or five resolutions now on the table, but the senator from Connecticut, Mr. Platt, gave notice a day or two since that before any vote was taken on those resolutions he desired an opportunity to discuss them, so that it is manifestly impossible for us to secure a vote on these resolutions at this time."

The motion to take up the Indian appropriation bill having been withdrawn, Mr. Bacon, Democrat of Georgia, moved to proceed to the consideration of his anti-annexation resolution.

The joint resolution was read in full and a motion to refer it to the committee on foreign relations was made by Mr. Chandler, Republican of New Hampshire.

Mr. Teller, Silver Republican of Colorado, asked whether or not that motion applied to all the resolutions on the same subject.

Mr. Chandler replied in the negative.

Mr. Teller said he thought it proper to let all the resolutions go to the committee on foreign relations if he was assured of a prompt report from that committee. He would not like to see them go to the committee and be smothered.

Mr. Chandler remarked that even if the Senate should pass Mr. Bacon's joint resolution there could be no action on it in the House before the vote on the peace treaty. He had no desire to prevent a vote on the resolutions, and thought it reasonable that such a vote should be taken next Friday or Saturday. His own opinion, however, was adverse to any action on the resolutions before next Monday.

Mr. Carter, Republican of Montana, protested against all the resolutions. He said:

"We belittle the dignity of the United States government everywhere by undertaking to make a dicker with the future as a price for present action in giving a vote on the treaty of peace."

In another place he said: "Is this a pledge to those who are openly defying the United States in the Philippine islands? Before having that rebellion suppressed by such a supine and trifling policy, I would have the army of the United States out there strengthened and supported until the last man went down who is defying the authority and laws of the United States."

"I am in perfect sympathy and accord, Mr. Carter continued, "with the reported purpose of the president of the United States to take ample time to consider what is wise and prudent and patriotic and honest to do with reference to these new possessions. The ratification of the treaty does not commit the government."

The debate was continued until two o'clock, when, without any action on Mr. Bacon's resolution, the Senate went into executive session to consider the peace treaty.

Army Bill Amended.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 31.--Before resuming debate on the army reorganization bill, yesterday, the House agreed that if its consideration under the five minute rule was concluded yesterday, the session to-day up to three o'clock should be devoted to a general debate.

The bill was then taken up in committee of the whole for amendment.

Mr. Marsh, Republican of Illinois, offered an amendment fixing the minimum number of men in each troop, company or battery so that the aggregate number of men should be about fifty thousand, but gave the president power at his discretion to increase the number of men to one hundred thousand.

Under this amendment no new officers would be necessary if the army were increased to one hundred thousand men, the skeleton for an army of that size being already provided.

After considerable debate the committee amendments were finally agreed to.

At the opening of the session a bill for taking the twelfth census was reported from the census committee and Mr. Hopkins, Republican of Illinois, gave notice that he would call it up for consideration next Monday.

GRANT'S SADDLE AND BRIDLE.

Interesting Relics Presented the Chicago Historical Society by E. Washburne.

Of the many treasurers of the Chicago Historical Society the society prizes none higher than the saddle and bridle which General U. S. Grant used during the civil war.

The saddle and bridle is the gift of ex-Mayor Hempstead Washburne of Chicago. It was handed down to him through his father from his grandfather, Israel Washburne of Maine, who was a great admirer of the general and his prowess in war. There is an interesting bit of history in this connection.

General Grant secured the saddle and bridle in 1861, immediately after his promotion to major general of the volunteers. They are of regulation army make, the saddle being a McClellan—so termed because General McClellan designed it after his own liking and comfort. The saddle is black and strongly built, though simple, and without gaudy trappings. Both it and the bridle show signs of much use, yet they are in a good state of preservation. On the face of each of the safety stirrups is a single raised star, designating the rank of brigadier general.

It was upon this saddle that the nation's great soldier rode to victory at Fort Donelson. It saw constant service under him as commander of the department of West Tennessee. At Shiloh, and previously at the siege of Vicksburg, did the Illinois son ride to victory on it. With his promotion to the major generalship of the regular army came a similar promotion to this equestrian seat. It continued with him to Chattanooga and escaped from the bloody strife there like its owner, without injury. He also took it in service as lieutenant general and commander of the entire army, and rode upon it in his last and great campaign down the Valley of the Potomac against Lee. It was mustered out of service shortly after the surrender at Appomattox courthouse in 1865, and was carefully preserved by its owner until he parted with it to Israel Washburne of Maine, who preserved it with equal care.

LAND OF FRUIT AND FLOWERS.

The wonderful resources of the Santa Clara Valley are so well known that the very name has become, in a measure, a household word with Californians. One could hardly be introduced to this wonderful valley at a more auspicious season than the spring. Every inch of its thousands of acres is a show of blossoms of every description. The fruit orchards are a mass of fluffy white, the nearest semblance of snow that the dwellers of this valley know. The Santa Clara Valley is closed in by the Santa Cruz Mountains on the west and the Coast Range on the east. The rivers as they come from the mountain heights bring down rich alluvial soil, and keep the fertile ground well moistened, and against the long dry months, when it raineth not, the far-sighted farmers have built immense reservoirs, from which, through well-constructed canals, they irrigate thousands of acres of their orchards and vineyards. The special climatic conditions have made this valley the fruit garden of California. Grapes, figs, olives, prunes, cherries, apricots, pears, peaches, almonds, all grow to equal perfection, and are picked, canned, and shipped all over the globe. San Jose, the queen city of the Santa Clara Valley, is called "the Garden City." It is fifty miles south from San Francisco, and about its pleasant homes all kinds of semi-tropical plants flourish, such as callas, fuchsias, heliotropes, and geraniums, the latter growing over house walls in a very fascinating sort of way. Every known variety of rose grows after its own sweet will, till one is lost in admiration at this daily flower show.

The Same Old Story.

Told on the Streets of Plainfield as Well as Elsewhere.

Something you cannot tell too often.
Repetition gives it added strength.
The same old story is pleasant to hear.
When it brings happiness to home.
Brings joy to the afflicted.
Tells how burdens can be raised.
How the back can be relieved.
All the pains and aches removed.
Proves how easily it is done.
Plainfield people tell this story.
Friends and neighbors talk of it.
They tell about their kidney ill.
How they suffered, how the cures came.

What they think of Doan's Kidney Pills.

Here is what a citizen says:

Mrs. Valetine Utzinger of 75 Grandview Ave., says: "I suffered from kidney complaint for six years. I doctored and used various kinds of medicine with little or no result. I had almost a constant sharp darting pain across my back and if I over exerted myself or took cold I suffered severely. I always felt it most when the weather was damp. There was also a kidney weakness which was very distressing and inconvenient. While in this condition I saw Doan's Kidney Pills recommended and my son brought me a box from L. W. Randolph's drug store. I started to use them at once, following directions closely. They helped the pain in my back, and relieved my other difficulty. I gave all the credit for this relief to Doan's Kidney Pills for they are beyond a doubt a grand medicine for kidney trouble. I have recommend them to a number of my friends and will continue to do so."

Doan's Kidney Pills are for sale by all dealers; price 50 cents a box. Mailed on receipt of price by Foster Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the U. S.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no substitute.

XMAS HAS GONE.

Maybe some of your teeth have, too. It don't cost anything to find out all about them. I recommend to buy dispepsia medicine and go with poor or no teeth. The longer you neglect them the more trouble they'll cause you when they begin. The pain of having them put right is all a delusion. Free consultation invited.

For a number of years I had the dyspepsia so bad I was almost dead with it. After I would eat I would swell up like a barrel, and have so much pain in my stomach that I would not know what to do. I tried everything I heard of and never got much relief, and one day a customer in the market told me to take Ripans Tabules and they would cure me. This was six months ago and I feel splendid now, although I still take one Tabule after each meal and three on Saturday night after sitting all day in the market. Since I have used Ripans Tabules I am a well woman, and could not afford to be without them. I am sixty-one years old.

WANTED—A case of bad health that R·I·P·A·N·S will not benefit. Send five cents to Ripans Chemical Co., No. 10 Spruce Street, New York, for 10 samples and 1,000 testimonials. R·I·P·A·N·S, 10 for 5 cents, or 12 packets for 48 cents, may be had of all druggists who are willing to sell a standard medicine at a moderate profit. They banish pain and prolong life. One gives relief. Note the word R·I·P·A·N·S on the packet. Accept no substitute.

SITUATION AT ILOILO.

Insurgents at Iloilo Elect a President—Conditions Improving.

Manila, Jan. 31.--Senor Melliza has been elected president of the Visayan States by the insurgents at Iloilo for a period of two years and has acknowledged his allegiance to Aguinaldo. Several representatives of the Iloilo government have arrived here for the purpose of conferring with the Luzon insurgents.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 31.--The conditions at Iloilo, according to a dispatch received at the war department from Major General Otis, are very satisfactory. The message in which this information is contained came last Friday, but for some reason the military authorities declined to make public any part of it except the introductory sentences, which told of the improved situation at Manila.

A commission has been sent by the Panay Filipinos from Iloilo to Manila to consult with General Otis about the disagreements caused by the occupation of Iloilo by the natives prior to the arrival of General Miller's detachment.

America's Great Dry Dock.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 31.--The bids for the greatest of the American dry docks, that is to be known as the granite dry dock, and to be constructed at the Charlestown, Mass., navy yard, were opened to-day. This dry dock will not alone be the largest in this country, but will probably surpass in general availability even those at Belfast, Ire., at Birkenhead, Eng., at London, Gibraltar and Liverpool.

Its length over all will be 789 feet; along the bottom of the outer gate sill it will be 729 feet. This length may have to be modified, as experts claim that the appropriation granted at the last session of Congress, $1,025,000, is insufficient to complete a granite structure of the dimensions named and the sum will probably be increased to $2,000,000.

New Emperoror China.?

Pekin, Jan. 31.--The Chinese here say the dowager empress has decided upon a policy regarding the succession to the throne. It is added that at a meeting of her relatives, recently held, she selected the successor of the present emperor. But his identity is not divulged.

All reports, however, agree that a change at the palace is impending. The emperor is still strictly guarded and in the southwest corner of the island palace. The drawbridge connecting the island with the shore is drawn up at night and every morning the ice around the island is broken in order to prevent unauthorized persons from approaching it.

The Boston Herald Fined.

Boston, Mass., Jan. 31.--The Boston Herald Company was fined $500 by Judge Bond in the superior court yesterday for publishing in a headline in connection with an account of the trial of the city teaming fraud cases, on Friday last, the words, "Guilt is Evident."

The publication of the headline was considered prejudicial to the case and resulted in the dismissal of the jury and an order for a new trial.

The case was that of J. R. Mulrey and T. F. Scollans, who are charged with having obtained money from the city by fraudulent teaming charges.

A Counterfeiter Confesses.

Buffalo, N. Y., Jan. 31.--A building on the outskirts of Olean was raided on Saturday night and John and Charles Blanchard were arrested.

The latter confessed that himself and John Blanchard were members of a gang of counterfeiters who are operating in this state.

He gave the names of several parties who, he said, were operating in the neighborhood of Camden, N. Y., and had been passing counterfeit money for several years without detection.

Col. Hamilton Jay a Suicide.

Jacksonville, Fla., Jan. 31.--Colonel Hamilton Jay, ex-postmaster, and later an editorial writer on the old Florida Times-Union, committed suicide on Sunday night by taking cyanide of potassium. He left a letter saying that horrors of insanity threatened him and he preferred death to that.

Colonel Jay was born in Connecticut and commanded a regiment of cavalry in the civil war. He was prominent in Florida reconstruction times.

Rescued Schooner's Crew.

Halifax, N. S., Jan. 31.--The Gloucester schooner Polar Wave arrived yesterday at Louisburg, C. B., leaking and with her sails torn. She is loaded with herring from Placentia bay.

She had on board the crew of an abandoned schooner the Jersey Lily of Lockport, N. S., taken off twelve miles from Scaterie, also laden with herring from a Newfoundland port.

The Polar Wave experienced very rough weather.

Boy Burned to Death.

San Francisco, Cal., Jan. 31.--Thomas Wilford Rallet, aged four years, has been burned to death at the Pacific Gas Improvement Works. While playing in the back yard of the works he turned on the faucet of a petroleum barrel. His clothes soon became saturated with the inflammable fluid. He then lit some matches to see the oil blaze, and instantly he was surrounded by flames and burned to death.

Accused of Theft in Dresden.

Dresden, Jan. 31.--A man of the name of Reif, who was formerly a journalist in New York, from which place he is alleged to have eloped with a young woman, has been arrested here charged with stealing diamonds valued at twenty thousand marks.

The Sultan to Protest?

Cairo, Jan. 31.--The Diplomatic Journal says that the sultan is about to protest to the powers against the British protectorate system, reasserting Turkish suzerainty over Egypt.

Naval Budget Passes.

Berlin, Jan. 31.--The entire naval budget passed its second reading in the reichstag yesterday by an enormous majority.

DREYFUS CASE AGAIN

French Chamber Refers Bill Relating to Court Procedure.

GOVERNMENT IS SUSTAINED

Committee of Deputies to Have All the Documents—Measure Gives Both the Civil and Criminal Judges Jurisdiction of Revision Cases.

Paris, Jan. 31.—The Chamber of Deputies yesterday, by a vote of 364 to 189, adopted the government's proposal to submit to the committee intrusted with such matters the bill providing that cases of trial revision shall be brought before the united sections of the court of cassation.

The report of M. Mazau, first president of the court of cassation, on the charges of M. Quesnay de Beaurepaire, the former president of the civil section of that body, will be read before the committee.

The minister of justice, M. Lebret, introduced the bill, and asked that it be sent to a committee.

The preamble, declaring that the measure was one of necessity for peace, and to restore calm to the country, was greeted with applause from the Center and murmurs from the extreme left.

M. Georges Berry, Rallied Conservative, representing the first division of the Seine, said the Chamber was not aware why the government introduced the bill, and asked for the official publication of the evidence in the case of M. Bard, who reported on the Dreyfus case to the court of cassation. (Cheers.)

The premier, M. Dupuy, said he did not wish the Chamber to vote in the dark. He was desirous that full light be thrown on the subject, and therefore the government would submit to the committee the complete documents in the case. (Cheers.)

M. Massabuau, Rallied Republican, representing the Espalion district of Aveyron, expressed surprise that the criminal chamber of the court was allowed to continue the revision inquiry. (Leftist protests.)

M. Millerand, Radical Socialist, First district of the Seine, reproached the government with interrupting the course of justice and with placing the matter in the hands of the Chamber, which, he added, meant that henceforth it would be impossible for anything to be kept secret and it would be necessary to publish everything. (Leftist applause.)

The premier replied that the committee would have full powers to ask for the publication of the documents and the government would not object. If the Chamber voted the bill all the documents referring to the inquiry would have to be submitted to all the members of the court of cassation. He added:

"This matter can be thrashed out later and the government will then be willing to reply to all questions."

M. Faure, Nationalist, member for the First division of Algeria, demanded that the bill be sent to a special committee "thereby preventing the criminal court, whose impartiality is suspected, of taking part in the final decision on the revision."

These remarks caused an uproar in the chamber.

The minister of justice replied that the conclusions of Mr. Mazau's report set aside any question as to the sincerity and rectitude of the magistrates.

The Chamber then rejected, by a vote of 346 to 153, M. Faure's demand and adopted the government's proposal to send the bill to the committee entrusted with such matters.

The House then proceeded to discuss the budget.

Brokers Sued Brokers.

Cincinnati, Jan. 31.--Jerome Colton & Co., stock dealers in this city, have brought suit for $75,000 damages against an association of stock dealers for alleged boycott.

The case came before the United States court on demurrer. Judge Thompson decided that the conduct alleged in the petition amounted to the formation of a trust in restriction of trade, and was a good ground for an action.

Colton & Co. allege they were notified that unless they joined the combination they would be boycotted and persons who dealt with them would be blacklisted.

An Authorized Duel.

Paris, Jan. 31.--The minister of war, M. de Freycinet, has authorized Major Gaudelette of the Republican Guard to challenge M. Urbain Gohier, author of "The Army Against the Nation." The latter caused a great outcry owing to its severe condemnation of militarism, and led to a debate in the Chamber of Deputies, on account of an article which is considered insulting to Major Gaudelette.

Return of the Bear.

San Francisco, Jan. 31.--The United States steamer Bear has arrived here, four days from Seattle, at which port she remained some time, after returning from the Arctic, where she was sent to relieve the ice bound whalers. She will probably be overhauled at the Mare island navy yard before starting on another cruise.

France and England.

Paris, Jan. 31.--The Figaro declares that the negotiations between the British and French governments do not concern Newfoundland and Madagascar, as has been supposed, but the Bahr-el-Ghazel district of the Nile valley.

A Japanese Steamer on Fire.

Yokohama, Jan. 31.--The Japanese steamer Yamaguchi Maru, Captain Allen, from Seattle January 11 for this port, is on fire at Oginohama. Every means available is being taken to extinguish the fire.

The Census Bill.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 31.--In the House yesterday Mr. Hopkins, Republican of Illinois, reported the census bill, and gave notice that he would call it up next Monday.

COLORADO STORM SWEPT.

Mountain Towns Isolated and Snow Slides Threaten.

Denver, Col., Jan. 31.--Snow began falling on the mountains yesterday and the storm is in full blast.

At Apex, Col., the wife and two small children of Mr. Rudolph were buried in a slide and killed.

The town of Breckinridge, forty miles from Leadville, is isolated. Fuel and provisions are low. Not a wheel has moved out of Como on the South Park for two days and reports tell of great losses to range stock.

The mines about Leadville have been closed down, as no more can be moved. Hundreds of men have worked almost incessantly in vain at different points on the South Park line, between Como and Leadville, trying to open up the road.

Kokomo is almost hidden by banks of snow on all sides and slides threaten the town. No trains have moved west of Leadville on the Colorado Midland for several days.

The storm extends along the mountains in Wyoming and the loss of cattle has been great. Loss of life is feared.

Very Cold in the West.

Chicago, Jan. 31.--The temperature was much lower in the Central and Western states during the past twenty-four hours than any experienced this winter.

Rowdy Soldiers in Havana.

Havana, Jan. 31.--There were three cases last week of the abuse of citizens upon the part of American soldiers. Upon two occasions soldiers took eatables from street venders, refused to pay for them and struck the venders and citizens who took the latter's part.

Upon one occasion two drunken soldiers insisted upon penetrating into a private house, insulted the women of the household and only desisted upon the approach of a patrol.

Mistakes owing to the ignorance of Americans with the language occur frequently. Last week a patrol stopped the dancing in a private house, supposing it to be a public ball, and insisting wrongly that all dancing must stop at midnight.

Chief Surgeon Maus of the Seventh Army Corps has asked General Fitzhugh Lee, its commander, to make the vaccination of everyone in the province of Havana compulsory. One hundred and sixty-one cases of smallpox have been reported.

Quay's Eleventh Ballot.

Harrisburg, Pa., Jan. 31.--When the joint session was called to order by President Gobin at noon yesterday it was evident that there was no quorum. Messrs. Martin, Flinn and the big men on the anti-Quay side were absent, and several of the Quay steering committeemen were on hand, although some were paired.

Sixty-seven pairs were announced, and the roll call showed only forty-five members and senators present.

The eleventh joint ballot recorded thirty-nine votes, thirty-five of these being for Quay and four for Jenks. Most of the Democrats and anti-Quayites not paired abstained from voting and prevented a quorum.

Gen Gobin's Discharge.

"I have never doubted that I had a perfect right to hold to the lieutenant governorship and my commission in the volunteer army, the latter not being such an office of trust as the state constitution refers to in its prohibition, but when I learned that the prospect for active duty in Cuba or Porto Rico was gradually growing dimmer I determined to resign. Had the command been ordered to Cuba or to any active duty I would not have left the army. If necessary I would have preferred giving up my lieutenant governorship."

Novel Method of Suicide.

Philadelphia, Jan. 31.--Robert T. Rink, Jr., aged 28 years took his life Sunday night in a similar manner to that adopted by Mrs. Ayres at Penn Yan, N. Y., last week, by closing himself in a trunk and swallowing poison.

When Rink, who was a picture frame gilder, did not appear yesterday, his room was opened and his body was found in a trunk, the lid of which was closed. By his side was a half emptied bottle of whiskey and on a table in the room were the remains of a crystallized powder supposed to be poison.

Rink on Saturday told his landlady he would like to meet death as Miss Ayres did.

Addicks and Gray a Tie.

Dover, Del., Jan. 31.--The twenty-second ballot for United States senator in the Delaware legislature at noon yesterday resulted as follows:

George Gray, Democrat, 14; J. Edward Addicks, Union Republican, 14; Colonel Henry A. Dupont, Regular Republican, 5; Dr. J. H. Chandler, regular Republican, 1; William C. Spruance, regular Republican, 1; Anthony Higgins, regular Republican, 2; ex-Congressman J. S. Willis, Union Republican, 1; Joseph R. Topham, Union Republican, 1; L. Irving Handy, Silver Democrat, 5; absent, 3. Total vote 44; necessary to a choice, 23.

A Deckhand's Strange Death.

Buffalo, Jan. 31.--A pair of human legs sticking up through the ice in one of the slips in the harbor attracted the attention of some men on the steamer Walter L. Frost yesterday morning.

An axe was secured and the body chopped out. It was found to be that of William Dorsten, a deckhand on the Frost.

He had evidently fallen head foremost from the gang plank of the boat and gone half way through the ice and been held in that position until dead.

Miss Gould's Noble Act.

The story printed in the news columns of today's Press concerning the experience of Private John O'Keefe reads romantic, but it is the plain truth. Of Miss Helen Gould, whose generosity and sympathetic treatment of the soldier boys has won the praises of the nation, we say God bless her!

The experience of Private O'Keefe was the same as hundreds of other comrades in arms, whom Miss Gould aided and succored after the government had found no further use for them, and who, had it not been for the excellent treatment and kindly consideration of the heiress, would have fared in a tough manner.

Ordinarily, one would feel that Miss Gould had done all that could be expected of her when she cared for the sick soldier boys while there was life in them—if it was their fate to die, as it was O'Keefe's—but when she carried out the dying requests of the patriots of the Spanish-American conflict to the very time when the period of "dust to dust, ashes to ashes" is at hand, then it is that the noblest and truest philanthrophic sentiment is reflected.

Plainfield has read much of Miss Gould's fine treatment of the soldiers, but until yesterday it was not brought into close touch with her praiseworthy practices. Her treatment of Private O'Keefe stamps her as a noble woman.

Westfield is tiring of paying high rates for electric light and water, and has taken a formal step to ascertain the cost of establishing municipal ownership of the plants supplying these two commodities. Plainfield is tired, too, of high prices for light and water, but neither former Mayor Fisk's or Mayor Rockfellow's ideas for municipal ownership have gone any further than the suggestion conveyed in their last messages to the Common Council. Why doesn't some member of the Common Council take up the matter and secure investigation similar to that proposed in Westfield?

Two men remained in the Atlantic ocean for fifteen minutes at Atlantic City, Sunday, sporting about in the chilly water as though the thermometer was above the nineties. It is evident that Atlantic City does not propose that the belles of Asbury Park shall have a monopoly of the reputation to be gained by winter bathing—even it takes several cases of pneumonia to outwit them.

Confirmed drunkards are shamed into reformation in many of the towns of the Argentine Republic by being compelled to sweep the streets for eight days each time they may be arrested for intoxication. With all due respect to the reputation of Plain field, we must say that if the Argentine plan was put into force here we would have clean streets beyond a doubt.

Two practical jokers in Chicago the other day decided to give a friend a trifle of a scare by making believe holding him up for his valuables. However, the intended victim did not look at it in the right light, and nearly choked the life out of the would be jokers. It is a dangerous practice to tackle anything in Chicago that one is not certain about.

The vultures of Cuba are reported to be starving. That speaks well for American occupation of the land. When the Spaniards were in power there it was the buzzards who grew fat feasting off the flesh of the reconcentradoes who were starved to death. The buzzards can afford to starve a little bit.

Another large brewery is projected for Paterson. We knew that the people along the Passaic would eventually get tired of the talk of purifying that stream, and resort to something different than aqua pura for slaking purposes.

Last week a trust with a capital of $1,000,000 was organized under the New Jersey laws. In there days of thirty, forty, fifty and two hundred million dollar trusts, such a concern as the first-named is scarcely worth noticing.

Suppose that the mysterious New York poisoner had written his letters with a typewriter, what then? Why the police would not be any more at sea than they are now in running down the guilty party.

The Daily Press circulation is making rapid strides upward these days, accelerated thusly by the energy and perseverance of the young men and women who have entered the subscription contest.

In the short time that it has been in vogue in Vineland, the curfew ordinance has proven a rank failure. Plainfield should take warning.

Borough politicians will soon have to decide who are to be standard bearers in the approaching municipal election across the brook.

Mayor Wilson's conception of duty to the borough does seem to be gauged by an application of practical politics.

THE PHILIPPINE COMMISSION.

The commission appointed by President McKinley to investigate the political condition of the Philippines consists of Jacob G. Schurman, of Cornell; Hon. Charles Denby, ex-Minister to China; Professor Dean Worcester, of Ann Arbor university; Rear Admiral Dewey and Major General Otis.

WHAT THE SHEARS FIND

Editorial Comment From Other Papers of Interest in Plainfield.

Now that Elizabeth can boast of a Governor and a State Senator within its confines, it can afford to make faces at its haughty big neighbor and swell itself clear across the meadows to the Hackensack river and Newark bay. The future of "Betsytown" is unlimited.—Camden Telegram.

The cases of fraud and abuse of rights proven against lawyers of late have been no numerous and so serious that the cleansing of the profession is not only desirable for the reputation of the bar, but as a measure for the protection of the poor and ignorant.—State Centre.

The proposition to abolish the Monday night sessions of the Legislature has a good deal to recommend it. Those who advocate the change point out that it would enable most of the legislators to go home every night. There are not all agreed, however, as to whether it would be better to have a session Monday afternoon or to begin the legislative week Tuesday. Most of the lawmakers are professional or business men who have to give some part of Monday to their private affairs, and in the case of many of them it would be a hardship to attend an afternoon session Monday. There is much to be said in favor of not starting until Tuesday morning.—New York Tribune.

PASSING COMMENT.

Things that Are Not Exactly News but Just as Interesting.

It is reported that the streets of Santiago have been so well cleaned by the American officials that the vultures that formerly lived on the refuse thrown into the streets, are starving to death and are snapping up cats and small dogs. It is suggested that Captain Grant import a few of these birds for they would get fat on the stray cats and dogs that run about our streets.

THEATRICAL.

Current Dramatic Attractions That Plainfielders Can Witness.

Mark Twains amusing comedy drama of "Tom Sawer" will be given at Stillman Music Hall Saturday afternoon and evening February 4th by the original New York company which includes Charles R. Crolius, Adele St. Alva and others. The play shows the antics of a mischievous boy and his chum who are forever playing tricks on the grocer and policeman. There is a dramatic story running throughout the piece which is very interesting. The most amusing comedy scenes occur in the grocery, grave yard and court room.

Roesel's Fate Is Sealed.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Elizabeth, January 31.—Prosecutor English has received a mandate from the United States Supreme Court affirming the judgment of the United States Circuit Court at Trenton, which refused a writ of habeas corpus in the Roesel case. The mandate will be transmitted to the Circuit Court at Trenton, which will thereupon resentence the convicted murderer. It may now be considered settled that Roesel must suffer the penalty for his crime. Only the Board of Pardons now stand between him and the gallows.

To Try Contract Case.

A venire has been issued by Justice Mosher for a jury to try the contract case of Fred Anderson against Charles Burnette Friday morning. Anderson shingled the other's house. Burnette claims that the work was not done as it should have been done and refuses to pay for it. The jury will settle the amount that ought to be paid.

THE WOMAN'S WORLD

An Old Time Wrinkle Recipe.

Any women who have read the Vica of Wakefield would give much to know just what herbs and simples were use in the face wash that Mrs. Primros and her bonny daughters were at suc pains to make over the fire. Both dames and demoiselles of those time were famous for their fine complex ions, and it is well worth while makin a study of their means to this de sirable end. Here is a recipe straigh from old England that sounds as if it might be a compound like the famou "Primrose Wash." It is far more deli cate than cold cream, cocoa butter o any of the emollients now so much i vogue, and when used over night al traces of it should disappear befor morning.

To make, put a cup of good cream i a small saucepan over the fire and sti until it boils; allow to cool and re heat. Do this three times. While ho stir in the juice of two lemons an two tablespoonsful of cucumber juice. This may easily be pressed from thi vegetable by cutting in bits the siz of half a lemon and pressing in th squeezer in the same way as lemons Stir in, also, two tablespoonsful of gly cerine and one of honey. (The forme may be omitted if it does not agre with the skin.) At the last add a few drops of any nice scent. The saucepan should be kept in hot water until the ingredients are well mixed, then re moved and the contents stirred every few minutes until perfectly cold. I is now ready to be packed in smal pots (like those that come with extrac or beef), and covered with paper dipped in the white of an egg, to becom air-tight. The face should be washe with good soap and hot water, shading off to cold, over night, and this oint ment carefully massaged into the skin

When glycerine is omitted use swee oil instead.

As to Eating Before Sleeping.

A short time since physicians held the eating of food immediately before retiring almost a crime. The old the ory is quite exploded. One medica journal, in commenting on the subject recently, said that while it is not good as a matter of fact, to go to bed with the stomach so loaded that the undi gested food will render one restless still something of a light, palatable nature in the stomach is one of the best aids to quietude and rest. The process of digestion goes on in sleep with as much regularity as when one is taking violent exercise to aid it and so something in the stomach is very desirable for the night's rest Some physicians have declared, in deed, that a good deal of the prevalen insomnia is the result of an unconscious craving of the stomach for food in persons who have been unduly frightened by the opinion that they must eat before going to bed, or who have, like many nervous women, been keeping themselves in a state of semi-starvation. Nothing is more agreeable on retiring for the night than to take a bowl of hot broth, like oatmeal gruel or some good nourishing soup. It is a positive aid to nervous people, and induces peaceful slumbers. This is es pecially the case during cold winter nights, when the stomach craves warmth as much as any other part of the body. Even a glass of hot milk is grateful to the palate on such oc casions, but a bowl of light, well cooked gruel is better and during the cold months of winter should be the retiring food of every woman who feels as many do, the need of food at night —New York Ledger.

The Capable Girl's Lament.

"It's a terrible misfortune to be able to do things," commented one girl to her sister, who possesses the knack of doing everything, from millinery to scrubbing. It is true that such a person is apt to be overworked by her friends, who, seeing the deft fingers work so quickly, are too forgetful of the strength used in gratifying their requests to "just help me out on this dear, you do it so beautifully." However, it is well to teach girls to do everything that they are likely to need to know in everyday life or emergencies. But with all the rest of the knowledge, impress upon the girls a regard for their own strength and the power to say no when nerves cry out that the limit of healthful endurance is reached.

Paper Teeth Now.

It is certainly a reign of wood pulp that is upon us, for now a German has perfected a process for making false teeth, that is, artificial teeth for human use, manufactured from paper pulp instead of porcelain or the other materials usually used in the imitation of masticators of commerce. They are stated to be very satisfactory in every respect. They are not brittle and do not chip off. The moisture of the mouth has no effect upon these teeth and they retain their color perfectly. They are lighter than porcelain and cheaper to make.

Tortoise Shell Always in Favor.

Tortoise shell will ever remain in favor for hair ornaments, owing to its extreme lightness, which prevents any apparent weight to the wearer. The amber shell from the under part of the tortoise is handsome in light hair and more scarce than the dark veined shell, so it remains 100 per cent. higher in price and much sought after. The handsomest shell comes from Ceylon and the East Indies, with less choice from South America and Cuba. The best shell work is done in Italy.

A Stylish Bodice.

This corsage is of blue silk to be worn with a blue cloth skirt. It is trimmed with bands of white satin bound on each side with blue velvet The bands are outlined with an em broidery of white silk with feathe stitched design. The yoke is made of shirred chiffon and comet ribbons. The sleeves are trimmed the same as the waist.

How to Lace the Corset.

Here is another boon for the stout women who suffer from a surplus of hips, etc., and who have too much conscience or too hearty appetites to lace. Let them give ear to the new theory of lacing their corsets by which too solid flesh may be held in abeyance and yet no harm done physically.

The dressmakers have gotten this new device from a physician who says to pull out your corset laces as you now have them, lay the eyelet sides of the corsets vis-a-vis, as though to begin a fresh orthodox lacing, and then, taking one lacer, put it from beneath, through an eyelet at the waist line on that side of the corset lying at your left.

Draw the lacer through as far as the top eyelet, run through this one and let the end four or five inches long project. Now take the other lacer and pass it through that eyelet next below the one where the other lacer first went through and draw it down to the bottom eyelet, run through and let a five inch end hang. Pick up the great length of the first lacer and begin zigzagging it back and forth through eylets on both sides of the two sections of the corset until an end hangs out opposite the first end mentioned.

With the long portion of the second lacer zigzag through the holes of both pieces of corset to the bottom, where an end must hang out opposite the second end mentioned.

When so laced up, put on the corsets, hook them and see what will happen. Simply pull on the top and bottom ends of the laces that are not zigzagged through, and the corset will first draw in to fit about the waist and ribs comfortably and without pressure. At top and bottom, though, where over the bust and hips, the edges of stays always project and add greatly to girth, these edges will draw in perfectly tight and flat.

No discomfort will be felt, and, so lacing her stays, a woman can reduce her hips and bust measurement a matter of three to five inches. In doing this the flesh is not rolled up under her chin or thrust out in ungainly lumps, because the stay is easy at waist line and over ribs.

Jenny Lind Off the Stage.

Jenny Lind the woman was greater than Jenny Lind the singer. The bishop of Norwich's son, subsequently Dean Stanley, wrote that she had "the manners of a princess, with the simplicity of a child and the goodness of an angel." Her character showed itself, he added, "through a thousand traits of humanity, gentleness, thoughtfulness, wisdom, piety."

At one of Dean Stanley's services in the cathedral she was moved to tears by the singing of the boy choristers, and had placed reserves for them at her concert the next morning. When she came on the platform she greeted them with a smile of recognition which the boys never forgot.

While she was singing in Copenhagen such was the excitement that court and town begged her to give them one more day of song. A gentleman of musical culture had, with his wife, anxiously looked forward to her visit. When she came he was on a sick bed. Jenny Lind heard of his desire and found time to go to his house and sing to him and his wife.

When she went to London Mendelssohn asked her to sing to a friend of his who had long lain upon a bed of sickness. She went and cheered him with songs, the remembrance of which is still cherished by the family.—Presbyterian.

"Fussy? Say, if she built a house she'd insist upon having all the nails manicured—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

OUR YOUTHS' COLUMN

THE BROKEN TOY SOLDIER.

No pension bureau offers us reward for service done;
We wear no medals on our breast for gallant battles won,
Yet no one of Napoleon's, nor one of Caesar's host
Has made himself a record such as even I can boast.

They work toy soldiers harder than real soldier-men, you see;
A march of fifty thousand miles is nothing much to me.
I lost a leg at Marathon, an arm at Monterey;
Was left for dead at Gettysburg—all on the self-same day.

—Marguerite Tracy in St. Nicholas.

Seen Playing Leapfrog.

"The funniest thing I ever saw in a black bear family," said Bob Ellison, an old-time trapper in the Rocky mountains, "was one day last summer. Parker and I had trailed a she bear to a heavy growth of timber down in a baby canyon. When we came in sight of the bear home we were not seen, so we sat down with our rifles across our laps and watched the family. The mother bear had three cubs and it seemed that she had left them home while she went skirmishing for forage. She had just got home with what looked like the carcass of a coyote when we came along. Well, the way those old bears pulled that carcass to pieces and divided it among the cubs was mighty interesting. We could see that the parents were all-fired hungry themselves, and that they looked with longing eyes as the boys and girls chewed the meat and bones down, but they never seemed to want a bit while the children were hungry. If you could have seen how the old he bear sat on his hind legs and watched the meat disappear while he could get a sniff of the feast it would have taught you the greatest lesson of your life on unselfishness. When the cubs were through eating the mother and father bear chewed a little about the bare bones and lapped up some blood, but that was all they got. Then the fun began, and you never saw a better show in your life in any theatre. The cubs and their dad rolled and tumbled about the ground; they played leap frog over one another, they pulled one another about by the tail, and the cubs would all together jump on their father and pull and haul him until he must have been sore. Once in a while they would vex him and partner and I hollered out loud to see how he would baste them with a forepaw. Then the she bear joined in the fun, and the whole family pitched onto the old man, just as you see boys fool with their dad. The parent bears chased each other about the manzanita brush and over bowlders, while the cubs would follow as best they could. I'll swear those bears had such a good time that I heard them laugh themselves. Well, this kept up for two hours. Then the old man Bruin went off to hunt for his food, and you may believe it or not, partner and I had several chances to shoot that whole family, but I'll be darned if there's money enough in bear pelts to get us to fire into such a fine lot of folks as then. Why, it would be just like murder.

A Dog's Bright Idea.

A collie had been much annoyed by the conduct of a neighbor's dog which was too lazy to bury bones for its own consumption, but greatly enjoyed the pleasure of unearthing the treasures of others. When Don had been deprived of several choice stores in this way, he evidently meditated over the vexing matter, and at last a bright idea came to him.

One day after dinner, when the neighbor's dog was out of the way, Don began to dig a hole not far from where his master sat watching him. The hole was unusually deep; in it he deposited a big and still eminently desirable bone. Then he covered it well with earth, disappeared for a moment, and came trotting back with a small bone which had seen its best and second-best days, but was still good enough, in Don's opinion, for a thief.

This bone he laid on the earth which hid the big one, and scraped the earth over it with deliberate care. His master had the satisfaction of knowing that the ruse was successful, for next morning he saw the thief hastily leaving the premises with the small bone in his mouth.

Later in the day Don reaped the reward of his wisdom, as he sat munching and crunching the big bone at his leisure.

The Queen Bumble Bee.

The length of life of a queen bumble bee is probably little more than a year at most. Here is one reason for this belief. She hatches among the late broods of summer, and soon after leaves the nest, leading a vagabond existence, night and day, among the autumn flowers. The winter she passes in an earth burrow dug by herself, and unaided establishes a colony in the spring. These combined periods of fall and spring require the daily use of her frail wings in the field at least four months. Now, we know that the wings of the worker honey bee wear out in less than half that time; also that the old queens who take to the field after the nest breaks up in August frequently have tattered wings and soon disappear. Nature does not supply insects with new wing cells, as it supplies birds with new wing feathers. So the loss of the power of flight a this season of the year to the queen bumble bee means the loss of life.—St. Nicholas.

CURRENT COMMENT.

This country now rejoices in the finest crop of tall, graceful flag poles it has ever raised. As viewed from Mars, the United States must look like a vast asparagus bed.

We will be able to raise a superior quality of hemp in the Philippines and the most succulent bananas in Porto Rico. There is compensation in everything. The hemp can be used for the people who throw banana skins on our sidewalks.

A late army idea is to make of aluminum all the metal a soldier carries except his rifle. Even buttons and shoe pegs are to be of aluminum. Some of the Pennsylvania artillery companies are provided with aluminum pails holding three gallons, in which all the water used is sterilized by boiling over the camp fire.

A Cuban flag has been saluted at the masthead of an American warship. An old-time prophecy reads thus: "A little one shall become a thousand, and a small one a strong nation; I the Lord will hasten it in his time." That little flag of Cuba has climbed slowly to the masthead, and as it waves it tells a story of years of striving and suffering and death, a grand struggle against tyranny, before the strong arm of the liberator came to aid.

A situation like the present one is sure to develop an army of cranks, but who would have predicted one to condemn the prevalence of Old Glory? He has a small but excited following who cry out that the general display of the colors is vulgarizing them. Heaven send their distorted wits a new twist! Float the flag from office and home, drape it in window and on wall, wear it in the lapel, in the hat, as a scarf, if you like; keep it before your own and your neighbors' eyes everywhere, always! Old Glory is one good thing of which there cannot be too much!

The most popular officer holding the commission of the United States Government is the paymaster. In the eyes of the troops at the front he is only a little lower than the angels. When he arrives in camp he is received with something like the enthusiasm that surprised the Prodigal Son. The best that there is in the way of tent, things to eat and things to drink are at his disposal. The colonel smiles, and the majors smile, and the captains smile, and the smile progresses on down to the smallest drummer boy. Everybody spruces up, puts on his best available clothes and does his best to do credit to the regiment. You would think that the business-like man in a major's uniform was Miss Columbia, the President and the general commanding rolled into one. And then the paymaster reciprocates. He loses no time in getting through the books. He has been known to toil half the night so that the boys might not have to wait for their money any longer than was absolutely necessary. As a rule, there is a day's work in the regimental rolls. But the paymaster doesn't spare himself or his assistants. He looks as satisfied when his task is done as if he were about to go out with the boys whom he has made so happy. But he doesn't, for he has to fly away to fresh scenes of activity.

The buying and selling of war ships has become a great industry, says a writer in the Pall Mall Gazette. Several thousand working men on the Thames and in the North are earning good wages to-day by constructing war vessels that may be used against Great Britain in a year to two, while at Birmingham and Elswick guns are being made with which to arm them, and at Sheffield armor plate with which to clothe them is being rolled out. Private firms in Great Britain are now building war ships for Germany, Austria, Japan, China, Chili, Norway, Portugal and Brasil. Germany's order is for a torpedo boat destroyer of great speed and powerful armament, and Austia has contracted for four torpedo boats. Japan is utilizing part of the indemnity paid by China in the purchase of eight battle ships and cruisers and eight torpedo boat destroyers.

It is estimated that since British shipyards began work of this character foreign money equal to thirty or thirty-five millions sterling has been spent in Great Britain for war ships and the.. guns, stores and equipment.

It has been suggested that Parliament should give the British Government the right of the first offer of every ship building in Great Britain for any foreign Power if that Power desired or was willing to sell. But for every ship so bought the keel would be laid for another, so that the remedy would be only temporary at best.

In the meantime, the shipbuilders of the United States are prepared to transact business with any Power with which this country is on terms of amity. When our trade in that line is so extensive as to give worriment to Congress it will be time enough for us to solve the problem which is giving uneasiness to some of the timid and apprehensive subjects of her Majesty.

WHITE NEGROES.

The fact that a girl who has negro blood in her veins graduated with high honors from Vassar College, none of her fellow pupils having discovered the African strain, does not surprise Southerners. A gentleman who was born and raised in New Orleans and is now living in this city, declares that some of the most beautiful women he ever saw were of partly African descent. "Some years ago," said he, "a young Northern man came to New Orleans to spend the winter. One night a party of us asked him if he did not want to go to a 'coon' ball. He supposed we were out for a lark among colored people, and he agreed to go along. We were in evening dress and about midnight drove to a house in the French quarter, where we found a ball in full blast. We introduced our visitor to a number of the guests of both sexes and he enjoyed himself hugely. After a couple of hours he declared that he had never seen so many lovely women together before. He said he was glad we had given up our project of going to a 'coon' ball, as he was satisfied to remain where he was. He was absolutely dumbfounded when told that every woman present had an admixture of African blood in her veins, but it was true. Those women have a society distinctly their own, and mix with neither the whites nor blacks, yet nobody could know that they are not purely Caucasian. Some of them are brilliantly intellectual. Our northern friend fell in love with one of them he met at the ball and married her. Her friends in the north all think that she is a creole.—Philadelphia Press.

PRESIDENTS' NICKNAMES.

The American people have a genius for nicknames. The sobriquets which they fasten to men in the public eye are often remarkable for the subtle shades of dislike, admiration, ridicule or affection which they express. The British soldier is content to refer to to the queen as "The Widdy." The American people have done better by their Presidents. They have been lavish from the first in the bestowal of presidential nicknames, many of which have been both picturesque and imaginative.

There have been many phrases applied in one spirit or another to our first President. Among them are "The Father of His Country," "The Cincinnatus of the West," "Flower of the Forest," "Atlas of America." "Americus Fabius" and "Stepfather of His Country." To Speak of "Old Hickory" is almost as definite as to say President Jackson, who was also known as "Big Knife," "Hero of New Orleans," "Gin'ral" and "The Old Hero." Van Buren rejoiced in such names as "Whisky Van," "King Martin First," "Follower in the Footsteps" and "The Wizard of Kinderhook." Lincoln was "Uncle Abe," "Massa Linkum" and "Father Abraham." Johnson, who was pitted against both houses, won the title "Sir Veto."—Illustrated American.

STAGE COACHES BY TROLLEY.

This Conveyance Is a Free Lance with No Dependence on Tracks.

Stage coaches run by electric trolley power represent the latest idea of inventive genius in regard to the application of electricity to purposes of transportation. At Greenwich, Conn., is now to be seen in operation a motor carriage running upon a highway propelled by force taken from wires which are supported by poles along the side of the road. By an ingenious device the trolley, or rather a flexible metallic cable attached to the carriage is conducted along the circuit wire in such a way that two trolley vehicles may pass each other and each may turn round or pass from one side of the street to the other at the pleasure of the driver. Free from the bondage of a railway track and the tyranny of the despatcher and the switch-tender, the electric stage coach may stop and start when it likes, calling for passengers at their doors on either side of the road, and rolling merrily along the highway regardless of wind, snow or ice, its only limitations being the poles and wires which give it motion. Over the quarter of a mile stretch already equipped it is declared that the heavy carriage can easily run in 45 seconds, which would mean the sufficiently rapid pace for a stage coach of thirty miles an hour. The trials are said to have been so successful that a permanent line of considerable length will soon be operated.—Boston Herald.

His Purpose.

"Why do you like to associate with Glanders so much? That fellow's everlasting babble would tire me to death."

"Well, I'll tell you. Sometimes I get to thinking that I don't know very much, and then I want to get into his company. After listening to him for five minutes my respect for myself is always fully restored, and I am cheerful again."—Cleveland Leader.

Spoiled the Intention.

Brady—Did ye hear av the foight betuxt Hinnissey and O'Gowligan?"

Grady—Oi did not. Was it to a finish?

Brady—That was the intintion, but Hinnissey was knocked out before it got that far.—Boston Courier.

"So you broke the engagement, Yawply?"

"Yes, but not till after the engagement broke me."—Detroit Free Press.

WEED, A POLITICIAN.

THE EARLIEST OF NEW YORK'S EASY BOSSES.

Laid Low by Uncle Horace Greeley—For Thirty Years Thurlow Weed Was Dictator of the Political Fortunes of the Empire State.

The people of Albany, N. Y., along the residence of Thurlow Weed, observed, November 15, the 100th anniversary of the birth of that extraordinary man who in life presented the most positive and distinctive characteristics of any citizen of his age, and who in death holds a unique place in our political history. For nearly two generations his influence was unquestioned, his power unexampled, his wisdom as a leader unexcelled. Often more mighty than Presidents, "his prestige endured while administrations, Senators and commoners faded from existence. During a full half century he was the most important political factor the country has ever known, and the annals of the republic furnish no one who could rank as the same type of leader. In his command of power, without any insignia of authority, none but himself supplied his parallel, and he has passed into history as the one man who most imposingly exemplified the grandeur of simple citizenship."

It was fitting that such a man should begin life in the humblest station, and by hard knocks win his way in the world. He was born in Cairo, Greene County, N. Y., where his father was a teamster. The elder Weed, the son once said, "was one of a class whom ill-fortune follows to the end of their days. Though he worked hard, he never prospered, and the debtor's prison was ever staring him in the face." His children were early compelled to shift for themselves. Young Thurlow, when little more than a child, became a bread-winner.

With Mr. Weed, however, the editor was always subordinate to the politician and while conducting the Evening Journal he was also the master spirit in New York, first of the Whigs, organized by John Quincy Adams for other men to lead, and afterward of the Republicans. During this period no member of his party reached the gubernational chair in New York without his favor; none reached the Senate without first becoming his candidate; none compassed important legislation without his aid, and none from his state filled Cabinet positions or missions without his consent. Now and then the party would make anti-Weed nominations, but only to suffer defeat, as was conspicuously the case when Gen. Wadsworth made the unsuccessful battle for Governor in 1862. In national politics Mr. Weed was equally powerful. To him more than to any other man was due the putting aside of Clay for the comparatively unknown yet more available Harrison in the Whig convention of 1840. He brought about the nomination of Taylor in 1848 and of Scott in 1852, and was one of the half-dozen men who made Fremont the Republican candidate in 1856. Webster twice lost the presidency through his failure to follow the advice of Mr. Weed; and again, when Millard Fillmore, whom he had made one of the leaders of the Whigs, signed the fugitive slave law, his creator turned upon him, drove him from the party before the war was out, and gave the death blow to his hopes of future preferment.

Power such as Mr. Weed enjoyed so long betokened, of course, the possession by him not only of tact, shrewdness and judgment, but of signal disinterestedness. The last-named quality he exhibited for many years; but toward the close of his career, having learned how public policy might become a private profit, he began to swerve from the rule of doing nothing for his own advantage, and this was the beginning of his downfall. A strong and imbittered opposition was raised up against him when Horace Greeley, long his friend and associate, turned and struck him, this opposition became formidable, and presently much of his power was gone. The final act of the struggle was the defeat of William H. Seward at Chicago in 1860.

Mr. Weed had made Mr. Seward his closest friend for half a lifetime, both Governor and Senator, and it was his fondest ambition to see him advanced to the presidency. At first Mr. Seward's success in the second Republican National Convention seemed certain, but in the end the weight of Mr. Greeley's influence, thrown into the scales for Mr. Lincoln, gave the nomination to the latter. From this defeat Mr. Weed never recovered. Mr. Lincoln called Mr. Seward into his Cabinet and Mr. Weed was intrusted with an important foreign mission; but the latter's dictatorship was broken. His

THE WAR AND ITS RESULTS.

General Grant's Opinion as Expressed to General Buckner.

General Buckner of the Confederate army, whose work, in 1862, Grant proposed to move upon immediately, was always an admirer of the Union general. They had been class-mates at West Point and during General Grant's last illness, General Buckner visited him at Mt. Gregor. General Buckner found General Grant in his sitting-room, in the adjustable chair, furnished with wheels, which served him as a bed. Though pale and somewhat emaciated, he preserved the calm courage that was his most marked characteristic. General Grant, who was unable to articulate, replied to General Buckner's cordial greeting by writing on a small pad of paper from which he removed the slips after writing on them.

General Buckner said that, aside from the gratification of a feeling of personal friendship, he had a special object in view in paying this visit. It was to assure General Grant that every Confederate soldier held him in kindly remembrance, not only for his magnanimity at the close of the war, but for his just and friendly conduct afterward in interposing to prevent the violation by his own government of the terms of the military convention which he had entered into, at the surrender, with the Southern soldiers, which secured them from molestation so long as they complied with the terms of their parole. To this General Grant wrote an answer which is a last message of friendship to the South and to the whole country, and part of which is published in fac-simile in the current number of The Century for the first time. It reads:

"I have witnessed since my sickness just what I have wished to see ever since the war: harmony and good feeling between the sections. I have always contended that if there had been nobody left but the soldiers we would have had peace in a year. Jubal Early and Hill are the only two that I know of who do not seem to be satisfied on the Southern side. We have some on ours who failed to accomplish as much as they wished, or who did not get warmed up to the fight until it was all over, who have not had quite full satisfaction. The great majority too of those who did not go into the war have long since grown tired of the long controversy. We may now well look forward to a perpetual peace at home, and a national strength that will secure us against any foreign complication. I believe myself that the war was worth all it cost us, fearful as that was. Since it was over I have visited every state in Europe and a number in the East. I know, as I did not before, the value of our inheritance."

Glad He Was Not a Preacher.

A well-known Worcester clergyman tells a good story at his own expense. In his younger days he was tramping through the White Mountains with a companion who was also a clergyman. One day they mounted the driver's seat of a stage coach. The driver was an interesting character, loaded with good stories. The three speedily became friendly, and it was with reluctance that they parted at the end of the journey. "I'm glad ter hev met yer fellers," said the driver in farewell. "Yer see, I haven't seen a man this summer, exceptin' ministers."—Boston Record.

What Started Haggard to Write Novels.

Rider Haggard wrote his first book to justify a boast by him to his brother. Rider was reading some novel which did not interest him, and, flinging it down, he cried impatiently: 'I could write better stuff than that!' His brother, who was present, challenged him to prove his words. He did so.—Answers.

Simple Remedy for a Cold-in-the-Head.

HE WAS LIABLE TO BUNCO.

Careful Prearrangement Fails to Save Mr. Restrow.

The New York Sun of recent date told of experiences of a California Englishman in the metropolis. It said:

The police of the Charles street station have a well-dressed man in their custody, and Capt. Petty is looking for an owner for him. He was able to give his name last night as Charles Restrow, and said he got into town on Monday from Los Angeles. He was on his way to England, and has a steamship ticket on the Teutonic to sail to-day.

The ticket is about all he possesses, aside from a new white straw hat and a silver-top cane. He would have not had the ticket if it had been in his pocket, but his passage was paid in advance, and the purser of the boat has the ticket.

Mr. Restrow is 43 years old. He has been living in California four years, and left Los Angeles on May 12. A letter found in his pocket requests railroad conductors along the line of the Southern Pacific to "take care of him, as he is a stranger in a strange land, and liable to bunco and other games."

At 10 o'clock last night Policeman Ward of the Charles street station found Mr. Restrow in a drug store at 463 Hudson street. He was looking over a directory trying to find "Isaac."

The druggist called the policeman's attention to him, saying the gentleman was lost. A crowd in front of the door told the policeman that the man had been buncoed. Mr. Restrow himself said he did not know where he was at.

"You see I am perfectly sober," he said, "for I am not a drinking man. But I'm green in the blooming country, and I can't find the name of the hotel where I stopped at last night, nor can I find the name of the gentleman whom I gave my trunks to. He told me his name was Isaac, but there's so blooming many of them that I can't find which it is. He said he was a baggage master on the Centreport Road, and that he'd take care of my baggage, and he did, and now they say I've been fluked or buncoed, or something of the kind. But the truth of it is I've been mixed a little, and I'd like to get out of it."

Policeman Ward took Mr. Restrow to the station house, and there the stranger made inquiries for "Mr. Isaac," whom he met at a hotel on Broadway, and who took everything but his cane and straw hat. Capt. Petty questioned him.

"They were afraid I'd get lost," Restrow said, "so they give me this letter, and fixed me ticket at every blooming railway station so that I wouldn't lose it. I was to sail on the Teutonic, and I guess they have a ticket for me there."

Capt. Petty sent a policeman to the steamship agents, and there learned that a passage ticket awaited Mr. Restrow's arrival. A woman had telegraphed the passage money from Los Angeles. That was all the steamship folks knew.

"Who is the woman?" asked the Captain.

"Oh, she was a lady who came over here with me," said Mr. Restrow, "but she won't go back. But you can't tell me where Isaac lives, can you?"

"I can't," said the Captain; "I'll try to find out, however. I don't know the man, but I suppose he's a cousin to Hungry Joe. If you want that hat and cane you had better stay with us for the night."

"I will," said Mr. Restrow, and he stayed.

And Are We Yet Alive?

It is a custom among the Methodist preachers to open their annual conferences with the hymn:

"And are we yet alive
To see each other's face?"

In a certain town where the conference was held the preachers were treated with extraordinary hospitality. Every housekeeper had the table groaning with fried chicken and yellow gravy. All the choice fowls were killed off to satisfy the white-cravated epicures. The day after adjournment the evening paper of the town had a picture showing two scrawny-looking yellow roosters peeping at each other out from under the barn and then, crossing their necks, saying:

"And are we yet alive
To see each other's face?"

THEIR BUSINESS PURELY LOCAL.

New Loan Association Stockholders Talked Over Matters.

A meeting of those interested in forming the Union Building and Loan Association, of Plainfield, New Jersey, met last night at the office of R. A. Meeker in the Marsh Building. Dr. M. B. Long was made temporary chairman and E. V. French temporary secretary.

This is the association that J. A. Davis has been actively engaged in organizing for the last sixty days. The members of the association are among the most prominent of Plainfield's business men. The association will soon be running. It is to be conducted on purely up-to date plans, and will be entirely local.

Very little business was transacted last night. The by-laws were adopted in part, and then referred to a committee, consisting of R. A. Meeker, S. R. Struthers and Nelson Runyon, who will report at a meeting to be held Friday night. A nominating committee, consisting of Dr. M. B. Long, E. M. Laing, John D. Runyon and R. J. Shaw, was also appointed. At the meeting Friday night the directors will be elected, and the association thoroughly organized.

ENDORSED NOTE FOR HUSBAND..

A Complicated Trial in Justice Mosher's Court Yesterday.

A complicated case in which a wife endorsed a note as an accomodation for her husband, was tried in Justice Mosher's court yesterday. The parties were Charles Peterson, of Dunellen, against Oscar Pearson and wife. Pearson purchased goods of Peterson to the amount of $185 several months ago, and as Peterson would not take Pearson's note, he got his wife to endorse it. With her endorsement the note went through. Other notes were given in the same way until the bill was reduced to $111, when no more money being paid on it, suit was brought.

William Newcorn represented Peterson and W. K. McClure was Pearson's lawyer Mr. McClure claimed that Mrs. Pearson could not be held for the amount of the note as she was only an accomodation signer. Justice Mosher reserved his decision for one week. Mr. Pearson owns the property.

TRIED HARD TO WRECK TRAINS.

Unknown Man Supposed to Have a Grudge Against the Railroad.

(Special to The Daily Press)

New Brunswick, January 31.—At various times within the past two weeks obstructions have been discovered on the tracks of the Camden and Amboy Railroad between Prospect Plains and Jamesburg, and detectives of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company are trying to discover the would-be wreckers.

Sunday night Harvey Stonaker, who is the railroad operator at Helmetta, discovered a number of ties piled on the track in such a way that, had a train struck them, a wreck could hardly have been averted. Two nights before several cakes of ice had been wedged into a frog, and a little before that a switch was filled with stones. It is thought that the obstructions are placed on the track by some one with a fancied grievance against the railroad company.

PLANS FOR HOSPITAL

cents, connected with a special diet kitchen. The second floor will provide a maternity ward of three beds five rooms for pay patients and necessary toilets.

The rooms throughout are to be warmed and ventilated by the most perfect means known, the temperatures to be under automatic-thermostatic control. The walls are to be lined to the height of six feet with opal-glazed tiles, and all walls, floors and surfaces throughout are to be perfectly smooth, polished and impermeable, so as to admit of thorough cleansing. Exteriorly the buildings are to be of common hard brick with stone base and trimming.

According to the present ideas of the Board, it is first intended to erect one of the service buildings with the accompanying ward, using the service building for administrative purposes, the new ward as the women's ward and the present hospital buildings as the men's ward.

The administration building is to contain the offices of the matron and the doctors, the visitors' room, the dining room and the operating room, while the second floor will be devoted to pay patients.

If the enlargement of the hospital facilities is begun according to the proposed plans, it will require from $18,000 to $25,000 to complete the first stage of the improvements. It is rather difficult to name the amount to be involved in the entire project but itwill be in the neighborhood of say $50,000.

CRAZED BY THE FIRE.

Rescued From His Home He Wanders Into the Woods.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Elizabeth, Jan. 31 — John Edgeworth, a well-known dairyman, living between here and Rahway, is not expected to live as a result of exposure Sunday.

About 2 o'clock Sunday morning five of his employes were out milking when they discovered the house in flames, and rushing back succeeded in getting aged Mr. Edgeworth out in his nightclothes. While they were trying to save the household effects, Mr. Edgeworth became insane and ran off through the woods.

There is not another house within a mile and the men went to Titus' halfway house, and a searching party went out and after five hours' search the old man was found in the woods almost dead from cold and exposure. He was taken to Mr. Titus' hotel and later to the home of his son-in-law, James Whyte. His condition is critical.

DENY THAT THEY ARE MARRIED.

Young Couple Disagree as to Where They Were Sunday.

It was rumored about town this morning that a well-known young man, employed in one of the West Front street dry goods stores, and a young lady residing in the borough, were married Sunday at the residence of Rev. Mr. Dyott, of Hill street, Newark. When seen by a Press reporter this afternoon both young people denied that they were married, but admitted that the wedding was to come off in May.

The alleged groom denied being in Newark Sunday, and said that he was at home asleep all the afternoon. The alleged bride, on the other hand, said that they were in Newark Sunday, but strongly denied being married. It is suggested that before they talk any more about the matter the couple hold a conference and then be prepared to tell the same story.

Could Not Identify Them.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Somerville, Jan. 31 — Prosecutor Dungan, accompanied by a detective and Secretary Honeyman, of the Y. M. C. A., went to Stroudsberg, Pa., yesterday, in the hope that the burglars who shot Officer Manning Crow a week ago, had been caught there. The Stroudsberg authorities had two suspicious individuals in jail and they wired the fact to Prosecutor Dungan. As two strangers visited the Y. M. C. A. the day previous to the burglary, and it was thought that they were the robbers, Secretary Honeyman went along to see if he could identify them. He was unable to do so, however.

A Dunellen Surprise.

(Special to The Daily Press)

Dunellen, Jan. 31—John Smalley, of this place, was given a complete surprise at his home last evening, when a large number of friends called for the purpose of having a good time. Mr. Smalley received his guests hospitably, and the evening was given up to dancing, music for which was furnished by Sam. Frazee, of Plainfield.

KRAUSSE EXPLAINED TO THE MAYOR.

His Honor Says Board of Health May be Called Upon to Act in the Matter.

Mayor Wilson, of the borough, called on C. W. Krausse, of Vine street, yesterday, to hold a conference regarding the high board fence that the latter had erected on his property which shuts off the view of a ajoining house.

It was the purpose of His Honor to secure, if possible, by moral persuasion, the removal of the fence. Mr. Krausse made a very plain statement of facts and told how his neighbor had acted toward toward his wife and children. He stated that the actions were, at times, disgraceful, and that he would not allow his family to suffer such indignities. After hearing the facts in the case His Honor told Mr. Krausse that he should have reported the case to him and he would have attended to it at once.

Mr. Wilson informed Mr. Krausse that the Board of Health would no doubt visit him and compell him to remove the fence inasmuch as it would come under the head of a nuisance. Mr. Krausse did not say whether he would concur with the Board of Health or not if requested to take the fence down.

CARE OF THE HANDS.

Special Care Should be Taken with the Hands of Growing Children.

No woman of refinement will disregard the appearance of her hands, because these useful members are always in evidence, and cannot be overlooked in the general estimate of her appearance. To a certain extent the care which a woman takes of her hands indicates her character. Contrary to the popular impression, soft, white hands are difficult to attain, because nothing of value is procured without effort.

The best gloves to wear are those of animal skin, such as kid, buckskin and doeskin. The hands should be exposed to the sun and winds as little as possible, and hot water is sure to injure any skin, be it on hands or face. Lifting heavy objects, excessive bicycle practice and wearing rings too small inevitably result in disfigurements.

Parents should take special pains to care for the hands of their growing children, for early neglect often destroys the possibility of future excellence. In order to acquire a soft, white hand, great care must be observed in the selection of preparations and toilet soaps. Nothing exceeds the quality of pure olive soap of Spanish make; all highly colored and very fragrant soaps should be avoided. Violent hand shaking is detrimental to the hand, and is avoided by many people in public life. George Washington at public receptions always stood with his hands behind him, simply bowing with dignified courtesy.

Mrs. President Harrison was forced to refrain from hand shaking on account of the disastrous effect on her hands.—Mme. Rowland in New York Tribune.

Gentleness Pays.

Proof is abundant of the direct profit of a kind, quiet, clean and considerate care-taker and milker; the cow responds generously to the person in whom she thoroughly confides by increase of both quantity and quality of milk. A careless, rough, rude handler and milker, or one uncleanly in person or habits, is dear at any price. Most of the taints and early changes in milk and injury to quality of its products, can be directly traced to carelessness in the surroundings and condition of the cow or her milker, at the time of milking. I have lately been at once astonished and disgusted at witnessing the milking of large herds of cows in some parts of this country by foreign milkers, who practice the wet method, frequently dipping their fingers in the milk pail.—Major Alvord.

Proper Signatures.

It is a very bad form to sign a letter, an article, or story, or any document, Mrs. Blank Blank. It should be signed Mary Blank. It is also improper and illegal to sign with one's husband's initials, as Mrs. John T. Blank. The signature should be simply Mary Blank.

A money order, a note, or check must be signed with one's own Christian name, or else it will not be regular, or acceptable.

The Fashion of Wearing Feathers.

Birds are being so rapidly exterminated in certain localities where they are hunted that either the fashion of wearing feathers should be changed or womankind choose only such feathers as will not cause the slaughter of the winged creation. The New Jersey coast is losing its attractive little ferns, and the snowy heron is hardly to be found in Florida, because the aigrette is taken from the mother bird in nesting season, and her young brood is left to die in the nest. —New York Tribune.

To Preserve Cut Flowers

When the cut flowers become wilted they may frequently be freshened by clipping off the ends and dipping the stems in hot water for a few moments.

If a burn is sprinkled freely with powdered charcoal the burning sensation will be relieved almost immediately.

Dismantled and Decaying in Omaha Railroad Yard.

In an obscure corner of the yards of the Union Pacific car shops in Omaha, in a dilapidated and abandoned condition stands a truly historic relic known as the Lincoln car. Its sides are cracked and weatherbeaten, and the glass in its windows and the brass railings on its platform are long ago gone. All the compartments and sumptuous interior furnishings and decorations have been removed, and it stands like a barren, decaying hulk of its once proud self. This car was built specially for Mr. Lincoln in the United States military car shops in Alexandria, Va., in 1864, by B. P. Lamson, master car builder, and was certainly one of the handsomest private railroad coaches in its day. It was used by the President repeatedly on his visits to the Army of the Potomac down in Virginia, and also to New York and Philadelphia.

The Lincoln car is forty-two feet long by eight and one-half feet wide, and during the time Mr. Lincoln used it was divided in three compartments. The car was considered in that day a triumph of the car builder's art. The walls of each of the compartments were padded with rich, corded crimson silk upholstery reaching half way to the ceiling, and the frieze of the President's room was decorated with painted panels of the coats-of-arms of the different States of the Union. The car was ironclad, armor being set in between the inner and outer walls, rendering it bullet proof. This added considerable to its weight, so much so that its builders thought it necessary to mount it on four four-wheeled trucks.—Chicago Tribune.

A Sandstorm at Sea.

The Royal Mail steamship Volta, which has arrived at Liverpool, reports that when between Cape Blanco and Cape Verde, a sandstorm was experienced which lasted for two days. The sand had been carried from the deserts of Northwest Africa, and was so thick that it was like a mist on the sea. The sun was partially obscured, and soundings had to be taken. The vessel from stem to stern was covered with sand of a red color, and looked as if she had been painted red. There were also flocks of birds which had been blown from the land, and these settled on the ship from time to time. The sand had a troublesome effect on the crew and the passengers, who could scarcely remain any time on deck without being seized with violent sneezing.—Westminster Gazette.
